

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

SENATORS.—I have again been charged with the duty of presiding over your deliberations. In assuming this office, I may believe that my past experience will enable me to be more useful to you, and I am sure that I may expect a continuance of the generous indulgence which I have already received at your hands. It is not necessary that I should endeavor to impress upon you the importance of the relations you hold to the government of the State. New York enters upon the second century of our national existence with nearly twice the population which the colonies had when independence was declared. According to the ratio of European growth during the last century, the second centennial will find there not less than twenty millions of people, descendants of all the European races, and presenting an unusual diversity and variety of interests and pursuits. I venture to remind you that you act not for yourselves, nor for this time alone, but that what you do here will have an influence upon all the great future of New York.

Messrs. Alvord and Ruggles, a committee from the Assembly, appeared in the Senate and informed the Senate that the Assembly had organized and were ready to proceed to business.

A message was received from the Governor and read, in the words following :

STATE OF NEW YORK, }
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, January 2, 1877. }

To the Legislature:

At the commencement of my service as chief magistrate of the State, it is gratifying to find the legislative representatives of the people assembled in their respective chambers and ready to unite with me in such measures as the welfare of our constituents may demand. In entering upon our duties it becomes us to acknowledge our dependence upon the Supreme Power which controls the destinies of States and nations, and which has so often interposed for our deliverance from danger, and humbly to implore a continuance of its guidance and protection.

We ought also at all times to remember that we are not here to promote our own individual interests. The people have not chosen us and sent us to their Capitol for any such purpose. On the contrary, they have placed in our hands a great and sacred trust, to be administered for their benefit and for the interest and honor of the inhabitants of the whole State, without regard to locality, religious creed or political party. The money which they pay into the public treasury is not our money; nor is it the money of the State, except as the people are the State. It still belongs to them until it is paid out by their agents for the legitimate expenses of their government as provided by the Constitution and laws. If a single dollar be otherwise appropriated or paid, it will be a breach of trust for which there can be no justification or excuse. Let us keep these principles constantly before us as we proceed with our respective duties.

FINANCES.

The accounts of the financial affairs of the State are kept with thirteen different funds, counting the several canal funds as one. The details of the accounts will be found in the Comptroller's report. The following statement exhibits the financial condition of the State at the close of the fiscal year, as it would be if all the funds were condensed into one:

Aggregate balance in the treasury of all the funds, October 1, 1875,	$8,126,778 98
Aggregate receipts during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1876.....	18,623,986 29
Total.....	$26,750,765 27
Deduct payments during the year	17,827,711 49
Balance in the treasury September 30, 1876.....	$8,923,053 78

A large proportion of the above balances in the treasury consist of money in the various sinking funds.

The amount of receipts into the treasury on account of the General Fund revenue during the year ending September 30, 1876, was..	$11,646,517 63
The payments, including the deficiency of $733,863.77 on the 1st of October, 1875, and also $4,640,849, transferred to the Bounty Debt Sinking Fund, were.....	11,644,982 98
Balance September 30, 1876.....	$1,534 65

The balance, although small, is more satisfactory than the large deficits which have almost uniformly appeared for many years past.

DEBT.

On the 30th of September, 1875, the total funded debt was $28,328,686.40, classified as follows:

General Fund.....	$3,119,526 40
Contingent	68,000 00
Canal	10,086,660 00
Bounty.....	15,054,500 00
	$28,328,686 40

On the 30th of September, 1876, the total funded debt was $23,315,898.58, classified as follows:

General Fund.....	$3,092,238 58
Contingent	5,000 00
Canal	10,081,660 00
Bounty.....	10,137,000 00
	$23,315,898 58

Actual reduction of the debt during the year by cancellation.. ... $5,012,787 82

Aggregate amount of debt.....	$23,315,898 58
Deduct money and securities in the sinking funds.....	14,191,889 50

Total amount of debt after applying sinking funds $9,124,009 08

The bounty debt will mature on the seventh day of April next. The sinking fund, together with the one-third mill tax, now in course of collection, will be sufficient for its full payment.

The balances in the sinking funds on the 30th September, 1876, including money and securities, were as follows:

General Fund.....	$2,910,529 36
Canal	2,121,050 24
Bounty.....	9,160,309 90
Total.....	$14,191,889 50

It must be observed, however, that the amount in the General Fund Debt Sinking Fund cannot all be applied to the payment of that debt, without leaving a large deficiency of means for paying the current expenses of the government. The full amount required for the payment of the debt was contributed from the surplus revenues of the canals, as directed by the Constitution, the last contribution having been received in 1873. But instead of being applied to that object, it was used to pay other appropriations made by the Legislature, and not otherwise provided for, and has never been fully restored. The debt, therefore, remains uncanceled, and, if ever paid, it must, to a large extent, be paid by taxation. The whole of it—except $800,000, due in 1878, and $30,443.76, due on demand — is payable at pleasure, and is held by the State as an investment for the various trust funds. In this condition it will of course remain, the interest upon it being paid to the respective funds for which it is held, so long as the Legislature may choose to leave it in that shape. It would be more satisfactory, and in better accord with the Constitution, to have the whole debt extinguished, and the money belonging to the trust funds invested in other securities. It is believed that the $800,000 due in 1878 may be paid from the sinking fund without taxation.

CANALS.

The report of the Auditor of the Canal Department exhibits in detail the operations, revenues, debts and expenses of all the canals. It will be unnecessary to present here any thing more than a few of the leading and important facts.

The gross amount of income from tolls and other sources for the year ending 30th September, 1876, was $1,487,332.89, being $438,662.74 less than in the preceding year. The cost of collection, ordinary repairs and other charges on revenues amounted to $1,149,194.61, being $318,121.34 less than in the preceding year. The Erie canal produced a surplus of revenue over expenses amounting to $508,953.14. The other canals all show small incomes and large deficiencies of revenue as follows:

	Gross Income.	Deficiencies.
Champlain.....	$94,944 55	$83,667 51
Oswego	29,048 35	27,175 17
Cayuga and Seneca.....	11,083 99	14,312 34
Chemung.....	2,104 84	7,689 87
Chenango	3,717 38	4,602 03
Black River.....	11,339 28	23,734 85
Genesee Valley.....	14,668 50	8,595 60
Crooked Lake.....	30 48	1,562 41

The year has been one of unprecedented disaster to the boatmen and to all others engaged in the navigation of the canals. In addition to the great depression in every branch of business, there has been an extraordinary competition between the railway lines extending from the Western States to tide-water, which has diverted trade from the canals, and notwithstanding the very low rates of toll, there has been a large falling off in tonnage as well as revenues. Many boats have been laid up; others have been run at a heavy loss and none of them appear to have made any profits.

The effective measures of reform which have been enforced within the last two years, arresting mismanagement and fraud and reducing expenses, have saved the canals from total ruin. Small as the income is, the expenses have been reduced below it, and yet the canals have been kept in complete repair during the entire season. Their future success, if they are to have any, must depend upon a faithful perseverance in this policy.

The question of high or low tolls in the present condition and prospects of canal transportation is one about which there would seem to be no ground for any difference of opinion. Under the Constitution, as now amended, no more money can be expended on the canals in any one year than the gross amount of their revenues for the preceding year. It is, therefore, indispensable for the forwarders to pay such tolls as are required to keep the canals in running order; and no one can reasonably ask them to pay any more, when they are making losses instead of profits on every cargo which they carry. It is true the Constitution requires the canal debt to be provided for from the surplus canal revenues, but no law can enforce impossibilities.

It is to be hoped that the depression in trade will not be of long continuance, and that prosperity may soon return to the canals. It is believed that the railways cannot continue permanently their unreasonable competition without involving themselves in ruin. When such a change shall take place that forwarders can again realize a fair income from their business, they will, of course, be required to pay such tolls as will provide for the canal debt. Until that time it must inevitably be a charge upon the tax-payers of the State. With the usual amount of freight, at fair prices, the present rates of toll will doubtless be sufficient for all purposes, and with continued economy in expenses, they may probably be still further reduced. Since the close of navigation the railway companies have agreed upon an increase of freights; but the past history of such agreements leaves it uncertain whether this one will be of long duration.

It is perhaps unnecessary to add that any expenditures, under present circumstances, for enlargements or extraordinary repairs, should not receive encouragement from any source.

Those who have suffered most severely by the loss of business upon the canals are the boatmen, and although it may not be in the power of the Legislature to relieve them, it is impossible to withhold from them our sympathy. The number of their boats is about 6,000. They are in one sense the partners of the State. They do the work which produces the revenue to keep the canals in repair. Their labor is severe, and their exposure great. In many instances their families live upon the boats, in order to reduce their expenses to the lowest point. No part of the plunder which others have received has ever gone to them; on the contrary, they have suffered from it by paying tolls which have been misapplied. But with all their labor and economy they have been unable during the past season to pay expenses. If any relief can be extended to them in the present depressed condition of trade, it must come from a further saving in the cost of maintaining the canals, and a consequent further reduction in tolls. Even this will not probably be sufficient to carry them safely through another season of such competition as they have encountered during the last year.

THE LATERAL CANALS.

Whether any further appropriations should be made on account of such lateral canals as the Legislature has a right to dispose of, can be best determined after receiving the report of the commissioners appointed by an act of the last session, to examine that subject. It will be seen by the results of the year's business given above, that those canals are rapidly disposing of themselves, and have already become of little value, even to the people living near them.

I learn from the commissioners that they have made the inspection and examination required by the act appointing them, and will soon be prepared to report. The act fixed their compensation, and directed its payment, together with their expenses, but made no appropriation, and they have not been paid. The necessary appropriation should be made.

STATE PRISONS.

The State prisons have kept on their way from bad to worse. The number of convicts in the three prisons September 30, 1876, was as follows :

Auburn	1,281
Clinton	629
Sing Sing	1,605
Total	3,509

The excess of advances from the treasury over receipts from earnings was $704,379.85. This deficiency is larger by more than $100,000 than was ever before known. It is due to the present inspectors to state that they claim the increased deficiency to be largely owing to incumbrances which fell upon them from their predecessors.

A commission was appointed by an act of the Legislature of 1876 to make a thorough investigation of the affairs of the prisons. The commissioners have been actively engaged in the service during the whole summer and autumn. Their report will very soon be submitted to the Legislature, and will, I presume, cover the whole ground of prison management, discipline and maintenance. I commend it to the attention of the Legislature, without further comment at this time.

STATE REFORMATORY AT ELMIRA.

It is gratifying to be able to announce to the Legislature that a large portion of the Reformatory building has been finished and brought into use. With a reasonable appropriation, the entire structure will be completed within the present year. The board of managers, appointed by chapter 207, Laws of 1876, organized in accordance with the act, and succeeded in securing the services of a very competent and efficient superintendent. Having completed and furnished the south wing, they received 170 convicts from the Auburn and Sing Sing prisons, who were immediately put at work upon the north wing, the prison wall and workshops, which have been advanced rapidly towards completion. The superintendent estimates that with an appropriation of $185,000, and with the privilege of using the prisoners without the interference of contractors, he can fully complete and furnish and bring into use all the buildings, including the prison wall, within the year, and support 300 convicts during the progress of the work, and that then, with possibly a small appropriation for maintenance in 1878, the Reformatory will cease to be a burden upon the State treasury. He is confident that it can be made entirely self-sustaining.

In 1874, the Governor in his annual message estimated the whole cost of the buildings at $2,000,000. Assuming the above estimate of the superintendent to be correct, they will be completed for a little more than one-half of that sum. But for the ambitious style of architecture adopted at the outset, the cost would have been much less than $1,000,000.

The design of the Reformatory was the reformation, as well as punishment, of young convicts who had not become hardened in crime. With this object in view it was originally enacted that no convicts should be sentenced to it except such as were over sixteen and under thirty years of age, and convicted of a first offense. It is a source of much regret to the friends of the institution that it should have been, even temporarily, diverted from its original purpose; but the crowded condition of the other prisons, and the necessity of relieving them as far and as speedily as possible, led to the use, for the time being, of the Reformatory for that purpose.

The managers will require some further legislation to aid them in the discharge of their duties, and to promote the objects of the institution. Their views and recommendations will in due time be laid before you.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

The people of the State, at the last election, adopted by an immense majority, the constitutional amendments which had been approved by two previous Legislatures, and which have thus become a part of the Constitution of the State. They provide for the appointment, by the Governor and Senate, of a Superintendent of State Prisons, with all the powers of the Board of Inspectors, and a Superintendent of Public Works, with all the powers of the Canal Commissioners. A radical change is thus made in the management both of the prisons and of the canals. In each case all power and responsibility are placed in the hands of one controlling executive officer.

Wearied with the frauds, the wasteful and extravagant expenditures which so often attend the management of irresponsible boards, the people have determined to make this great change, with the hope of better results. They undoubtedly desire that the amendments be carried into effect as speedily as possible. I recommend, therefore, that an act be passed with as little delay as may be proper, fixing salaries of the respective Superintendents, and also the amount of security to be given by each.

A brief act containing these simple provisions will be all that will be necessary before appointing the Superintendents, and enabling them to enter upon their important duties. If further legislation should then be found desirable, either in regard to the canals or the prisons, it could be perfected at the convenience of the Legislature, and with ample time for deliberation.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

One phase of the extravagance and folly, amounting almost to lunacy, caused by an inflated currency and inflated modes of life, developed itself in a passion for costly public buildings. Of these the New Capitol takes the lead. Its cost was originally estimated at $4,500,000. There have already been expended upon it over $7,500,000, and it will undoubtedly require as much more to complete it; and when completed it will be a vast pile of ornamental stone work, not at all in keeping with the tastes and good sense of plain, substantial people. In addition to this, it is discouraging to contemplate its completion in view of the enormous annual cost of heating, lighting, cleaning and superintending it.

Following in the wake of the Capitol are several Insane Asylums, the State Reformatory, houses for Normal Schools, High Schools and other buildings upon which millions of the people's money have been wasted in useless ornaments and luxurious arrangements. In behalf of those which are not yet completed — embracing nearly all of the most costly structures — the usual representation is made that unless we go forward and spend the further amounts required for their completion, we shall lose all that we have expended. Whatever force there may be in this argument, I confess that in the present condition of financial affairs, the actual distress caused in many homes by the payment of their heavy taxes, I should prefer to have the expenditures cease, the tax-payers relieved and the buildings left as they are, at least, until the advent of better times. Fully responding to the demands of humanity in behal of the unfortunate poor, I cannot see the propriety or the justice of reducing a large body of tax-payers to pauperism for the purpose of building gorgeous palaces in which other paupers are to be supported at the public expense.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

Several medical gentlemen of great eminence in their profession have asked my attention to the subject of a State board of health. They believe that such an institution would render essential service in the prevention of sickness and the preservation of life and health. They claim that, in almost every case where local epidemics have prevailed with a severity and fatality which seemed mysterious, their origin can be traced to some neglect of sanitary precautions or to some cause which a properly organized board of health would have discovered and removed. Important as this subject is, it has been impossible for me to find time for such an examination of it as would justify any specific recommendations. I can only ask your careful consideration of it. I do this the more willingly because I am assured that it is not intended that any expense shall be incurred by the State beyond a moderate salary for the secretary of the proposed board.

COMMISSIONERS OF EMIGRATION.

The condition of the affairs of the Commission of Emigration is embarrassing, and demands prompt consideration. The commission is charged with the duty of watching over all emigrants landed in the city of New York, on their arrival; and, in the cases of any who fall into distress, for some years afterwards.

Heretofore, under authority of the laws of this State, bonds have been required with conditions to indemnify the cities, counties and towns of the State against these passengers becoming a public charge upon them. The practice has been to accept, in lieu of the bond, a certain sum in cash from each passenger, which money constituted the revenue or fund of the commission, out of which it has reimbursed the several counties for any expenditures made in support of distressed emigrants within the period named. This revenue is now entirely cut off by a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, declaring all such laws unconstitutional. The decision was rendered on the 21st of March, 1876, since which date no commutations have been paid nor bonds given.

Out of the moneys heretofore collected by the Commissioners of Emigration, as agents of the State, the public faith is pledged to provide for all emigrants — in behalf of whom contributions to the fund were made — who may need assistance within five years from the date of their arrival.

There are 120 acres of land on Ward's island upon which were erected hospitals, a refuge, an asylum for insane persons and other buildings, for the use of the commission. The lands were bought and the buildings erected out of the commutation moneys. The title to the property is in the State. The commission estimates its value at $2,000,000. It is subject to a mortgage of $200,000.

The Legislature last year, on the recommendation of the Governor, appropriated $200,000 toward the current expenses from May 1, 1876, to May 1, 1877. Of this there had been expended, up to the third of November last, $109,000.

I learn by a communication from the president of the commission, dated December 13, 1876, that the number of passengers from foreign ports landed at New York from January 1, 1878, to the above mentioned date, was 109,592. That of these the number which came under the immediate care of the board was 72,326. The number admitted during the same period to the refuge and hospital was 8,953, of which number 687 remained in the institutions — 331 being sick in the hospital, 141 insane in the lunatic asylum, 162 crippled or otherwise disabled in the refuge, and fifty-three children in the nursery.

It seems necessary that some provision be made by which the public faith may be kept with the emigrants — at least until the relief which is sought through a bill pending in Congress is obtained. The importance of the question as to how we are to deal with emigrants is shown by the fact that out of a little more than 8,000,000 reported as arriving since May, 1847, nearly 6,000,000 were landed at New York. Further details will be found in the annual report of the commission.

SAVINGS BANKS.

Recent disasters among our savings banks admonish us of the necessity of rigid restraints against mismanagement. These institutions are created for a special purpose, to wit, to take charge of small savings; the saving of those who handle little money, are inexperienced in investments, and to whom the loss of any part of their limited capital is a serious calamity. Every thing practicable should be done toward absolute security, and the money deposited by this class of persons should never be mixed up with that of others who handle large sums, and are capable of taking care of it for themselves, nor should it be subjected to the risks which persons of greater means and large experience are accustomed to take.

I recommend a re-examination of the general law passed in 1875, regulating these institutions. Section 34 of that act provides, that for the purpose of ascertaining the surplus held by a savings bank, its interest-paying stocks and bonds shall be estimated at their market value. I suggest instead, that such investments shall not be estimated above cost, nor above par, nor above market value. Any advance in cost is unrealized profit until the stocks are sold; and it may never be realized. If a premium above par has been paid, or is indicated by the current market value, this is sure to disappear if the stocks or bonds are held till maturity; it should not be counted as an asset, except when the bonds have been sold before maturity, and the premium is actually on hand.

I suggest, also, that the privilege, granted by section 27, of leaving ten per cent of the aggregate deposits, and also the current cash daily balances, of savings banks, with an ordinary bank or trust company should be taken away. This is mingling the money of the poor with that of the more speculative and more watchful classes, and subjecting it to the same risks. It is inconsistent with the provision of section 30, which forbids a saving bank lending any part of its funds upon notes, bills of exchange, drafts, or any other personal securities whatever. For such is the very class of securities on which the ordinary business bank will risk the money of the savings bank, in common with that of its other customers. It is, no doubt, desirable that a certain portion of the means of a savings bank should be in such shape that it can be promptly realized; sufficient provision to this end is otherwise made by the same section 27, which now authorizes temporary loans directly by the savings bank itself, upon certain classes of stocks and bonds. I see no reason why a savings bank should not keep its cash means as other banks do, in its own custody, in its own vaults.

An aggregate amount of deposits is now allowed to be made by one person, up to $5,000. I suggest that it be reduced to $1,000, or at most $2,000; and this inclusive of accumulated interest. Persons of considerable means now put money into a savings bank in order to get better interest than elsewhere. The institutions are not meant for this class. The possession of considerable means implies the capacity to take care of money. Nor do I approve of the provision of section 22, allowing deposits to be received from corporations and societies. Every association must necessarily have a business head, capable of taking proper care of its funds. An association of any kind does not need the aid of a savings bank.

Section 23 implies that savings banks may properly receive deposits of money paid into court or under the order of a surrogate. A separate class of institutions—trust companies—have been provided for this special purpose, and such deposits are, for the most part, in large sums. All the creditors of a savings bank ought to be of the same class, to wit, creditors for small sums. I am inclined to the opinion that the disasters among our savings banks are due, to some extent at least, to their having sought, of late years, after a class of business which formerly they never undertook, and for which they are not intended.

Section 33 provides that dividends may be made of not exceeding six per cent per annum. This limit, I think, should be reduced to five per cent. High interest and increased risk always go together. Government bonds pay now only four and a-half per cent per annum, and savings banks ought not to be tempted, by efforts to pay high interest, into dealing into any but the very safest securities.

Section 33 requires every savings bank, when it has acquired a surplus of ten per cent, to divide all accumulations beyond that. I submit that ten per cent is not sufficient guarantee against losses. In view of the great and sudden depreciation to which property of all kinds is sometimes liable, as we know by present experience, I am not sure that any limit should be put upon the accumulation of a surplus fund. Such a fund had better be too large than too small. It seems to me that the limit of ten per cent is, at all events, much too low. These suggestions are respectfully submitted to your consideration. The purpose I have in view is, that this class of institutions, so valuable to the welfare of the great mass of the community, shall be rigidly confined to the duty for which they were created. They are semi-charitable in their nature, and their aid should not be given to nor their benefits shared by those who need no help.

The foregoing statements should attract attention. Previous to the year 1856, the State appropriated $800,000 per year for the support of the common schools. The act of 1856 changed the practice by levying a three-quarter mill tax, which produced a little over $1,000,000 per year, until 1867, when the rate was raised to one and one-quarter mills, which produced over $2,000,000, and in consequence of the recent extraordinary increase of valuations, it now produces over $3,000,000, and for the next fiscal year it will be probably $3,500,000. Adding to this the amount raised by local taxation, for the same object, we have a grand total of over $12,000,000.

The amount paid for teachers' wages during the past year was $7,949,085.17. The whole number of children attending public schools was 1,067,199. The number attending normal schools, 6,391. The number of children of school age in private schools, 134,404. If to all these we add the numbers of those who are instructed at home by private tutors, in academies, colleges and other institutions, not reported, some idea may be formed of the immense amount of money drawn from the people of the State, voluntarily or by taxation, for school purposes. Without intending to intimate the least suspicion that any part of this large amount is unwisely or improperly expended, the subject is of such magnitude as to be worthy of careful examination and scrutiny.

The question whether the State can educate all the children within its limits better than they can be educated in schools organized, conducted and paid for by the parents of the children themselves, has been decided in favor of the State, which is now conducting the experiment on a very large and expensive scale. It is of the utmost importance that the experiment should be successful, and that it should be so conducted as to merit the confidence and support of the entire community. To this end, if there are any errors in the mode of conducting it, they should be corrected before they lead to evils which it may be difficult, if not impossible to remedy.

The only ground upon which citizens who have no children can justly be compelled to pay taxes for the education of the children of others is, that it is necessary for the safety of the whole people, under our form of government. Our institutions, by their very theory, carry with them the assumption of a certain grade of intelligence among the citizens. It seems, therefore, to be the duty of a State to see to it that each and every citizen, so far as practicable, shall be educated to such a degree as will enable him to read and understand the laws, the Constitution and the ballot that he votes on election day. The schools in which education is given to this extent always carry their line of instruction far enough to embrace all the branches usually taught in our common schools. It seems to me to be a clear violation of personal rights for the State to go beyond this and levy taxes to support free academies, high schools and colleges, in which the higher branches of literature and science are taught, and young men prepared for the learned professions. This should be left to individual effort, from which better results always come than from any amount of donations from the State.

It should also be remembered that the expenditure of such large amounts of public money has almost invariably led to great abuses, and there is no security against the same tendency in educational management. The expenditures for school-houses, repairs and furniture, during the last ten years, have amounted to $19,569,109.97. It is, perhaps, well to inquire whether this large amount has been wisely expended, in the construction of plain, substantial and comfortable school-houses, or whether it has been, to any extent, handled by fraudulent contractors, or devoted to the construction of costly and ornamental buildings for the benefit, possibly, of the owners of adjoining property.

I would also suggest an inquiry as to whether the normal schools are really worth to the system what they cost. I am informed that a very large portion of the pupils instructed in them never follow the profession of teaching for any length of time.

There ought, also, to be found some remedy for the great abuse and expense arising from the number of new school books, and the frequent changes made, for no good purpose but simply to benefit the publishers and agents. It is undoubtedly true that inducements are frequently offered to school authorities and teachers to aid in the work of changing books and selling new ones. It would be strange if these temptations were always resisted. It seems to me proper that the Legislature should fix some limit to this evil.

Finally, I would recommend a return to the former system of making an appropriation of a specific sum in each year from the State treasury for the benefit of the common schools, and put into the tax levy a rate sufficient to cover the amount — $2,500,000 at the utmost ought to be, and will be, amply sufficient, if proper care is taken in the use of it. These suggestions are made in a spirit of sincere friendship to our common school system, to the end that it may not be exposed to any just objection; that its administration may be characterized by a wise economy, and by a degree of purity which shall place it above suspicion, and keep it in the future as it now is, strongly intrenched in the confidence of the people.

COLLEGES AND ACADEMIES.

The annual report of the Regents of the University, soon to be communicated to the Legislature, will fully exhibit the condition of the colleges and academies of the State. Notwithstanding the stringency of the times the aggregate attendance in the colleges is somewhat greater, and but little less in the academies, than during former years. Some institutions of either class are adequately endowed, and others are making vigorous efforts to secure such an amount of productive funds as will place them on a secure financial basis.

THE STATE LIBRARY AND MUSEUM OF NATURAL HISTORY.

The Regents of the University, as trustees of the State Library and State Museum of Natural History, will report their condition, in detail, at an early day. Valuable additions to both have been made during the past year, the library having increased to more than 100,000 volumes. In the departments of law and American history it is unsurpassed by any other State library of the Union.

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

From the report of the Adjutant-General, as well as from my own limited observation, I learn that the condition of the National Guard is entirely satisfactory. The appropriations made for its support and improvement have been carefully and judiciously expended. The organization, spirit and discipline of the officers and men were never better. The improvements in rifle practice, to which special attention has been given during the past year, have been of a very gratifying character, and will be continued. At a comparatively small annual cost the National Guard is kept in such a condition of organization and discipline as to constitute a nucleus around which a large force could, if necessary, be gathered and made effective in a very short time.

At the present time the National Guard consists of eight divisions, eighteen brigades, one regiment and eleven separate troops of cavalry; one battalion and eleven separate batteries of artillery; twenty-five regiments, twelve battalions and eighteen separate companies of infantry — in all comprising 1,546 commissioned officers and 19,878 non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates, making an aggregate force of 21,424, showing an increase of 2,011 over the aggregate of last year.

REDUCTION OF TAXES.

In 1873 the State tax was.....	$14,800,908 38
In 1874 the State tax was.....	15,727,482 08
In 1875 the State tax was.....	14,206,680 61
In 1876 the State tax was.....	8,529,174 32

The large reduction of taxes for State purposes, shown by the above statement, is due in some measure to the reduced amount required for the bounty debt, but mainly to the stopping of expenditures for new works and extraordinary repairs upon the canals, and to the other reforms and economies which have been inaugurated and enforced during the last two years. By a rigid adherence to this policy the taxes may be still further reduced during the present year. Unless the people permit a renewal of the wasteful expenditures of former years, they will hereafter have no cause to complain of the amount of State taxes. The load which oppresses them most heavily will be found at their own doors in their town, county and city taxes. When they have the courage to look these in the face, and insist upon their reduction within reasonable limits, they will obtain the full measure of relief to which they are entitled.

The rate of taxation for the current fiscal year was fixed by the Legislature at its last session at three and eleven-twenty-fourths mills. For the next fiscal year it is estimated that two and three-quarter mills will be sufficient. But this estimate is based upon the assumption that the Legislature will decline to make appropriations which are not required for the legitimate expenses of government.

INCREASED VALUATIONS.

The State Assessors inform me that there will be a very large increase in the valuations, especially in the agricultural districts, carrying the total valuations for the whole State up to the probable amount of about $2,800,000,000. This extraordinary increase is of doubtful propriety. It seems to be an effort to follow upward the unnatural prices caused by the currency inflation, at a time when the inflation has produced its inevitable disasters, and when prices are rapidly falling nearer to actual values. The effect of the increase is to render it uncertain what amount any specified rate will produce. Instead, therefore, of levying specific rates for particular objects, which may produce too much or too little, it would be better to appropriate the amounts required, and fix a rate sufficient to cover them, so that, if there be a surplus, it shall remain in the treasury.

The efforts of the assessors should be not so much to increase valuations as to produce a just and equitable distribution of the burdens of taxation among the people. When this point is gained it is of little importance whether the valuations are above or below what are called actual values. For many obvious reasons it would be better that they should be below rather than above. The true value of property is rarely known. It is not a matter of fact, but of opinion. Hence it is always estimated, and the tendency usually is to estimate too high.

EXEMPTING CHURCHES, ETC.

It is proper to refer in this connection to propositions which are sometimes made to increase the valuation by changing the policy which has always prevailed in this State of exempting churches, schools and hospitals from taxation. I cannot too strongly express my disapproval of any such change. Our people of all classes and all creeds have surrounded themselves with these institutions of civilization which are foremost in the influences that diminish the expense of government by lessening the infractions of law. They should not be discouraged by the imposition of burdens from which they have hitherto been exempt.

SURPLUS OF THE BANKS.

Taxing the whole surplus of the banks in addition to their capital is neither equal justice nor sound policy. Besides compelling them to pay more than their fair proportion, it induces them to divide their surplus among the stockholders, thereby diminishing the security which it gives to the public so long as it is held by the banks. In times like the present the exigencies of every day may diminish both surplus and security. The subject is submitted to your careful consideration and wise discretion.

LEGISLATION IN APPROPRIATION BILLS.

A very objectionable practice has grown up of inserting general legislation in appropriation bills. The effect of it, is to conceal legislative provisions in places where they ought not to be and where the public generally do not think of looking for them. It also puts it beyond the power of the Governor to withhold his approval from such provisions unless he vetoes the whole appropriation bill in which they are contained. I trust that the practice will be discontinued altogether, and that the question may not be presented as to whether such provisions shall become law, or whether the appropriation bills containing them shall be returned disapproved.

THE STATE SURVEY.

Several instances of the pernicious mode of legislating above referred to will be found in the "supply bill" passed at the last session. The most conspicuous among them is the provision for instituting and organizing "an accurate trigonometric and topographical survey of the State." Without any application by the people, with no appreciable evil to remedy, with no practical inconvenience in the experience of a hundred years, and at a period of great pecuniary embarrassment, a plan is enacted in an appropriation bill for embarking the State, against the wishes of its people, in a work which promises to run through half a century, and to cost an unlimited amount of money. The mode and the matter of the enactment are alike objectionable, and I recommend the prompt repeal of that portion of the supply bill.

THE CURRENCY.

The vast agricultural, manufacturing, commercial and financial interests of the State make a sound and stable currency a matter of the highest importance. It is, however, of little use to enter into any extended discussion of the subject here. The country has been deluged with essays in regard to it, and all intelligent readers have as much information as they can hope for from such sources. So far as legislation can produce any effect, it must be looked for in congress; the State is, of course, powerless in that direction. Fifteen years ago, wise action in the national legislature would have saved the country from the universal collapse which has fallen upon all business pursuits. At that time the whole amount of currency in circulation in the United States was estimated at between two and three hundred millions of dollars. Within four years from that time, the amount was carried up to nearly eight hundred millions, and has hitherto been kept up to over seven hundred millions. The result is the same as has always been produced by similar experiments, ever since a circulating medium has been known and used in the commercial world. There was a rapid rise of prices, wild speculations, all branches of business unduly stimulated, over-trading, luxurious habits of living, general demoralization, followed by the inevitable revulsions, wide-spread bankruptcy, suspension of industries, and multitudes of people deprived of employment and of the means of supporting life. Whilst we can only look to Congress for any legislative measures of relief from this state of things, it is quite evident that very little can be hoped for in that way. Substantial relief will only be obtained by a correction of the bad habits into which we have been led; by a return, if need be, to the simplest industries, to a reduction of all unnecessary expenditures, and a rigid economy, both in public and in private life.

RAILROAD REPORTS.

Complaints are frequent among persons interested, both stockholders and bondholders, that the reports now rendered by railroad companies, including those operating street roads, are not in such forms as to afford a clear and satisfactory view of their condition. These corporations being creatures of the State, endowed with great privileges, it is right that we should require from time to time, from each one of them, a full and clear exposition of its situation. Companies whose affairs are in a good condition will have no objection to this being made known, and it is due to the people that if any are unsound their condition should be exposed as promptly as may be. Concealment of such a state of facts from all but a few principal managers will often enable those who are most to blame for waste and loss to shift the burden thereof upon the shoulders of innocent persons.

A memorial has been sent to me, addressed to you and to the Legislature of all the New England States, recommending a certain form of returns, which has been agreed upon, after consultation with some prominent railroad companies, in a conference of the commissioners of those States, and the State Engineer and Deputy State Engineer of this State. The memorial is signed by all these parties. One object in view is that the returns shall be of one and the same form in all the States, with the hope, no doubt, that this uniformity will be extended to those of the whole country. It is obvious that where the line of a railroad extends into two States, as is frequently the case, it must be more or less inconvenient to the company to make up its statements in two different forms, and that, moreover, there will be advantages to the public in having these returns uniform. I suggest to you an amendment of the general railroad law, giving to the State Engineer the power to prescribe the form of the returns — the same power that is vested in the railroad commissioners in Massachusetts — and such other power pertaining in that State to railroad commissioners as may be necessary to ensure and enforce a proper exposition of the actual condition of these companies. You will be able to judge of this matter better after an examination of the memorial, and the papers accompanying it, which I shall cause to be sent to you. The form upon which the memorialists agreed will be found in the possession of the State Engineer.

INSECURITY OF PLACES OF PUBLIC RESORT.

The recent calamity at the Brooklyn Theater, said to be unequalled in horror by any like event heretofore, calls our attention most forcibly to the duty of providing by law, and by the severest penalties, against such disasters in the future. Those who seek to make money by gathering the people in crowds into their buildings, are bound to take every precaution to insure their absolute safety. The Legislature should enact regulations for all such buildings, so as to provide for the prompt suppression of fire and rapid egress for the crowd in case of alarm. In fact, the provision for safety and for exit should be so complete and so manifest that panics would not occur.

The danger is not limited to theatres and places of public amusement; rooms used for lectures or for public meetings, our large school-houses and even churches are, for the most part, so constructed that in case of panic a large number of the crowd within is likely to be fatally injured in the fierce, natural struggle to escape.

The buildings owned by the public are as faulty as those used for private purposes. We are familiar with one or more fatal disasters among the children who, in cities, are crowded into four-story school-houses.

Attention should, also, be given to the security of passengers in cases of fire upon steamboats and railway trains.

Nothing more than this brief allusion to the topic can be necessary. Even without it, I am confident that you would promptly have given your attention to the subject.

MUNICIPAL REFORM.

The report of the commission, appointed by my predecessor, to consider the subject of the government of cities, has not yet been received. I hope that I shall be enabled to present it to you early in your present session. In some respects the government of the city of New York is in almost a chaotic condition; appropriations of money are regulated, not by the Common Council, but by a board of four persons, of whom only one is chosen by the people. The distribution of administrative and legislative powers is imperfect and uncertain. An out-going mayor has power to appoint, in some cases, subordinate administrative officers for a term exceeding that of the incoming mayor. Of the enormous debt resting upon the city, as I learn from one of the commissioners, the amount of $85,000,000 has been created by direct action of the State Legislature, without being asked for or approved by the common council of the city or the board of supervisors of the county, or by its taxpayers or its people. There are twenty-one of these objectionable laws still in force, under which the full amount of debt authorized by them has not, as yet, been contracted. It would be well to examine into this matter at once for the purpose of repealing such of these acts as, in your judgment, should not be left in force. In some of the acts the amount of indebtedness has no limit, but it is provided that, on the simple requisition of a subordinate administrative department, bonds of the city may be issued, provided that they do not exceed a certain sum per annum. The number of years during which the acts may continue to apply is not defined. The laws referred to are, in many instances, imperative, requiring the debt to be contracted.

The evil practice of commanding the creation of debt for local purposes, by local governments, is not confined to laws relating to the city of New York alone. Upon our statute book will be found many acts "authorizing and requiring" boards of supervisors, trustees of villages and the like, not only to levy extraordinary local taxes, for purely local purposes, but to incur indebtedness for such purposes. The duty of the Legislature in such matters is properly defined in article 8, section 9, of the Constitution, which says: "It shall be the duty of the Legislature to provide for the organization of cities and incorporated villages, and to restrict their power of taxation, contracting debts," etc. Whenever the Legislature undertakes to impose on a neighborhood local taxes or local indebtedness for local purposes, it assumes to have a knowledge of the case which none can have except those who live in the neighborhood affected. It undertakes to discharge the functions of village trustees, town officers, city aldermen or supervisors of counties; for which functions the men selected especially for these places are better fitted. Whatever evils may occasionally appear in local government should be remedied by the people at home, upon whom the responsibility should rest.

CORRUPT USE OF MONEY IN ELECTIONS.

The Constitution and laws of this State contain many very stringent and excellent provisions for securing the purity of the ballot box and preventing the corrupt use of money in elections. The penalties which they inflict upon those criminals who violate them are very severe. It is, however, apparent that in every important election the laws upon this subject are grossly violated, or evaded. I recommend a thorough re-examination and revision of them with a view of rendering convictions more certain and with additional and severer penalties. So vitally important is the preservation of the purity of elections to the permanent existence of our form of government, that in my opinion any man who buys or sells a vote should be forever thereafter disfranchised and subjected to such other penalties as will be most likely to prevent the commission of the crime.

BETTING UPON ELECTIONS.

Another gigantic evil, closely allied to the corrupt use of money, is the practice of betting upon the results of elections. This practice has always existed to some extent; but it, and the evils resulting from it, have recently been developed to an alarming extent. It is unquestionably true that many millions of dollars were staked upon the result of the late election. Every person interested in such bets had a strong motive for corrupting and bribing voters, and there is no doubt that many yielded to the temptation. The heat and excitement of the contest were also greatly intensified by the same cause. I recommend the enactment of a law, with severe penalties, entirely prohibiting all bets, direct, or indirect, upon the result of any election.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS.

The recent presidential election threatens to prove an epoch of solemn portent in our history. For the first time in the twenty-two elections which have been held for President and Vice-President of the United States, the result remains a subject of controversy after the canvass of the votes within the States has been made and announced. The two houses of Congress have been heretofore repeatedly required to pass upon the authenticity and validity of electoral votes, but in no former instance has the election turned upon the questionable votes. In every former case the result has been determined by electoral votes which were not in controversy. In the present instance one candidate for President and one candidate for Vice-President have received 184 undisputed electoral votes, as well as a popular majority exceeding a quarter of a million. Another candidate for President and another candidate for Vice-President have received 165 undisputed electoral votes. All the votes of three States—four in Florida, eight in Louisiana and seven in South Carolina—making nineteen in all, are still in dispute; also one of the three votes of Oregon. In all these cases two sets of returns have been “transmitted to the seat of government, directed to the President of the Senate,” to await the action of the two houses of Congress whose duty it is to verify, ascertain and count the electoral votes.

In a situation involving such momentous results as the chief magistracy of this republic, all the baser as well as the better forces of society are naturally embattled to secure the prize. It is in such crises of history that the controlling force of cardinal principles is liable to be weakened, dangerous concessions to be made, perilous precedents established, sacred traditions violated, and the most important bulwarks of constitutional freedom rendered less secure.

In Louisiana we have seen a State government imposed on the people by the military force of the federal executive, under color of a pretended order of a federal judge, which order in itself was void, and which led to the resignation of the judge who made it, to escape impeachment. We have seen the government thus imposed by military force condemned as illegal and a mere usurpation, by both houses of Congress, and the electoral votes given under its auspices, rejected in the counting of the presidential votes in 1873 by the concurrent judgment of the same tribunal. We have seen the government so imposed create “a returning board” practically vested with absolute power to revise and, if they please, to reverse the results of the election by the people of the State, and thus organize a political mechanism under which an oligarchy in temporary possession of the legislative power of a State might perpetuate their ascendancy indefinitely.

I pause here in this statement to interpose, in behalf of the people of this great commonwealth, a solemn denial of the power of any State government or of the federal government to vest such powers as are claimed by the Louisiana returning board in any canvassing board whatever.

In the first place, such powers in respect to the choice of presidential electors are not warranted by, but are repugnant to the Constitution of the United States. The provision of section 1 of article 2 of that instrument, “that each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, its presidential electors,” does not confer on the Legislature of a State an unlimited power over the subject. No one will pretend that a temporary majority in the Legislature of a State could grant to an individual or to a set of individuals, the power to appoint presidential electors; that it could make this grant for a period of years, or indefinitely, or to his or their heirs or assigns.

What it cannot do in form it cannot do in substance; what it cannot do directly it cannot do indirectly. The choice which a Legislature is authorized to make for a State, in the mode of appointing presidential electors, is limited to a mere selection between certain known forms of action, recognized in the practice of popular government, and consistent with the nature of popular government. It is a choice of modes, but must not change or destroy the essential character of the thing itself. It is subject to the condition that "the State shall appoint" the presidential electors. The State, that is, the political community known in our jurisprudence and constitutional law by that name, must "appoint," and in doing so it must act by and through its known and rightful organs. At the time this provision of the federal Constitution was adopted, it was contemplated that the Legislature of a State possessing all the governmental powers not withdrawn by the provisions of the State Constitution, or transferred to the government of the Union, might itself choose the electors. And, indeed, that was the mode at first generally practiced by the States. The State Legislature at that time was regarded as the most natural and the legitimate organ of the State. The power to choose presidential electors might properly be conferred upon the people of the State by a general ticket, the voters throughout the State choosing all the electors; or they might be chosen by the people of the State voting in districts, each district choosing one elector. These were methods consonant with the principles of our system of government, and by either of which it could be properly said that the State did, in fact, "appoint" the electors.

It is historically certain that these different modes were in the contemplation of the convention which formed the Constitution. Experiencing some difficulty, however, in imposing this duty upon all the States by any one uniform system, it devolved upon the Legislatures of each State the authority to choose from among these methods, one for the exercise of that power which it granted in declaring that "each State shall appoint."

While the Legislature of a State may provide that presidential electors shall be appointed by an election of the people, it cannot provide that that election shall not be a reality; that it shall be a sham, and that the actual power of determining the choice shall be invested in a packed committee, whether it be called a "returning board," or by any other name.

Neither can it invest a board of canvassers with indefinite or with arbitrary powers, nor with any authority which, by the principles and practice of our jurisprudence, and the policy of our elective system are not fairly incident to the function of ascertaining the vote of the people. This seems to me to be the obvious, the wise interpretation of the Constitution of the United States and of its laws. Any other doctrine will open the way to abuses, frauds and usurpations, which must end in destroying popular elections. The moment we depart from a strict construction of grants of power in derogation of the integrity and efficiency of the elective system, we shall be able to find no rule that will protect the rights of the people. We shall tempt transient majorities to seek to prolong their power by tampering with the machinery of elections, and the easiest, most convenient and most effectual method for such a purpose is by the contrivance of returning boards, which shall be packed and equipped with powers hitherto unknown to our laws and practically subversive of the will of the people.

In the particular case of Louisiana, other equally grave illegalities are believed to exist. The powers vested in the returning board are inconsistent with the provision in the Constitution of that State which guarantees the elective franchise to voters, and also with the provision which confers the judicial power upon the courts. It is probable that the powers of this board, by the law of Louisiana, do not apply to presidential electors; that the board itself was not constituted in accordance with the law under which it was created; and finally, that a condition, without which the returning board could not get jurisdiction in the cases where it assumed to reject votes of whole districts, was not complied with. There is every reason to believe that the authority exercised by that returning board is void, as repugnant to the Constitution of the United States, and also to the Constitution and laws of Louisiana.

In this state of the law, that returning board, according to public statements of conceded facts, by manipulations of the returns, have changed a majority for one set of presidential electors of about 9,000 to a majority for another set of about 4,000, which would be equivalent to a change of over 80,000 votes in the State of New York.

In Florida we have seen a board of State canvassers, solemnly adjudged by the highest court in the State to possess none but ministerial powers, assume the authority to reverse the choice of electors as shown on the face of the returns made by the officers who conducted the elections and received the votes; and to do this in open disobedience and contempt of the judicial tribunal having jurisdiction in such matters, and vested with the right of final judgment.

In South Carolina we have seen the board of State canvassers fabricating a canvass in like disobedience and contempt of the Supreme Court having jurisdiction and the right of final judgment; we have seen federal soldiery take possession of the capitol of the State, and a corporal at the door determining who were the elect of the people and who were to be permitted to represent them as legislators. Notwithstanding some of these acts have been disavowed by the federal executive, no mark of disapprobation has been put upon the authors of the outrages; the officer in command goes still unrebuked, and when the returning board were committed to prison for contempt, by the highest court in the State, a judge of the United States District Court is sent down to South Carolina, and, without jurisdiction in the case, grants a writ of habeas corpus, and discharges the offenders. These proceedings are the more extraordinary and alarming when we consider that such violations of law and of right have been resorted to to overturn elections, all the officers conducting which, were of the same political party with the candidates in whose favor these acts have been committed; that the elections were held under the surveillance of troops of the United States, without any constitutional warrant for their presence, and that the judicial decisions thus set at naught cannot be suspected of any partisan bias, for they were rendered both in Florida and South Carolina by judges all of whom were of the same political party with the returning board.

These interferences of the military power have been committed in flagrant violation of the Constitution and laws. They were not provoked by domestic violence; they were not invited in the only way that would have made them constitutional, by the Legislature of the State; and they were continued after the election was over and during all the subsequent proceedings of the canvassing board. Their tendency was to overawe the voter under the pretense of keeping the peace, though by measures in themselves unlawful, and to deliver dishonest officials from the natural sense of responsibility and the natural timidity in regard to the consequences of their acts, which are providential limitations to men's conceptions of the crimes upon which they may venture.

While these things were going on in the South a member of the Cabinet at Washington was acting as chairman of a partisan National Committee, and with the co-operation of some of his colleagues in the Cabinet, counselling and systematically stimulating these desperate measures.

The result which these proceedings seem designed to accomplish cannot be secured without one farther step in the processes of usurpation. The fabrication of electoral votes amounts to nothing unless they can be counted by the tribunal whose constitutional duty it is to verify and authenticate them. That inexorable necessity has given birth to a new device for counting the votes, not only unknown to the Constitution but in conflict with the construction hitherto always accepted, and with the invariable practice and precedents. That device is for the President of the Senate to usurp the power of determining what votes shall be counted and what shall not be counted, and to exercise that power in disregard of the orders of the two houses. It would not be credible that so monstrous a claim as this could be seriously asserted if leading Senators had not publicly avowed it.

Nothing could be more abhorrent to the spirit of our system of government than such a one-man power. The President of the Senate is elected by the Senators, and they in turn are elected by the State legislators. He is, therefore, three removes from the people. If such a power were to have been vested in a single man, a depository would have been chosen not so far removed from popular accountability. But the people of this country will never vest such a power in any one man, however selected. They will never consent to a new construction of the Constitution and laws that bears such fruit. They will stand firmly in the ancient ways, and insist that the electoral votes in this emergency shall be counted as they have always been counted, by the two houses of Congress, and by nobody else. They will look with just suspicion upon the purposes of any who would propose to depart from the precedents which have been hallowed by time, and the uniform practice of the republic from its foundation.

The Constitution of the United States confers upon the President of the Senate no power whatever in respect to the counting of the electoral votes, except "in presence of the Senate and House of Representatives," to "open" all the certificates which may be transmitted by the colleges to the seat of government, directed to him.

The Constitution confers upon the President of the Senate no power to determine the authenticity and validity of an electoral vote, or to interfere in any wise with any such question.

No President of the Senate has ever claimed or exercised such a power at any of the twenty-one presidential elections that have occurred under our Constitution.

The mode of procedure for the counting of electoral votes has been invariably regulated by the two houses of Congress, by concurrent resolution or standing rules adopted before the count. Those resolutions or rules have prescribed every step in the whole process; every function of the tellers and of the President of the Senate, whenever any additional service, even of the most formal sort, has been required of him.

In every instance the counting has been conducted in conformity with the procedure thus prescribed by the two houses; by servants designated by the two houses under instructions and in the presence of the two houses, and with the entire concurrence and the implicit obedience of every President of the Senate who has participated in these ceremonies.

So often as any question has arisen as to the authenticity or validity of an electoral vote, the two houses have assumed and exercised the exclusive power to act upon and determine that question. They have, in contemplation of law, themselves made every count; they have from the first, assumed exclusive jurisdiction to regulate and govern the whole transaction by temporary concurrent orders adopted for the occasion, by standing joint rules and by the enactment of laws. Such has been the uniform and uninterrupted course of precedents, the invariable practice of the government, and the official exposition of the Constitution which has been deliberately adopted, invariably acted upon, and universally accepted.

No fitter repository of all such powers as are vested in or must of necessity be exercised by the government, can be found than the two houses of Congress. They are not only the general agents of the people under our representative system, but in case of the failure of a choice of President and Vice-President by the electoral colleges, they are expressly charged by the Constitution with the duty of making the election.

The people of the United States will never consent to have their Representatives in Congress stripped of these powers, or tolerate this usurpation by a deputy of the Senate, or by any single person, and still less by an officer who is frequently interested as a candidate in the result of the count.

In this sentiment and purpose the State of New York cordially concurs. Foremost among all our American commonwealths in population, in the variety and extent of her industries and interests, she has in every vicissitude of public affairs put forth all her strength, moral and physical, to maintain the existence and the just authorities of the Union. and she can never consent that the time-consecrated methods of constitutional government shall be supplanted or overthrown by revolutionary expedients.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, ALBANY, January 9, 1877. }

HON. WILLIAM DORSHEIMER, President of the Senate :

DEAR SIR. — I have received from the Secretary of State a communication from which the following is an extract :

“I wish to call your attention to the very imperfect condition in which the bills from the Legislature frequently come to this office. They are not only often carelessly written and punctuated, but erasures are freely made by the engrossing clerk, which are calculated not only to throw serious doubt upon their authenticity, but bring all through whose hands they pass in all time to come, under the possible suspicion of tampering with them.”

The Secretary of State also caused several specimens of the alterations referred to to be exhibited to me. The great impropriety of them is apparent. There is nothing to show when, or by whom, they were made. The probability is that they were made by the engrossing clerks, for the purpose of saving themselves the labor of engrossing the bills anew. However this may be, I think it my duty to call the attention of the presiding officers of the Senate and Assembly to the matter, and to say that I shall feel constrained to disapprove any bill in which such alterations appear.

I am, with great respect, yours, etc.,
L. ROBINSON.

The Senate then went into executive session, and after some time spent therein, the doors were opened, and the Senate resumed legislative business.

Mr. Woodin offered the following:

Whereas, The annual message of his Excellency, the Governor, invites the attention of the Legislature to the questions growing out of the recent Presidential election; and

Whereas, The Constitution of the United States provides that in the election of the President "each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress," which electors are to meet and cast the vote of the State, and certify and transmit the same to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate; therefore

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That this provision fixes the intent of the Constitution that the several States shall determine, each for itself, the mode of appointing the electors, and of lawfully establishing who are appointed; and that the vote of the electors thus appointed and lawfully certified shall be received and counted as the vote of the State.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That a majority of the votes of the electors thus appointed by the several States, and meeting in their respective States in conformity with law on the sixth day of December last, determined the election of President and Vice-President of the United States, and that it only remains to make lawful declaration of the result so determined.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That every State in full and undisturbed relations with the Union is entitled to participate in the election of President, and that the lawfully certified votes of its electors, appointed in the manner directed by its Legislature and subject only to the constitutional conditions, represent and embody the expressed will of the State, in accordance with the principle enunciated by Daniel Webster, "that the will of the people must prevail when it is ascertained," and that the only mode of ascertaining that will is "by some regular rule of proceeding prescribed by previous law."

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the declaration of the result of the Presidential election should be strictly governed by the principles of the Constitution, and by the established usage and practice under it; that the action of the Convention which framed the Constitution in organizing the new government thus created, when they resolved that "the Senators should appoint a President of the Senate for the sole purpose of receiving, opening and counting the votes for President;" that the argument of Charles Pinckney, a distinguished member of the Convention, made in the debates of 1800, in which he stated that "in the Federal Convention great care was taken to provide for the election of President independently of Congress, to take the business, as far as possible, out of their hands;" that the opinion of Henry Clay, expressed in subsequent debate, in which he declared that, unless the two Houses agreed upon a different method, "the President of the Senate would proceed to open and count the votes;" that the opinion of Chancellor Kent, which, for half a century, has remained unchallenged and unquestioned, in which he held that, "in the absence of legislative provision on the subject, the President of the Senate counts the votes and determines the result," combine to interpret the intent of the framers of the Constitution. Without going beyond its appropriate province, the Legislature of New York earnestly insists that no partisan effort should be suffered to defeat or embarrass the orderly course of law, which is so essential to the welfare and perpetuity of the Republic.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the lawful declaration of the result of the election of President, as determined by the vote of a majority of the electors on the sixth day of December last, is binding upon all, and that in making such declaration and in upholding the Constitution and laws, the National authorities are entitled to the support of every patriotic citizen.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That any threat to disregard the result of the Presidential election and its lawful declaration, is incendiary in spirit and revolutionary in character; that every attempt to inflame partisan feeling and excite political passions upon a question which has passed beyond the appropriate arena of partisan conflict and remains only to be declared according to truth and law, calls for unqualified condemnation; and that the united voice of the people must enforce, as the supreme obligation of the hour, the duty of prompt and unhesitating acceptance of the legal determination.

Ordered, That said resolutions be laid upon the table.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver said bill to the Assembly, and request their concurrence therein.

The President announced the special order, being the concurrent resolutions in the words following :

Whereas, The annual message of his Excellency, the Governor, invites the attention of the Legislature to the questions growing out of the recent Presidential election ; and

Whereas, The Constitution of the United States provides that in the election of the President "each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress," which electors are to meet and cast the vote of the State, and certify and transmit the same to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate ; therefore

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That this provision fixes the intent of the Constitution that the several States shall determine, each for itself, the mode of appointing the electors, and of lawfully establishing who are appointed; and that the vote of the electors thus appointed and lawfully certified shall be received and counted as the vote of the State.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That a majority of the votes of the electors thus appointed by the several States, and meeting in their respective States in conformity with law on the sixth day of December last, determined the election of President and Vice-President of the United States, and that it only remains to make lawful declaration of the result so determined.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That every State in full and undisturbed relations with the Union is entitled to participate in the election of President, and that the lawfully certified votes of its electors, appointed in the manner directed by its Legislature and subject only to the constitutional conditions, represent and embody the expressed will of the State, in accordance with the principle enunciated by Daniel Webster, "that the will of the people must prevail when it is ascertained," and that the only mode of ascertaining that will is "by some regular rule of proceeding prescribed by previous law."

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the declaration of the result of the Presidential election should be strictly governed by the principles of the Constitution, and by the established usage and practice under it; that the action of the Convention which framed the Constitution in organizing the new government thus created, when they resolved that "the Senators should appoint a President of the Senate for the sole purpose of receiving, opening and counting the votes for President;" that the argument of Charles Pinckney, a distinguished member of the Convention, made in the debates of 1800, in which he stated that "in the Federal Convention great care was taken to provide for the election of President independently of Congress, to take the business, as far as possible, out of their hands;" that the opinion of Henry Clay, expressed in subsequent debate, in which he declared that, unless the two Houses agreed upon a different method, "the President of the Senate would proceed to open and count the votes;" that the opinion of Chancellor Kent, which, for half a century, has remained unchallenged and unquestioned, in which he held that, "in the absence of legislative provision on the subject, the President of the Senate counts the votes and determines the result," combine to interpret the intent of the framers of the Constitution. Without going beyond its appropriate province, the Legislature of New York earnestly insists that no partisan effort should be allowed to defeat or embarrass the orderly course of law, which is so essential to the welfare and perpetuity of the Republic.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the lawful declaration of the result of the election of President, as determined by the vote of a majority of the electors on the sixth day of December last, is binding upon all, and that in making such declaration and in upholding the Constitution and laws, the National authorities are entitled to the support of every patriotic citizen.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That any threat to disregard the result of the Presidential election and its lawful declaration, is incendiary in spirit and revolutionary in character; that every attempt to inflame partisan feeling and excite political passions upon a question which has passed beyond the appropriate arena of partisan conflict and remains only to be declared according to truth and law, calls for unqualified condemnation ; and that the united voice of the people must enforce, as the supreme obligation of the hour, the duty of prompt and unhesitating acceptance of the legal determination.

Mr. Kennaday moved that the consideration of said resolutions be postponed until Tuesday next.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the negative, as follows :

The Senate again met.

The Senate again resumed the consideration of the concurrent resolution, relative to the subject of national affairs, referred to in the Governor's message.

Mr. Schoonmaker moved that said resolution be amended so as to read as follows:

Whereas, A crisis of the gravest character has arisen in our National affairs, growing out of the recent presidential election, and the constitutional and just mode of ascertaining and declaring the true result, involving wide diversity of public sentiment, and calling for the subordination of partisan purposes and personal aims, to the exercise of patriotism and wise statesmanship; and

Whereas, "It is impossible to estimate the material loss the country daily sustains from the existing state of uncertainty, inasmuch as it directly and powerfully tends to unsettle and paralyze business, to weaken public and private credit, and to create apprehensions in the minds of the people that disturb the peaceful tenor of their ways and their pursuit of happiness, as well as to bring republican institutions into discredit, and to create doubts of the success of our form of government, and of the perpetuity of the republic;" and,

Whereas, "Upon just principles of civil institutions, however important it may be deemed whether one citizen or another shall be the chief magistrate for a prescribed period, it is of far greater moment that the will of the people, lawfully expressed in the choice of that officer, shall be ascertained and carried into effect in a lawful way; and all considerations of interest, of patriotism and of justice unite in demanding of the law making power of the nation a measure that will bring peace and prosperity to the country, and show that our republican institutions are equal to any emergency;" and

Whereas, The joint committee of the two houses of Congress, charged with the great duty of preparing a constitutional and lawful mode of ascertaining and giving effect to the will of the people expressed by their votes, have, in a spirit of patriotism and statesmanship worthy of the Fathers of the Republic, matured and reported a measure for that purpose that promises a settlement of existing disputes, that will be just, that will carry with it the sanction of law, and command the acquiescence of all patriotic and law abiding citizens.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the plan proposed by the joint committee of the two houses of Congress for the peaceful and prompt settlement of the controverted questions relating to the last presidential election, is approved by the Legislature of the State of New York, and is commended to the people as a measure honorable to all parties, and designed to secure, by constitutional and lawful methods, a just and unbiased determination, to preserve the peace of the country and to restore confidence and prosperity in business pursuits; and that the senators and representatives in Congress from the State of New York are respectfully requested to give to said measure their earnest support.

Pending which,

Mr. Wagstaff moved that the Senate do now adjourn.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the negative.

The members of either house shall also receive the sum of one dollar for every ten miles they shall travel, in going to and returning from their place of meeting once in each session on the most usual route. Senators, when the Senate alone is convened in extraordinary session, or when serving as members of the court for the trial of impeachment, and such members of the Assembly, not exceeding nine in number, as shall be appointed managers of an impeachment, shall receive an additional allowance of ten dollars a day.

Mr. Lamont moved that said resolution be referred to the committee on the judiciary.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Woodin moved that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the concurrent resolutions and the proposed amendments thereto, in the words following:

Whereas, The annual message of his excellency, the Governor, invites the attention of the Legislature to the questions growing out of the recent presidential election; and,

Whereas, The Constitution of the United States provides that in the election of the President each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress, which electors are to meet and cast the vote of the State, and certify and transmit the same to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate; therefore

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That this provision fixes the intent of the Constitution, that the several States shall determine each for itself the mode of appointing the electors and of lawfully establishing who are appointed; and that the vote of the electors thus appointed and lawfully certified shall be received and counted as the vote of the State.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That a majority of the votes of the electors thus appointed by the several States, and meeting in their respective States in conformity with law, on the sixth day of December last, determined the election of President and Vice-President of the United States, and that it only remains to make lawful declaration of the result so determined.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That every State in full and undisturbed relations with the Union is entitled to participate in the election of President, and that the lawfully certified votes of its electors appointed in the manner directed by its Legislature and subject only to the constitutional conditions, represent and embody the expressed will of the State in accordance with the principles enunciated by Daniel Webster, "that the will of the people must prevail when it is ascertained," and that the only mode of ascertaining that will is "by some regular rule of proceeding prescribed by previous law."

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the declaration of the result of the presidential election should be strictly governed by the principles of the Constitution and by the established usages and practices under it; that the action of the convention which framed the Constitution in organizing the new government thus created, when they resolved that the "Senators should appoint a President of the Senate for the sole purpose of receiving, opening and counting the votes for President;" that the argument of Charles Pinckney, a distinguished member of the convention, made in the debates of 1800, in which he stated that "in the federal convention great care was taken to provide for the election of president independently of Congress; to take the business, as far as possible, out of their hands;" that the opinion of Henry Clay, expressed in subsequent debate, in which he declared that, unless the two houses agreed upon a different method, "the President of the Senate would proceed to open and count the votes;" that the opinion of Chancellor Kent, which, for half a century, has remained unchallenged and unquestioned, in which "he held that, in the absence of legislative provision on the subject, the President of the Senate counts the votes and determines the result," combine to interpret the intent of the framers of the Constitution. Without going beyond its appropriate province, the Legislature of New York earnestly insists that no partisan efforts should be allowed to defeat or embarrass the orderly course of law which is so essential to the welfare and perpetuity of the republic.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the lawful declaration of the result of the election of President, as determined by the vote of a majority of the electors on the sixth day of December last is binding upon all, and that in making such declaration and in upholding the Constitution and the laws, the national authorities are entitled to the support of every patriotic citizen.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That any threat to disregard the result of the presidential election, and its lawful declaration, is incendiary in spirit and revolutionary in character; that every attempt to inflame partisan feeling, and excite political passions, upon a question which has passed beyond the appropriate arena of partisan conflict, and remains only to be declared according to truth and law, calls for unqualified condemnation, and the united voice of the people must enforce, as the supreme obligation of the hour, the duty of prompt and unhesitating acceptance of the legal determination.

Amendment proposed by Mr. Jacobs:

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That we approve the bill now before Congress providing for a determination of all questions relating to the electoral vote, as a wise, statesmanlike and patriotic measure, and we hereby request the Senators and Representatives from New York to support said bill.

Amendment proposed by Mr. Schoonmaker:

Whereas, A crisis of the gravest character has arisen in our national affairs, growing out of the recent presidential election and the constitutional and just mode of ascertaining and declaring the true result, involving wide diversity of public sentiment, and calling for the subordination of partisan purposes and personal aims to the exercise of patriotism and wise statesmanship; and,

Whereas, It is impossible to estimate the material loss the country daily sustains from the existing state of uncertainty, inasmuch as it directly and powerfully tends to unsettle and paralyze business, to weaken public and private credit, and to create apprehensions in the minds of the people that disturb the peaceful tenor of their ways and their pursuit of happiness, as well as to bring republican institutions into discredit, and to create doubts of the success of our form of government and of the perpetuity of the republic; and,

Whereas, Upon just principles of civil institutions, however important it may be deemed whether one citizen or another shall be the chief magistrate for a prescribed period, it is of far greater moment that the will of the people lawfully expressed in the choice of that officer shall be ascertained and carried into effect in a lawful way; and all considerations of interest, of patriotism and of justice unite in demanding of the law-making power of the nation a measure that will bring peace and prosperity to the country, and show that our republican institutions are equal to any emergency; and,

Whereas, The joint committee of the two houses of Congress, charged with the great duty of preparing a constitutional and lawful mode of ascertaining and giving effect to the will of the people expressed by their votes, have, in a spirit of patriotism and statesmanship, worthy of the Fathers of the Republic, matured and reported a measure for that purpose, that promises a settlement of existing disputes that will be just, that will carry with it the sanction of law and command the acquiescence of all patriotic and law-abiding citizens;

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the plan proposed by the joint committee of the two houses of Congress for the peaceful and prompt settlement of the controverted questions relating to the last presidential election is approved by the Legislature of the State of New York, and is commended to the people as a measure honorable to all parties, and designed to secure by constitutional and lawful methods a just and unbiased determination to preserve the peace of the country, and to restore confidence and prosperity in business pursuits, and that the Senators and Representatives in Congress from the State of New York are respectfully requested to give to said measure their earnest support.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion of Mr. Woodin, and it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Starbuck offered the following amendment to the original resolution, which was accepted by Mr. Jacobs in lieu of the one offered by him.

After "Constitution," in line 46 of original resolution, insert "but the President of the Senate is not vested with the power to determine the validity of, and count, any vote which is objected to by either house of Congress."

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to the amendment of Mr. Starbuck, and it was decided in the negative, as follows:

The President put the question whether the Senate would grant said request, and it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Jacobs moved that the further consideration of the resolutions be postponed for one week, to wit, until Wednesday, January thirty-first.

When the name of Mr. Kennaday was called, he asked to be excused from voting, for the reason that he had paired with the Senator from the 31st (Mr. Sprague).

The President put the question whether the Senate would grant said request, and it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Starbuck offered the following as an amendment to the amendment (offered by Mr. Schoonmaker):

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the employment of the federal troops to set up or pull down the governments of sister States, or to determine who are entitled to occupy seats in their Legislatures, is in derogation of the rights of sovereign States; is a violation of the Constitution of the United States; is entirely at war with the genius of our institutions, and if acquiesced in by the people must inevitably result in a military despotism.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the returning board for canvassing votes was the device of a government which was conceived in fraud, which was imposed upon the people of a sister State and is still sustained by federal troops, and which has been justly condemned by both houses of Congress as a mere usurpation; that no State Legislature has any authority, nor can the troops of the federal government confer upon a State Legislature any authority to invest a returning board, or any other board of canvassers by whatever name it may be called, with indefinite or arbitrary powers or with any authority which, by the principle and practice of our jurisprudence and the policy of our elective system, are not fairly incident to the function of ascertaining the vote of the people.

Whereas, The manner of counting the electoral votes of the several States for the office of President and Vice-President has always been directed by the joint direction of the two houses of Congress, and, beginning with the election in 1793, the two houses of Congress have uniformly appointed a joint committee "to ascertain and report a mode of examining the votes for President and Vice-President;" and,

Whereas, Tellers have been invariably designated by the two houses to act as their agents in counting the electoral votes at every presidential election; and,

Whereas, The houses of Congress have uniformly and exclusively exercised the right to object to the counting of electoral votes, and in the exercise of such right have, at different times, counted four votes only on condition that they would not affect the final result and excluded thirteen others altogether; and,

Whereas, No electoral vote has ever been counted without the concurring vote of both houses of Congress; and,

Whereas, No President of the Senate of the United States at any of the twenty-one presidential elections which have been held under the federal Constitution has ever objected to any teller named by either house of Congress, has ever offered a suggestion as to the mode of conducting the count of the electoral vote unless under instructions from the two houses, has ever presumed to disobey the instructions of the two houses, has ever presumed to question their supreme and exclusive authority to determine what votes should be counted and what should not be counted, has ever hesitated faithfully to declare their decisions; and,

Whereas, This interpretation of the constitutional prerogative of the two houses of Congress was deliberately approved and solemnly reasserted by Congress at the second election of President Lincoln in 1865, in what is known as the twenty-second joint rule, which provided, among other things, that "no question shall be decided affirmatively and no votes objected to shall be counted except by the concurrent votes of the two houses," and in accordance with the procedure prescribed in said rule, each of the last three presidential countings have been conducted; and,

Whereas, The power to determine the authenticity and validity of electoral votes, wherever vested by the Constitution, is necessarily an exclusive one, and cannot be diverted from its constitutional channel by legislation or otherwise; therefore,

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the Constitution of the United States has conferred no power upon the President of the Senate of the United States to determine the authenticity or validity of electoral votes.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the two houses of Congress are vested by the Constitution with the exclusive authority to determine the authenticity and validity of electoral votes; that they have always exercised such authority from the foundation of our government; that such power has never been claimed or exercised by any other tribunal, and that any departure from a rule of interpretation, sanctioned by uniform usage at twenty-one successive elections, and by the approval of twenty-one successive federal Congresses, cannot be departed from in the present situation of the country, without bringing the parties to any such transactions, and their motives, under merited suspicion, without accusing every President of the Senate and every Congress of the United States which has participated in counting the electoral votes for President and Vice-President of violating the Constitution, of neglecting powers which did, or usurping powers which did not, belong to them.

Pending which,

Mr. Lamont moved that the Senate do now adjourn.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the negative, as follows:

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That there be printed for the use of the Legislature two thousand (2,000) copies of the recommendations and conclusions of the Commission appointed to take into consideration the subject of the sale or abandonment of the lateral canals.

Ordered, That said resolution be referred to the committee on public printing.

Mr. Woodin moved that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the concurrent resolutions, and the proposed amendments thereto, in the words following :

Whereas, The annual message of his Excellency, the Governor, invites the attention of the Legislature to the questions growing out of the recent presidential election ; and,

Whereas, The Constitution of the United States provides that in the election of the President "each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress," which electors are to meet and cast the vote of the State, and certify and transmit the same to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate ; therefore,

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That this provision fixes the intent of the Constitution that the several States shall determine, each for itself, the mode of appointing the electors, and of lawfully establishing who are appointed ; and that the vote of the electors thus appointed and lawfully certified shall be received and counted as the vote of the State.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That a majority of the votes of the electors thus appointed by the several States, and meeting in their respective States in conformity with law on the sixth day of December last, determined the election of President and Vice-President of the United States, and that it only remains to make lawful declaration of the result so determined.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That every State in full and undisturbed relations with the Union is entitled to participate in the election of President, and that the lawfully certified votes of its electors, appointed in the manner directed by its Legislature and subject only to the constitutional conditions, represent and embody the expressed will of the State, in accordance with the principle enunciated by Daniel Webster, "that the will of the people must prevail when it is ascertained," and that the only mode of ascertaining that will is "by some regular rule of proceeding prescribed by previous law."

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the declaration of the result of the presidential election should be strictly governed by the principles of the Constitution, and by the established usage and practice under it ; that the action of the convention which framed the Constitution in organizing the new government thus created, when they resolved that "the Senators should appoint a President of the Senate for the sole purpose of receiving, opening and counting the votes for President ;"

that the argument of Charles Pinckney, a distinguished member of the convention, made in the debates of 1800, in which he stated that "in the federal convention great care was taken to provide for the election of President independently of Congress, to take the business, as far as possible, out of their hands;" that the opinion of Henry Clay, expressed in subsequent debate, in which he declared that, unless the two houses agreed upon a different method, "the President of the Senate would proceed to open and count the votes;" that the opinion of Chancellor Kent, which, for half a century, has remained unchallenged and unquestioned, in which he held that, "in the absence of legislative provision on the subject, the President of the Senate counts the votes and determines the result," combine to interpret the intent of the framers of the Constitution. Without going beyond its appropriate province, the Legislature of New York earnestly insists that no partisan effort should be allowed to defeat or embarrass the orderly course of law, which is so essential to the welfare and perpetuity of the Republic.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the lawful declaration of the result of the election of President, as determined by the vote of a majority of the electors on the sixth day of December last, is binding upon all, and that in making such declaration and in upholding the Constitution and laws, the national authorities are entitled to the support of every patriotic citizen.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That any threat to disregard the result of the presidential election and its lawful declaration, is incendiary in spirit and revolutionary in character; that every attempt to inflame partisan feeling and excite political passions upon a question which has passed beyond the appropriate arena of partisan conflict and remains only to be declared according to truth and law, calls for unqualified condemnation; and that the united voice of the people must enforce, as the supreme obligation of the hour, the duty of prompt and unhesitating acceptance of the legal determination.

Amendment proposed by Mr. Schoonmaker:

Whereas, A crisis of the gravest character has arisen in our national affairs, growing out of the recent presidential election, and the constitutional and just mode of ascertaining and declaring the true result involving wide diversity of public sentiment, and calling for the subordination of partisan purposes and personal aims, to the exercise of patriotism and wise statesmanship; and,

Whereas, "It is impossible to estimate the material loss the country daily sustains from the existing state of uncertainty, inasmuch as it directly and powerfully tends to unsettle and paralyze business, to weaken public and private credit, and to create apprehensions in the minds of the people that disturb the peaceful tenor of their ways and their pursuit of happiness, as well as to bring republican institutions into discredit, and to create doubts of the success of our form of government, and of the perpetuity of the republic;" and,

Whereas, "Upon just principles of civil institutions, however important it may be deemed whether one citizen or another shall be the chief magistrate for a prescribed period, it is of far greater moment that the will of the people, lawfully expressed in the choice of that officer, shall be ascertained and carried into effect in a lawful way; and all considerations of interest, of patriotism and of justice unite in demanding of the law making power of the nation a measure that will bring peace and prosperity to the country, and show that our republican institutions are equal to any emergency;" and,

Whereas, The joint committee of the two houses of Congress, charged with the great duty of preparing a constitutional and lawful mode of ascertaining and giving effect to the will of the people expressed by their votes, have, in a spirit of patriotism and statesmanship worthy of the Fathers of the Republic, matured and reported a measure for that purpose that promises a settlement of existing disputes, that will be just, that will carry with it the sanction of law, and command the acquiescence of all patriotic and law abiding citizens.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the plan proposed by the joint committee of the two houses of Congress for the peaceful and prompt settlement of the controverted questions relating to the last presidential election, is approved by the Legislature of the State of New York, and is commended to the people as a measure honorable to all parties, and designed to secure, by constitutional and lawful methods, a just and unbiased determination, to preserve the peace of the country and to restore confidence and prosperity in business pursuits; and that the Senators and Representatives in Congress from the State of New York are respectfully requested to give to said measure their earnest support.

Amendment proposed by Mr. Starbuck:

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the employment of the federal troops to set up or pull down the governments of sister States, or to determine who are entitled to occupy seats in their Legislatures, is in derogation of the rights of sovereign States; is a violation of the Constitution of the United States; is entirely at war with the genius of our institutions, and if acquiesced in by the people must inevitably result in a military despotism.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion of Mr. Woodin, and it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Jacobs called for a division of the question on the amendment offered by Mr. Starbuck.

The President stated the question to be upon that portion of said resolutions, in the words following:

Resolved, That the employment of the federal troops to set up or pull down the governments of sister States, or to determine who are entitled to occupy seats in their Legislatures, is in derogation of the rights of sovereign States; is a violation of the Constitution of the United States; is entirely at war with the genius of our institutions, and, if acquiesced in by the people, must inevitably result in a military despotism.

Whereas, The houses of Congress have uniformly and exclusively exercised the right to object to the counting of electoral votes, and in the exercise of such right have, at different times, counted four votes only on condition that they would not affect the final result and excluded thirteen others altogether; and,

Whereas, No electoral vote has ever been counted without the concurring vote of both houses of Congress; and,

Whereas, No President of the Senate of the United States at any of the twenty-one presidential elections which have been held under the federal Constitution has ever objected to any teller named by either house of Congress, has ever offered a suggestion as to the mode of conducting the count of the electoral vote unless under instructions from the two houses, has ever presumed to disobey the instructions of the two houses, has ever presumed to question their supreme and exclusive authority to determine what votes should be counted and what should not be counted, has ever hesitated faithfully to declare their decisions; and,

Whereas, This interpretation of the constitutional prerogative of the two houses of Congress was deliberately approved and solemnly reasserted by Congress at the second election of President Lincoln in 1865, in what is known as the twenty-second joint rule, which provided, among other things, that "no question shall be decided affirmatively and no votes objected to shall be counted except by the concurrent votes of the two houses," and in accordance with the procedure prescribed in said rule, each of the last three presidential countings have been conducted; and,

Whereas, The power to determine the authenticity and validity of electoral votes, wherever vested by the Constitution, is necessarily an exclusive one, and cannot be diverted from its constitutional channel by legislation or otherwise; therefore,

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the Constitution of the United States has conferred no power upon the President of the Senate of the United States to determine the authenticity or validity of electoral votes.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the two houses of Congress are vested by the Constitution with the exclusive authority to determine the authenticity and validity of electoral votes; that they have always exercised such authority from the foundation of our government; that such power has never been claimed or exercised by any other tribunal, and that any departure from a rule of interpretation, sanctioned by uniform usage at twenty-one successive elections, and by the approval of twenty-one successive federal Congresses, cannot be departed from in the present situation of the country, without bringing the parties to any such transactions, and their motives, under merited suspicion, without accusing every President of the Senate and every Congress of the United States which has participated in counting the electoral votes for President and Vice-President of violating the Constitution, of neglecting powers which did, or usurping powers which did not, belong to them.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion of Mr. Woodin, and it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Jacobs called for a division of the question on the amendment offered by Mr. Starbuck.

The President stated the question to be upon that portion of said resolutions, in the words following: -

Resolved, That the employment of the federal troops to set up or pull down the governments of sister States, or to determine who are entitled to occupy seats in their Legislatures, is in derogation of the rights of sovereign States; is a violation of the Constitution of the United States; is entirely at war with the genius of our institutions, and, if acquiesced in by the people, must inevitably result in a military despotism.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said resolution, and it was decided in the negative, as follows :

The President put the question whether the Senate would grant said request, and it was decided in the affirmative.

The President stated the question to be upon agreeing to that portion of the resolutions in the words following :

Resolved, That the returning board for canvassing votes was the device of a government which was conceived in fraud, which was imposed upon the people of a sister State, and is still sustained by federal troops, and which has been justly condemned by both houses of Congress as a mere usurpation ; that no State Legislature has any authority, nor can the troops of the federal government confer upon a State Legislature any authority to invest a returning board, or any other board of canvassers by whatever name it may be called, with indefinite or arbitrary powers, or with any authority which, by the principles and practice of our jurisprudence and the policy of our elective system, are not fairly incident to the function of ascertaining the vote of the people.

The President then stated the question to be upon agreeing to that portion of the resolutions in the words following :

Whereas, The manner of counting the electoral votes of the several States for the offices of President and Vice-President has always been directed by the joint direction of the two houses of Congress ; and, beginning with the election in 1793, the two houses of Congress have uniformly appointed a joint committee "to ascertain and report a mode of examining the votes for President and Vice-President ;" and,

Whereas, Tellers have been invariably designated by the two houses to act as their agents in counting the electoral votes at every presidential election; and,

Whereas, This interpretation of the constitutional prerogative of the two houses of Congress was deliberately approved and solemnly reasserted by Congress at the second election of President Lincoln in 1865, in what is known as the 22d joint rule, which provided among other things, that "no question shall be decided affirmatively, and no votes objected to shall be counted, except by the concurrent votes of the two houses," and in accordance with the procedure prescribed in said rule, each of the last three presidential countings have been conducted; and,

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver said bill to the Assembly, and request their concurrence therein.

Mr. Woodin moved to take from the table the concurrent resolutions and proposed amendments thereto, in the words following:

Whereas, The annual message of his excellency, the Governor, invites the attention of the Legislature to the questions growing out of the recent presidential election; and,

Whereas, The Constitution of the United States provides that in the election of the President each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress, which electors are to meet and cast the vote of the State, and certify and transmit the same to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate; therefore

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That this provision fixes the intent of the Constitution, that the several States shall determine each for itself the mode of appointing the electors and of lawfully establishing who are appointed; and that the vote of the electors thus appointed and lawfully certified shall be received and counted as the vote of the State.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That a majority of the votes of the electors thus appointed by the several States, and meeting in their respective States in conformity with law, on the sixth day of December last, determined the election of President and Vice-President of the United States, and that it only remains to make lawful declaration of the result so determined.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That every State in full and undisturbed relations with the Union is entitled to participate in the election of President, and that the lawfully certified votes of its electors appointed in the manner directed by its Legislature and subject only to the constitutional conditions, represent and embody the expressed will of the State in accordance with the principles enunciated by Daniel Webster, "that the will of the people must prevail when it is ascertained," and that the only mode of ascertaining that will is "by some regular rule of proceeding prescribed by previous law."

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the declaration of the result of the presidential election should be strictly governed by the principles of the Constitution and by the established usages and practices under it; that the action of the convention which framed the Constitution in organizing the new government thus created, when they resolved that the "Senators should appoint a President of the Senate for the sole purpose of receiving, opening and counting the votes for President;" that the argument of Charles Pinckney, a distinguished member of the convention, made in the debates of 1800, in which he stated that "in the federal convention great care was taken to provide for the election of president independently of Congress; to take the business, as far as possible, out of their hands;" that the opinion of Henry Clay, expressed in subsequent debate, in which he declared that, unless the two houses agreed upon a different method, "the President of the Senate would proceed to open and count the votes;" that the opinion of Chancellor Kent, which, for half a century, has remained unchallenged and unquestioned, in which "he held that, in the absence of legislative provision on the subject, the President of the Senate counts the votes and determines the result," combine to interpret the intent of the framers of the Constitution. Without going beyond its appropriate province, the Legislature of New York earnestly insists that no partisan efforts should be allowed to defeat or embarrass the orderly course of law which is so essential to the welfare and perpetuity of the republic.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the lawful declaration of the result of the election of President, as determined by the vote of a majority of the electors on the sixth day of December last is binding upon all, and that in making such declaration and in upholding the Constitution and the laws, the national authorities are entitled to the support of every patriotic citizen.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That any threat to disregard the result of the presidential election, and its lawful declaration, is incendiary in spirit and revolutionary in character; that every attempt to inflame partisan feeling, and excite political passions, upon a question which has passed beyond the appropriate arena of partisan conflict, and remains only to be declared according to truth and law, calls for unqualified condemnation, and the united voice of the people must enforce, as the supreme obligation of the hour, the duty of prompt and unhesitating acceptance of the legal determination.

Amendment proposed by Mr. Schoonmaker:

Whereas, A crisis of the gravest character has arisen in our national affairs, growing out of the recent presidential election and the constitutional and just mode of ascertaining and declaring the true result, involving wide diversity of public sentiment, and calling for the subordination of partisan purposes and personal aims to the exercise of patriotism and wise statesmanship; and,

Whereas, It is impossible to estimate the material loss the country daily sustains from the existing state of uncertainty, inasmuch as it directly and powerfully tends to unsettle and paralyze business, to weaken public and private credit, and to create apprehensions in the minds of the people that disturb the peaceful tenor of their ways and their pursuit of happiness, as well as to bring republican institutions into discredit, and to create doubts of the success of our form of government and of the perpetuity of the republic; and,

Whereas, Upon just principles of civil institutions, however important it may be deemed whether one citizen or another shall be the chief magistrate for a prescribed period, it is of far greater moment that the will of the people lawfully expressed in the choice of that officer shall be ascertained and carried into effect in a lawful way; and all considerations of interest, of patriotism and of justice unite in demanding of the law-making power of the nation a measure that will bring peace and prosperity to the country, and show that our republican institutions are equal to any emergency; and,

Whereas, The joint committee of the two houses of Congress, charged with the great duty of preparing a constitutional and lawful mode of ascertaining and giving effect to the will of the people expressed by their votes, have, in a spirit of patriotism and statesmanship, worthy of the Fathers of the Republic, matured and reported a measure for that purpose, that promises a settlement of existing disputes that will be just, that will carry with it the sanction of law and command the acquiescence of all patriotic and law-abiding citizens;

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the plan proposed by the joint committee of the two houses of Congress for the peaceful and prompt settlement of the controverted questions relating to the last presidential election is approved by the Legislature of the State of New York, and is commended to the people as a measure honorable to all parties, and designed to secure by constitutional and lawful methods a just and unbiased determination to preserve the peace of the country, and to restore confidence and prosperity in business pursuits, and that the Senators and Representatives in Congress from the State of New York are respectfully requested to give to said measure their earnest support.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion to take from the table, and it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Jacobs moved that the original resolution be amended so as to read as follows:

Resolved, That this Senate has confidence in the patriotism and wisdom of the board of arbitration, to be appointed under the provisions of the electoral bill, and sincerely believes said board will so act as to command the unanimous approval of the country.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the negative, as follows :

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the Constitution of this State be amended by adding thereto the following, as an additional article, to be called Article XVII:

ARTICLE XVII.

SECTION 1. The power of the Legislature to provide for the organization and government of cities, shall be exercised in accordance with the provisions, and subject to the limitations and restrictions hereinafter contained, and the powers and franchises of every existing city government must be exercised in conformity therewith. The Legislature shall, at its first session after the adoption of this article, provide by law for carrying into effect all the provisions contained therein.

§ 2. City elections shall be held separately from the State and national elections, and in March or April.

§ 3. The legislative power conferred on any city shall be vested in a board of aldermen, to be elected by the electors qualified under article second of the Constitution, which shall be the common council of said city; but no power hereinafter vested in the board of finance shall be conferred on or exercised by the board of aldermen. In case of a veto of any legislative act of the board of aldermen by the mayor, the board shall have power to pass the same, notwithstanding the mayor's veto, by a recorded vote of two-thirds of all the members elected, provided that such vote be taken at the next meeting of the board after the communication of the veto.

§ 4. The executive power of every city shall be vested in the mayor, and in such executive officers and departments as may be created by law. The mayor shall be the chief executive officer of the city, and he shall see to the faithful performance of their duties by the several executive officers and departments thereof. He shall be elected by electors qualified under article second of the Constitution, for such term, and he shall receive such compensation as the Legislature may prescribe. He shall nominate and, with the consent of the board of finance, appoint the chief officer or head of the financial department, and the chief law officer or head of the law department; and he shall have power to appoint the head or chief officers of the other executive departments. With the written approval of the Governor, the mayor may remove the head or chief officers of any executive department. He shall have power to investigate their accounts and proceedings; have access to all books and documents in their offices, and may examine them and their subordinates under oath, as to all matters relating to the performance of their official duties. He shall also have power to veto any legislative act of the board of aldermen. The mayor may be removed by the Governor for cause, as in the case of sheriffs; and in case of such removal, the Governor shall appoint a mayor to fill the vacancy, who shall hold office until the next succeeding city election, at which election a mayor shall be elected for the full term of the office. The Legislature shall provide for the filling of a vacancy in the office of mayor, otherwise occurring, until the next succeeding city election, and also for the discharge of the duties of the mayor during his temporary absence or disability. Heads of departments shall have power to appoint and remove their subordinate officers and employes, but the Legislature may regulate by law the qualifications for such appointments, and the conditions of such removals.

§ 5. There shall be elected in every city of this State a board of finance, to consist of not less than six, nor more than fifteen members. In cities having a population, according to the State census next preceding the election, of over 100,000 inhabitants, the board of finance shall be elected by the electors of the city (otherwise qualified under article second of the Constitution), who shall, for two years next preceding the election, have paid an annual tax on property owned by them, and officially assessed for taxation in such city, of the assessed value of not less than $500, or shall have actually paid during the same period a yearly rental for premises in said city occupied by them for purposes of residence or lawful business, of not less than $250. In cities having a population according to the State census next preceding the election of not more than 100,000 inhabitants, the board of finance shall be elected by the electors of the city (otherwise qualified under article second of the Constitution), who shall, for two years next preceding the election, have paid an annual tax on property owned by them and officially assessed for taxation in such city, or shall have actually paid during the same period a yearly rent for premises in said city occupied by them for purposes of residence or lawful business of not less than $100. In cities having a population, according to the State census next preceding the election, of not more than 25,000 inhabitants, the board shall consist of six members. In cities having a population of over 25,000 inhabitants, and not more than 50,000, it shall consist of nine members. In cities having a population of over 50,000 inhabitants, and not more than 100,000, it shall consist of twelve members; and in cities having a population of over 100,000 inhabitants, it shall consist of fifteen members. At the first election one-third of the board shall be elected for a term of one year, one-third thereof for a term of two years, and one-third thereof for a term of three years; and thereafter the term of office shall be three years. The existence of any vacancy in the board shall not of itself suspend the exercise of its powers and duties. The Legislature shall, at its first session after the adoption of this article, and thereafter, from time to time, as may be necessary, provide by general law for the registration, in every city, of electors qualified to vote for the board of finance, and for filling vacancies in said board, and may change the number of members of which the said board shall consist in any city, provided that the number shall not, in any case, be less than six, and that one-third of the board shall be elected annually.

§ 6. The board of finance shall, in every fiscal year, make estimates of the sums of money necessary for the proper administration of the city government during the next fiscal year, and which are to be raised by taxation or supplied by the revenue of the city derivable from other sources and applicable to general purposes. Such estimates shall include the sums requisite for the payment of the interest on bonds or other city debts drawing interest, the principal of any debts payable during the year, judgments against the city, the sums sufficient to make good all deficiencies in the payment of taxes on personal estate for the last preceding year, and any deficiencies in the collection of taxes on real estate for any preceding year which may be found by the board to be uncollectible, and also any deficiencies in the collection of the estimated revenues from other sources, and all other sums required by law to be raised by taxation. The estimates shall also separately state the aggregate amount of moneys in the treasury or receivable during the next fiscal year, applicable to general purposes, in which may be included any prior unexpended appropriations which, in the judgment of the board, may not be required to meet existing liabilities; and shall, in like manner, separately state the aggregate amount to be raised by taxation. The board shall submit the estimates, when completed, to the mayor, who shall, within ten days thereafter, return the same to the board, with his approval, or with his objection, if any he have, in writing, specifying the items objected to; and the items thus objected to, but no others, shall be reconsidered and finally determined by the board. The board shall, after the return of the estimates by the mayor, and the action of the board upon the items objected to, if any, or in the event of a failure of the mayor to return the same as above required, proceed, by resolution, to declare the estimates to be final and adopted, and the several sums of money therein estimated as necessary, shall become and be appropriated to and for the departments and officers therein mentioned, and for the objects and purposes therein mentioned. The aggregate amount to be raised by taxation shall be stated in such resolution, and shall thereupon be levied and collected in the manner provided by law for the levying and collecting of the city taxes. The board of finance may, during any current fiscal year, by a unanimous vote and with the approval of the mayor, in case of pestilence, conflagration or other unforeseen public calamity, transfer sums of money appropriated to one department, object or purpose, and not required to satisfy existing liabilities, to another department, object or purpose. A vote of a majority of the entire board shall be necessary to the passage of any measure or resolution; and a vote of two-thirds of the entire board shall be necessary to the adoption of the estimates hereinbefore provided for, or any item thereof, or to authorize the issue of any stock or bonds, and in such other cases as are hereinafter specified. It shall be the duty of the several departments, boards and officers, and the common council, to furnish all such statements and accounts as the board of finance may require, and at such times and in such manner as the said board may prescribe; and the board of finance shall also have power to examine the books and papers of the several executive departments and officers, and to examine such officers upon oath, concerning their official business.

§ 7. No debt or liability shall be incurred by any department, board or any officer in any city, unless there shall be at the time an unexpended appropriation applicable thereto sufficient to satisfy the same and all debts and liabilities previously incurred and payable out of such appropriation; and all contracts and engagements in contravention hereof shall be void. Nor shall any debt or liability of the city be paid, except out of money in the treasury appropriated to the purpose of paying such debt or liability. No city government, or any department thereof, shall grant any extra compensation to any officer, servant, agent, contractor or employe.

§ 8. The Legislature shall itself have no power to pass any law for the opening, making, paving, lighting, or otherwise improving or maintaining streets, avenues, parks or places, docks or wharves, or for any other local work or improvement in or for a city, but all authority necessary for such purposes shall be by law conferred on the city government; nor shall the Legislature impose any charge on any city or civil division of the State containing a city, except by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each house. Any local work or improvement, in or for a city, the cost of which is to be wholly paid by the city at large, must be authorized by resolution, passed by the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to the board of aldermen and board of finance, respectively. Any such work or improvement, the cost of which is to be wholly paid otherwise than by the city at large, must be authorized by the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to the board of aldermen, with the consent of a majority in interest, to be ascertained in such manner as the Legislature may prescribe, of all the owners of land within the district of assessment limited for the cost of such work or improvement. Any such work or improvement, the cost of which is to be paid in part by the city at large, and in part by local assessment, must be authorized by a resolution passed by the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to the board of aldermen and board of finance, respectively, with the consent of a majority in interest, to be ascertained as hereinbefore directed, of all the owners of the land within the prescribed district of assessment.

§ 9. No money shall be borrowed by any city government for the purpose of defraying any of the expenses of the city for which an appropriation has been made, except in anticipation of the revenue of the year in which the same may be borrowed, applicable to such purposes; and all moneys so borrowed must be paid out of such revenue, or out of revenues specially provided to supply any deficiency in the collection thereof; provided, however, that temporary loans, in anticipation of taxes, may be renewed, so far as such taxes may not have been collected, when the same are, in the opinion of the board, fully secured by valid liens on real estate. No city shall borrow any money for any other purpose, except under and in accordance with the following conditions and limitations, in addition to any other conditions and limitations contained in the Constitution:

1. The debt must be for some single work or object only, and must be authorized by a resolution passed by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the board of finance, and approved by the mayor, distinctly specifying such work or object, and the amount of the debt to be incurred.

2. The Legislature must, before the creation of such a debt, assent thereto by a law passed by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each house. Such law shall also distinctly specify the single work or object for which the debt is created, and the amount of the debt authorized, and shall contain provisions for a sinking fund to meet the same at maturity, and requiring at least ten per cent of the principal to be annually raised by taxation and paid into the sinking fund.

§ 10. Except as prescribed by the first section of this article, no change in the organization of, or in the distribution of powers in, a city government, or in the terms or tenure of office therein, shall be made by the Legislature, unless by an act passed upon the application of the city, made by resolution both of the board of aldermen and of the board of finance, respectively, approved by the mayor, or by an act which shall have received the sanction of two successive Legislatures.

On motion of Mr. Jacobs, and by unanimous consent, the rules were suspended, and it was ordered that the confirmation of the same be delivered to the Governor to-day.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, March 28, 1877. }

To the Senate:

I return without my approval Senate bill No. 190, entitled "An act to provide for the appointment of an additional number of notaries public."

In 1863 the whole number of notaries public in the State was 2,624. In that year an act was passed which increased the number to a small extent. In various years since that date acts have been passed increasing the number to a very large extent until it now amounts to 11,742. There is manifestly no necessity for any such number. It amounts to one notary to every ninety-six votes. The bill under consideration, if approved, will add 1,290 more, making a total of 13,032, equivalent to one notary to every eighty-seven voters. I can see no reason or propriety in any further increase of the number. As it now stands, the clerical force in the executive office is insufficient to take care of all the applications for appointments, to carry on the correspondence relating thereto, to prepare the commissions which are required to be issued to each one of the notaries, to prepare the lists for nomination, and to keep the record of the appointments. If the number is to be increased, as this bill proposes, to over 13,000, an additional clerical force will be indispensable. It is also undoubtedly true, that in the appointment of so large a number, without any opportunity for proper security, many persons receive appointments who know little or nothing of the duties pertaining to the office, and are wholly unfit to be intrusted with it.

L. ROBINSON.

The President put the question, shall this bill be passed, notwithstanding the objections of the Governor.

Pending which,

Mr. Emerson moved that the message be laid upon the table.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

The Assembly returned the bill entitled "An act to provide for the collection of unpaid city taxes in the city of Syracuse," with a message that they had concurred in the passage of the same with the following amendments:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert as follows:

Section 1. It shall be the duty of the treasurer and tax receiver of the city of Syracuse, in each year, immediately after the corrected lists of unpaid city taxes shall have been filed by him in the clerk's office of Onondaga county, as now provided by law, to make and retain in his office a copy thereof, adding to each one of such unpaid taxes the sum of twenty-five cents for filing and one dollar for re-assessing the same, together with seven per cent fees on each unpaid tax.

§ 2. The said treasurer and tax receiver shall thereupon proceed to collect all such unpaid city taxes as follows: Whenever any such tax charged on real estate in said city, and the interest thereon at the rate of twelve per cent per annum to be computed from the first day of February when such tax was payable, with fees and expenses mentioned in the first section of this act, shall remain unpaid for six months from said first day of February, the said treasurer and tax receiver shall proceed to advertise and sell such real estate, in the manner hereinafter provided, for the payment of such tax, fees, interest and expenses, and the expense of advertising and selling the same shall be a charge on the lands sold, and shall be added to and made a part of such tax.

§ 3. The said treasurer and tax receiver shall cause to be published, at least twice in each week, for at least three weeks, in three of the public newspapers of the city of Syracuse, a list or statement of the real estate charged with the payment of such taxes and interest and so liable to be sold, and also a notice that the said real estate will, on a day at the expiration of the said three weeks, to be specified in such notice, and the succeeding days, be sold at public auction at the city hall in the city of Syracuse, to pay the taxes, interest and expenses thereon which may remain unpaid at the time of such sale, the expense of publishing such lists and notices not to exceed the sum of one dollar to each newspaper for each parcel of land so advertised. On the day named in said notice the said treasurer and tax receiver shall commence the sale of said real estate and shall continue such sale from day to day until the whole thereof shall be sold.

§ 4. The purchasers at such sale shall pay the amounts of their respective bids to the said treasurer and tax receiver within forty-eight hours after the sale, and thereupon said treasurer and tax receiver shall execute to each purchaser a certificate in writing which shall contain a description of the real estate purchased, the amount paid therefor, the date of the sale, and that the same was sold for unpaid city taxes; such purchaser and his legal representatives or assigns may immediately, upon receiving said certificate by virtue thereof and of this act, lawfully forever hold and enjoy for his and their own proper use and benefit, and the use and benefit of his and their heirs and assigns forever, the real estate described in said certificate unless the same shall be redeemed as hereinafter provided; and he and his heirs and assigns may, at any time after the time limited in the fifth section of this act for the redemption of such premises shall have expired and the notice therein provided for been given, and said premises shall not have been redeemed as therein provided, cause the occupant of such real estate to be removed therefrom and the possession thereof to be delivered to him in the same manner and by the same proceedings, by and before the same officers, as in the case of a tenant holding over after the expiration of his term without permission of his landlord.

§ 5. The owner of, or any person interested in, any real estate sold for taxes as aforesaid, may redeem the same at any time within two years after the date of such sale, by paying to the said treasurer and tax receiver, for the use of the purchaser upon such sale, his heirs and assigns, the sum mentioned in the certificate given to him and the interest thereon at the rate of eight per cent per annum, to be calculated from the date of such certificate. Notice shall be given by the purchaser of any real estate sold for taxes under the provisions of this act, to the occupant, owner in fee, mortgagee, judgment creditor or purchaser upon any other tax sale of the same property, and the heirs or assigns of any or either of them, and the guardian of any infants having an interest therein at least three months before the expiration of the time for redemption fixed by this act, and the time for such redemption shall not be deemed to have expired until three months after such notice shall have been given. Such notice shall either be written, or partly written and partly printed, and shall state briefly the lot or parcel of land to be redeemed, the tax, costs, interest and expenses required to be paid upon such redemption, the last of redemption of any such real estate, and the office or place where the money for such redemption can be paid, which office or place shall be in the city of Syracuse. Such notice shall be served personally or left with some person of suitable age and discretion at the residence or place of business of any and all persons entitled to such notice, if they, or any of them, reside in the city of Syracuse, or have a place of business therein, and in case they or any of them do not reside or have a place of business in said city, then such shall be deposited, postage paid, in the post-office, addressed to them at the post-office at or nearest to their known place of residence; and if the residence or address of any such person or persons be not known, then such notice shall be published at least once a week, for three months prior to the day therein named for redemption, in each of the newspapers in which the notice of sale was originally published. The expense of mailing and publishing such notices shall be added to and become a part of the amount required to be paid for the redemption of such real estate.

§ 6. If such real estate or any part thereof be not redeemed as herein provided, the said treasurer and tax receiver shall execute to the purchaser, his heirs or assigns, a conveyance of the real estate so sold, which conveyance shall vest in the grantee an absolute estate in fee. The said treasurer and tax receiver shall be entitled to demand and receive from such grantee, for the use of the city, the sum of one dollar for preparing such conveyance. Every such conveyance shall be executed by said treasurer and tax receiver under his hand and the seal of said city, and the execution thereof shall be acknowledged before a proper officer the same as other conveyances of real estate are acknowledged under the laws of this State, and such conveyance shall be conclusive evidence that the sale was regular, and also presumptive evidence that all the previous proceedings were regular, according to law and the provisions of this act. Every certificate or conveyance executed in pursuance of this act may be recorded in the same manner and with like effect, as a deed acknowledged or proved before any officer authorized by law to take the proof and acknowledgment of deeds.

§ 7. Whenever any purchaser under such sale, or his or her assigns shall be unable to recover or retain possession of any real estate sold to him by reason of any irregularity or error in the assessment of any person or property, or the levying of any tax thereon, or in any proceeding for the collection of any tax, the common council of said city shall reimburse the purchase-money so paid, with interest from the time of its payment, the amount thereof to be presented and audited as other city charges and paid by the treasurer and tax receiver of said city.

§ 8. Whenever any city tax levied and assessed upon any person or property in the city of Syracuse, with the fees, interest and expenses which may by law be added thereto, shall remain unpaid for six months after the warrant for its collection has been placed in the hands of the treasurer and tax receiver of said city, the said treasurer and tax receiver may maintain an action in his name of office for the amount of such tax, fees and expenses remaining unpaid and uncollected, with interest thereon at the rate of twelve per cent per annum, to be computed from the first day of February, when such tax was payable, against any person or corporation liable for such tax, or the representative of such person or corporation, in any court of competent jurisdiction in which the proceedings, costs, judgments and executions shall be the same, and with like effect as in actions between other public officers and individuals, and the amount collected by any such suit shall be and applied by such treasurer and tax receiver in the same manner as though the same had been collected by the sale of real estate. The warrant so delivered to the treasurer and tax receiver shall be presumptive evidence that all the previous proceedings, including the assessing and levying of the tax were regular and according to law. Nothing in this act contained shall be construed to repeal or abridge any powers now had by officers for the collection of taxes in the said city of Syracuse.

§ 9. All the provisions of this act shall apply to and include the collection of all local assessments and taxes for local improvements, provided that no sale of real estate, for any unpaid local assessment, shall be made within one year from the time when the same became due and payable.

§ 10. All the provisions of this act are hereby made applicable to all unpaid city taxes of the city of Syracuse, and all local assessments and taxes for local improvements heretofore assessed and levied, which shall remain unpaid six months from the first day of February, 1877.

§ 11. All other acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act, so far as the same relate to the city of Syracuse, are hereby repealed.

§ 6. The board of finance shall, in every fiscal year, make estimates of the sums of money necessary for the proper administration of the city government during the next fiscal year, and which are to be raised by taxation or supplied by the revenue of the city derivable from other sources, and applicable to general purposes. Such estimates shall include the sums requisite for the payment of the interest on bonds or other city debts drawing interest, the principal of any debts payable during the year, judgments against the city, the sums sufficient to make good all deficiencies in the payment of taxes on personal estate for the last preceding year, and any deficiencies in the collection of taxes on real estate for any preceding year which may be found by the board to be uncollectible, and also any deficiencies in the collection of the estimated revenues from other sources, and all other sums required by law to be raised by taxation. The estimates shall also separately state the aggregate amount of moneys in the treasury or receivable during the next fiscal year, applicable to general purposes, in which may be included any prior unexpended appropriations which, in the judgment of the board, may not be required to meet existing liabilities; and shall, in like manner, separately state the aggregate amount to be raised by taxation. The board shall submit the estimates, when completed, to the mayor, who shall, within ten days thereafter, return the same to the board, with his approval, or with his objection, if any he have, in writing, specifying the items objected to; and the items thus objected to, but no others, shall be reconsidered and finally determined by the board. The board shall, after the return of the estimates by the mayor, and the action of the board upon the items objected to, if any, or in the event of a failure of the mayor to return the same as above required, proceed by resolution to declare the estimates to be final and adopted, and the several sums of money therein estimated as necessary, shall become and be appropriated to and for the departments and officers therein mentioned, and for the objects and purposes therein mentioned. The aggregate amount to be raised by taxation shall be stated in such resolution, and shall thereupon be levied and collected in the manner provided by law for the levying and collecting of the city taxes. The board of finance may, during any current fiscal year, by a unanimous vote, with the approval of the mayor, in case of pestilence, conflagration, or other unforeseen public calamity, transfer sums of money appropriated to one department, object or purpose, and not required to satisfy existing liabilities, to another department, object or purpose. A vote of a majority of the entire board shall be necessary to the passage of any measure or resolution; and a vote of two-thirds of the entire board shall be necessary to the adoption of the estimates hereinbefore provided for, or any item thereof, or to authorize the issue of any stock or bonds, and in such other cases as are hereinafter specified. It shall be the duty of the several departments, boards and officers, and the common council to furnish all such statements and accounts as the board of finance may require, and at such times and in such manner as the said board may prescribe; and the board of finance shall also have power to examine the books and papers of the several executive departments and officers, and to examine such officers upon oath, concerning their official business.

§ 7. No debt or liability shall be incurred by any department, board or any officer in any city, unless there shall be at the time an unexpended appropriation applicable thereto, sufficient to satisfy the same and all debts and liabilities previously incurred and payable out of such appropriation; and all contracts and engagements in contravention hereof shall be void. Nor shall any debt or liability of the city be paid, except out of money in the treasury appropriated to the purpose of paying such debt or liability. No city government, or any department thereof, shall grant any extra compensation to any officer, servant, agent, contractor or employe.

§ 8. The Legislature shall, itself, have no power to pass any law for the opening, making, paving, lighting, or otherwise improving or maintaining streets, avenues, parks or places, docks or wharves, or for any other local work or improvement, in or for a city, but all authority necessary for such purposes shall be by law conferred on the city government; nor shall the Legislature impose any charge on any city or civil division of the State containing a city, except by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each house. Any local work or improvement in or for a city, the cost of which is to be wholly paid by the city at large, must be authorized by resolution, passed by the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to the board of aldermen and board of finance, respectively. Any such work or improvement, the cost of which is to be wholly paid otherwise than by the city at large, must be authorized by the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to the board of aldermen, with the consent of a majority in interest, to be ascertained in such manner as the Legislature may prescribe, of all the owners of land within the district of assessment limited for the cost of such work or improvement. Any such work or improvement, the cost of which is to be paid in part by the city at large, and in part by local assessment, must be authorized by a resolution passed by the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to the board of aldermen and board of finance, respectively, with the consent of a majority in interest, to be ascertained as hereinbefore directed, of all the owners of the land within the prescribed district of assessment.

§ 9. No money shall be borrowed by any city government for the purpose of defraying any of the expenses of the city for which an appropriation has been made, except in anticipation of the revenue of the year in which the same may be borrowed, applicable to such purposes; and all moneys so borrowed must be paid out of such revenue, or out of revenues specially provided to supply any deficiency in the collection thereof; provided, however, that temporary loans, in anticipation of taxes, may be renewed, so far as such taxes may not have been collected, when the same are, in the opinion of the board, fully secured by valid liens on real estate. No city shall borrow any money for any other purpose, except under and in accordance with the following conditions and limitations, in addition to any other conditions and limitations contained in the Constitution:

1. The debt must be for some single work or object only, and must be authorized by a resolution passed by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the board of finance, and approved by the mayor, distinctly specifying such work or object, and the amount of the debt to be incurred.

2. The Legislature must, before the creation of such a debt, assent thereto by a law passed by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each house. Such law shall also distinctly specify the single work or object for which the debt is created, and the amount of the debt authorized, and shall contain provisions for a sinking fund to meet the same at maturity, and requiring at least ten per cent of the principal to be annually raised by taxation and paid into the sinking fund.

§ 10. Except as prescribed by the first section of this article, no change in the organization of, or in the distribution of powers in, a city government, or in the terms or tenure of office therein, shall be made by the Legislature, unless by an act passed upon the application of the city, made by resolution both of the board of aldermen and of the board of finance, respectively, approved by the mayor, or by an act which shall have received the sanction of two successive Legislatures.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next general election of Senators, and that, in conformity to section 1 of article 13 of the Constitution, it be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, {
ALBANY, April 5, 1877. }

To the Senate:

I have received from Mr. William J. Best, who was appointed by the Supreme Court, in July, 1876, receiver of the Mechanics and Traders' Savings Institution, charges against De Witt C. Ellis, Superintendent of the Bank Department, accompanied by depositions and documentary proof in support thereof.

The charges are, that the bank was insolvent in July, 1874, the deficiency being then about $200,000; that this condition of the bank was exposed to Mr. Ellis in September, 1874, by two of its trustees; that Mr. Ellis then personally investigated the affairs of the bank; that upon such examination he admitted the bank was insolvent; that he was frequently requested by and on behalf of the two trustees to take immediate proceedings to protect the creditors, and that he neglected to do so until June, 1876, a period of nearly two years.

In support of the charges are submitted:

1. A balance sheet (Schedule A), made out by George N. Pratt, who was at the time general book-keeper at the bank, and verified by his oath, showing a deficiency in July, 1874, of $201,017.52.

2. The testimony of William Floyd and Ira W. Gregory, two of the trustees of the bank, contained in their depositions, that they, as a special committee appointed in July, 1874, to examine its condition, reported a deficiency of assets as compared with liabilities of $181,505.71, and a deficiency in annual income, if the usual dividend of interest to depositors were declared, of $15,041.70. Schedules B and C showing this condition of things, now appended to the charges, formed a part of their report. Mr. Floyd deposes further, that the trustees having, notwithstanding this report, declared the usual dividend, he, through F. P. Bellamy, his attorney, in September, 1874, laid copies of the report of himself and Mr. Gregory, accompanied by the schedules above mentioned, before Mr. Ellis and requested him to institute proceedings to protect the creditors; that, thereupon, Mr. Ellis went to New York and, in person, examined the condition of the bank; that after such examination Mr. Ellis admitted to Floyd that the report of himself and Gregory was substantially correct and that the bank was insolvent, and promised to take immediate measures to protect the depositors; that he, Floyd, frequently, between that time and June, 1876, urged Mr. Ellis to take some action in the matter, but that until the last-named date, he neglected to do so.

3. The testimony of F. P. Bellamy, attorney-at-law, of Brooklyn, contained in his deposition, to the same facts and to the same admissions to him by Mr. Ellis, after his personal examination of the condition of the bank, that it was insolvent; and that he, Bellamy, had, on behalf of the two trustees above named, frequently urged Mr. Ellis, therefore, to take action to protect the creditors and had mailed several letters to Mr. Ellis to that effect, between the time of the examination aforesaid and June, 1876, but that Mr. Ellis neglected to take any proceedings until the last date.

4. The deposition of Mr. Gregory, to the effect that he confirms all that Mr. Floyd has stated concerning the acts and doings of Mr. Floyd and himself and of Mr. Ellis.

The annual report of the Bank Department, March 5, 1875, exhibits this bank as possessing a surplus of assets over liabilities of $67,240.08. (Assembly documents No. 108, page 148.) That of 1876 exhibits the bank with a surplus of $9,530.13. (See Assembly documents of 1876, No. 97, page 157.)

Mr. Best alleges that at the time he was appointed receiver in July, 1876, the deficiency had reached nearly $350,000.

Upon these charges and the proofs in support of them, which I transmit to you herewith, it becomes my duty to recommend to you, as I now do, the removal from office of De Witt C. Ellis, Superintendent of the Bank Department.

This recommendation is made as a basis of action on the part of the Senate, and upon the assumption that the depositions annexed to the charges are true, and make out a prima facie case. It is due to Mr. Ellis to say that, upon my invitation, he has appeared before me and made explanations which seem to acquit him of any intentional wrong, but not, in my judgment, of culpable negligence. I submit the whole matter to the Senate for such investigation and action as it may think proper for the protection of public interests.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following :

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, April 9, 1877. }

To the Senate :

I return, without approval, Senate bill No. 95, entitled "An act to amend chapter 361 of the Laws of 1852, entitled 'An act to facilitate the dissolution of manufacturing corporations in the county of Herkimer, and to secure the payment of their debts without preference.'"

The act of 1852, to which this bill is an amendment, provides a special method by which manufacturing corporations in the county of Herkimer, organized under the provisions of the act of March 22, 1811, may be dissolved. The present bill gives the same special privilege as to dissolution, to all such corporations in Herkimer county, organized under the general laws of the State. The Revised Statutes prescribe a comprehensive method of dissolving corporations of this class, in all cases where such dissolution is either necessary or proper.

If there is any reason for repealing or modifying this general statutory regulation with relation to Herkimer county, it applies with equal force to every other county in the State. If there is no such reason, the bill is superfluous and ought not to become a law.

I am not advised of any valid argument in favor of a change in our general law on this subject. I know of no hardship or injustice resulting from its requirements nor any evil which would arise in Herkimer or any other county from its continuance as it now stands.

On the contrary, this bill seems open to every recognized objection to special legislation. It prescribes a rule for the corporations of one county entirely different from that which obtains throughout the State. If approved, it leads other localities to seek similar privileges not only in this, but in other departments of general law. Experience has taught severe lessons as to the abuse of this line of legislation. If this bill is right for Herkimer county, it is right for the State, and should be a general act. If it is wrong it ought not to be law. Fully believing that no good can result from its provisions at all commensurate with the evil likely to attend legislation so clearly special, I must decline to approve it.

The President put the question, "Shall this bill become a law notwithstanding the objection of the governor?"

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver said bill to the Assembly, and request their concurrence therein, as amended.

By unanimous consent, Mr. Gerard offered the following:

Whereas, The "Commissioners of the New Capitol" were authorized to provide altered plans for completing the New Capitol; and the estimates upon the altered plans give no promise of any considerable reduction of the cost of the building, and

Whereas, The building, if completed according to either the old or new plans, will afford much more room than the public convenience at this time demands, and

Whereas, It is much more important to the people of the State, that the building should be finished with expedition and economy than with a strict compliance with the demands of extravagant architectural display, and

Whereas, No reliable estimates have hitherto been made as to the probable cost of finishing the building, either on the old or new plans; therefore,

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the Governor be authorized to select three persons, one of whom shall be a resident of the city of New York and another of whom shall be a resident of the city of Albany, to report forthwith upon the practicability and probable cost of completing the New Capitol in the following manner, to wit: All work above the story now under construction (being the second above the basement), to be dispensed with, and a flat roof, invisible from the street, to be put on immediately over the story now under construction; such alterations in the interior arrangements, and in the approaches and entrance as this method may render necessary, being taken into view in estimating such cost.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the said Commissioners do report as to the feasibility and probable expense attending upon the location of said Capitol in the city of New York, and what advantages, if any, would be derived from such location, and as to what disposition should be made of the present building in process of construction, in case of such change of location.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the Constitution be amended by adding thereto a new article, to be known as article XVII, and to read as follows :

ARTICLE XVII.

SECTION 1. The power of the Legislature to provide for the organization and government of cities, shall be exercised in accordance with the provisions, and subject to the limitations and restrictions hereinafter contained, and the powers and franchises of every existing city government must be exercised in conformity therewith. The Legislature shall, at its first session after the adoption of this article, provide by law for carrying into effect all the provisions contained therein.

§ 2. City elections shall be held separately from the State and national elections, and in March or April.

§ 3. The legislative power conferred on any city shall be vested in a board of aldermen, to be elected by the electors qualified under article second of the Constitution, which shall be the common council of said city; but no power hereinafter vested in the board of finance shall be conferred on or exercised by the board of aldermen. In case of a veto of any legislative act of the board of aldermen by the mayor, the board shall have power to pass the same, notwithstanding the mayor's veto, by a recorded vote of two-thirds of all the members elected, provided that such vote be taken at the next meeting of the board after the communication of the veto.

§ 4. The executive power of every city shall be vested in the mayor, and in such executive officers and departments as may be created by law. The mayor shall be the chief executive officer of the city, and he shall see to the faithful performance of their duties by the several executive officers and departments thereof. He shall be elected by electors qualified under article second of the Constitution, for such term, and he shall receive such compensation as the Legislature may prescribe. He shall nominate and, with the consent of the board of finance, appoint the chief officer or head of the financial department, and the chief law officer or head of the law department; and he shall have power to appoint the head or chief officers of the other executive departments. With the written approval of the Governor, the mayor may remove the head or chief officers of any executive department. He shall have power to investigate their accounts and proceedings; have access to all books and documents in their offices, and may examine them and their subordinates under oath, as to all matters relating to the performance of their official duties. He shall also have power to veto any legislative act of the board of aldermen. The mayor may be removed by the Governor for cause, as in the case of sheriffs; and in case of such removal, the Governor shall appoint a mayor to fill the vacancy, who shall hold office until the next succeeding city election, at which election a mayor shall be elected for the full term of the office. - The Legislature shall provide for the filling of a vacancy in the office of mayor, otherwise occurring, until the next succeeding city election, and also for the discharge of the duties of the mayor during his temporary absence or disability. Heads of departments shall have power to appoint and remove their subordinate officers and employes, but the Legislature may regulate by law the qualifications for such appointments, and the conditions of such removals.

§ 5. There shall be elected in every city of this State a board of finance, to consist of not less than six, nor more than fifteen members. In cities having a population, according to the State census next preceding the election, of over 100,000 inhabitants, the board of finance shall be elected by the electors of the city (otherwise qualified under article second of the Constitution), who shall, for two years next preceding the election, have paid an annual tax on property owned by them, and officially assessed for taxation in such city, of the assessed value of not less than $500, or shall have actually paid during the same period a yearly rent for premises in said city occupied by them for purposes of residence or lawful business, of not less than $250. In cities having a population, according to the State census next preceding the election, of not more than 25,000 inhabitants, the board shall consist of six members. In cities having a population of over 25,000 inhabitants, and not more than 50,000, it shall consist of nine members. In cities having a population of over 50,000 inhabitants, and not more than 100,000, it shall consist of twelve members; and in cities having a population of over 100,000 inhabitants, it shall consist of fifteen members. At the first election one-third of the board shall be elected for a term of one year, one-third thereof for a term of two years, and one-third thereof for a term of three years; and thereafter the term of office shall be three years. The existence of any vacancy in the board shall not of itself suspend the exercise of its powers and duties. The Legislature shall, at its first session after the adoption of this article, and thereafter, from time to time, as may be necessary, provide by general law for the registration, in every city, of electors qualified to vote for the board of finance, and for filling vacancies in said board, and may change the number of members of which the said board shall consist in any city, provided that the number shall not, in any case, be less than six, and that one-third of the board shall be elected annually.

§ 6. The board of finance shall, in every fiscal year, make estimates of the sums of money necessary for the proper administration of the city government during the next fiscal year, and which are to be raised by taxation or supplied by the revenue of the city derivable from other sources and applicable to general purposes. Such estimates shall include the sums requisite for the payment of the interest on bonds or other city debts drawing interest, the principal of any debts payable during the year, judgments against the city, the sums sufficient to make good all deficiencies in the payment of taxes on personal estate for the last preceding year, and any deficiencies in the collection of taxes on real estate for any preceding year which may be found by the board to be uncollectible, and also any deficiencies in the collection of the estimated revenues from other sources, and all other sums required by law to be raised by taxation. The estimates shall also separately state the aggregate amount of moneys in the treasury or receivable during the next fiscal year, applicable to general purposes, in which may be included any prior unexpended appropriations which, in the judgment of the board, may not be required to meet existing liabilities; and shall, in like manner, separately state the aggregate amount to be raised by taxation. The board shall submit the estimates, when completed, to the mayor, who shall, within ten days thereafter, return the same to the board, with his approval, or with his objection, if any he have, in writing, specifying the items objected to; and the items thus objected to, but no others, shall be reconsidered and finally determined by the board. The board shall, after the return of the estimates by the mayor, and the action of the board upon the items objected to, if any, or in the event of a failure of the mayor to return the same as above required, proceed, by resolution, to declare the estimates to be final and adopted, and the several sums of money therein estimated as necessary, shall become and be appropriated to and for the departments and officers therein mentioned, and for the objects and purposes therein mentioned. The aggregate amount to be raised by taxation shall be stated in such resolution, and shall thereupon be levied and collected in the manner provided by law for the levying and collecting of the city taxes. The board of finance may, during any current fiscal year, by a unanimous vote and with the approval of the mayor, in case of pestilence, conflagration or other unforeseen public calamity, transfer sums of money appropriated to one department, object or purpose, and not required to satisfy existing liabilities, to another department, object or purpose. A vote of a majority of the entire board shall be necessary to the passage of any measure or resolution; and a vote of two-thirds of the entire board shall be necessary to the adoption of the estimates hereinbefore provided for, or any item thereof, or to authorize the issue of any stock or bonds, and in such other cases as are hereinafter specified. It shall be the duty of the several departments, boards and officers, and the common council, to furnish all such statements and accounts as the board of finance may require, and at such times and in such manner as the said board may prescribe; and the board of finance shall also have power to examine the books and papers of the several executive departments and officers, and to examine such officers upon oath, concerning their official business.

§ 7. No debt or liability shall be incurred by any department, board or any officer in any city, unless there shall be at the time an unexpended appropriation applicable thereto sufficient to satisfy the same and all debts and liabilities previously incurred and payable out of such appropriation; and all contracts and engagements in contravention hereof shall be void. Nor shall any debt or liability of the city be paid, except out of money in the treasury appropriated to the purpose of paying such debt or liability. No city government, or any department thereof, shall grant any extra compensation to any officer, servant, agent, contractor or employe.

§ 8. The Legislature shall itself have no power to pass any law for the opening, making, paving, lighting or otherwise improving or maintaining streets, avenues, parks or places, docks or wharves, or for any other local work or improvement in or for a city, but all authority necessary for such purposes shall be by law conferred on the city government; nor shall the Legislature impose any charge on any city or civil division of the State containing a city, except by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each house. Any local work or improvement, in or for a city, the cost of which is to be wholly paid by the city at large, must be authorized by resolution, passed by the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to the board of aldermen and board of finance, respectively. Any such work or improvement, the cost of which is to be wholly paid otherwise than by the city at large, must be authorized by the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to the board of aldermen, with the consent of a majority in interest, to be ascertained in such manner as the Legislature may prescribe, of all the owners of land within the district of assessment limited for the cost of such work or improvement. § 9. No money shall be borrowed by any city government for the purpose of defraying any of the expenses of the city for which an appropriation has been made, except in anticipation of the revenue of the year in which the same may be borrowed, applicable to such purposes; and all moneys so borrowed must be paid out of such revenue, or out of revenues specially provided to supply any deficiency in the collection thereof; provided, however, that temporary loans, in anticipation of taxes, may be renewed, so far as such taxes may not have been collected, when the same are, in the opinion of the board, fully secured by valid liens on real estate. 2. The Legislature must, before the creation of such a debt, assent thereto by a law passed by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each house. Such law shall also distinctly specify the single work or object for which the debt is created, and the amount of the debt authorized, and shall contain provisions for a sinking fund to meet the same at maturity, and requiring at least ten per cent of the principal to be annually raised by taxation and paid into the sinking fund.

§ 10. Except as prescribed by the first section of this article, no change in the organization of, or in the distribution of powers in, a city government, or in the terms or tenure of office therein, shall be made by the Legislature, unless by an act passed upon the application of the city, made by resolution both of the board of aldermen and of the board of finance, respectively, approved by the mayor, or by an act which shall have received the sanction of two successive Legislatures.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following :

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, April 12, 1877. }

To the Senate :

I return, without my approval, Senate bill No. 155, entitled "An act to empower the board of education of the educational district of Seneca Falls, to appoint an assessor for such district."

The settled law and practice of the State provide that three assessors shall pass upon each valuation of property for purposes of taxation. An existing local statute already provides an additional assessor for the village of Seneca Falls. The present bill seeks to authorize the board of education to appoint still another assessor at such salary as they choose, to make a special assessment for them. It would seem that four assessors ought to be sufficient for a town of 7,000 inhabitants. The public do not favor the creation of new officers. The present bill provides that the educational assessor shall follow the last village assessment as far as practicable, of which, apparently, he is the sole judge. The board is not obliged to appoint a village assessor as the educational assessor, and these officers will probably be filled by different persons. The citizens of Seneca Falls will then be compelled to support this new officer, either simply to copy the existing assessments or to involve them in the disputes and litigations likely to attend a double set of valuations, one for general and the other for school purposes.

Another objection to this act is, that it directs the board of education, upon the receipt of their assessment roll to levy a tax and issue a warrant for its collection. No restriction is laid upon them as to the time, purpose or amount of this levy, and it is more than doubtful if the present law furnishes any such restriction. I cannot find it consistent with my sense of duty to approve a bill which may result in so much evil.

The mayor may be removed by the Governor for cause, as in the case of sheriffs; and in case of such removal, the Governor shall appoint a mayor to fill the vacancy, who shall hold office until the next succeeding city election, at which election a mayor shall be elected for the full term of the office. The Legislature shall provide for the filling of a vacancy in the office of mayor, otherwise occurring, until the next succeeding city election, and also for the discharge of the duties of the mayor during his temporary absence or disability. Heads of departments shall have power to appoint and remove their subordinate officers and employes, but the Legislature may regulate by law the qualifications for such appointments, and the conditions of such removals.

§ 5. There shall be elected in every city of this State a board of finance, to consist of not less than six, nor more than fifteen members, who shall possess the qualifications hereinafter prescribed for electors of members of said board.

§ 6. In cities having a population, according to the State census next preceding the election, of over 100,000 inhabitants, the board of finance shall be elected by the electors of the city (otherwise qualified under article second of the Constitution), who shall, for two years next preceding the election, have paid an annual tax on property owned by them, and officially assessed for taxation in such city, of the assessed value of not less than $500, or shall have actually paid during the same period a yearly rent for premises in said city occupied by them for purposes of residence or lawful business, of not less than $250. In cities having a population according to the State census next preceding the election of not more than 100,000 inhabitants, the board of finance shall be elected by the electors of the city (otherwise qualified under article second of the Constitution), who shall, for two years next preceding the election, have paid an annual tax on property owned by them and officially assessed for taxation in such city, or who shall have actually paid during the same period a yearly rent for premises in said city occupied by them for purposes of residence or lawful business of not less than $100.

§ 7. In cities having a population, according to the State census next preceding the election, of not more than 25,000 inhabitants, the board shall consist of six members. In cities having a population of over 25,000 inhabitants, and not more than 50,000, it shall consist of nine members. In cities having a population of over 50,000 inhabitants, and not more than 100,000, it shall consist of twelve members; and in cities having a population of over 100,000 inhabitants, it shall consist of fifteen members. At the first election one-third of the board shall be elected for a term of one year, one-third thereof for a term of two years, and one-third thereof for a term of three years; and thereafter the term of office shall be three years. The existence of any vacancy in the board shall not of itself suspend the exercise of its powers and duties. The Legislature shall, at its first session after the adoption of this article, and thereafter, from time to time, as may be necessary, provide by general law for the registration, in every city, of electors qualified to vote for the board of finance, and for filling vacancies in said board, and may change the number of members of which the said board shall consist in any city, provided that the number shall not, in any case, be less than six, and that one-third of the board shall be elected annually.

§ 8. The board of finance shall, in every fiscal year, make estimates of the sums of money necessary for the proper administration of the city government during the next fiscal year, and which are to be raised by taxation or supplied by the revenue of the city derivable from other sources and applicable to general purposes. Such estimates shall include the sums requisite for the payment of the interest on bonds or other city debts drawing interest, the principal of any debts payable during the year, judgments against the city, the sums sufficient to make good all deficiencies in the payment of taxes on personal estate for the last preceding year, and any deficiencies in the collection of taxes on real estate for any preceding year which may be found by the board to be uncollectible, and also any deficiencies in the collection of the estimated revenues from other sources, and all other sums required by law to be raised by taxation. The estimates shall also separately state the aggregate amount of moneys in the treasury or receivable during the next fiscal year, applicable to general purposes, in which may be included any prior unexpended appropriations which, in the judgment of the board, may not be required to meet existing liabilities; and shall, in like manner, separately state the aggregate amount to be raised by taxation. The board shall submit the estimates, when completed, to the mayor, who shall, within ten days thereafter, return the same to the board, with his approval, or with his objection, if any he have, in writing, specifying the items objected to; and the items thus objected to, but no others, shall be reconsidered and finally determined by the board. The board shall, after the return of the estimates by the mayor, and the action of the board upon the items objected to, if any, or in the event of a failure of the mayor to return the same as above required, proceed, by resolution, to declare the estimates to be final and adopted, and the several sums of money therein estimated as necessary, shall become and be appropriated to and for the departments and officers therein mentioned, and for the objects and purposes therein mentioned. The aggregate amount to be raised by taxation shall be stated in such resolution, and shall thereupon be levied and collected in the manner provided by law for the levying and collecting of the city taxes. The board of finance may, during any current fiscal year, by a unanimous vote and with the approval of the mayor, in case of pestilence, conflagration or other unforeseen public calamity, transfer sums of money appropriated to one department, object or purpose, and not required to satisfy existing liabilities, to another department, object or purpose. A vote of a majority of the entire board shall be necessary to the passage of any measure or resolution; and a vote of two-thirds of the entire board shall be necessary to the adoption of the estimates hereinbefore provided for, or any item thereof, or to authorize the issue of any stock or bonds, and in such other cases as are hereinafter specified. It shall be the duty of the several departments, boards and officers, and the common council, to furnish all such statements and accounts as the board of finance may require, and at such times and in such manner as the said board may prescribe; and the board of finance shall also have power to examine the books and papers of the several executive departments and officers, and to examine such officers upon oath, concerning their official business.

§ 9. No debt or liability shall be incurred by any department, board or any officer in any city, unless there shall be at the time an unexpended appropriation applicable thereto sufficient to satisfy the same and all debts and liabilities previously incurred and payable out of such appropriation; and all contracts and engagements in contravention hereof shall be void. Nor shall any debt or liability of the city be paid, except out of money in the treasury appropriated to the purpose of paying such debt or liability. No city government, or any department thereof, shall grant any extra compensation to any officer, servant, agent, contractor or employe.

§ 10. The Legislature shall itself have no power to pass any law for the opening, making, paving, lighting or otherwise improving or maintaining streets, avenues, parks or places, docks or wharves, or for any other local work or improvement in or for a city, but all authority necessary for such purposes shall be by law conferred on the city government; nor shall the Legislature impose any charge on any city or civil division of the State containing a city, except by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each house. Any local work or improvement, in or for a city, the cost of which is to be wholly paid by the city at large, must be authorized by resolution, passed by the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to the board of aldermen and board of finance, respectively. Any such work or improvement, the cost of which is to be wholly paid otherwise than by the city at large, must be authorized by the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to the board of aldermen, with the consent of a majority in interest, to be ascertained in such manner as the Legislature may prescribe, of all the owners of land within the district of assessment limited for the cost of such work or improvement. Any such work or improvement, the cost of which is to be paid in part by the city at large, and in part by local assessment, must be authorized by a resolution passed by the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to the board of aldermen and board of finance, respectively, with the consent of a majority in interest, to be ascertained as hereinbefore directed, of all the owners of the land within the prescribed district of assessment.

§ 11. No money shall be borrowed by any city government for the purpose of defraying any of the expenses of the city for which an appropriation has been made, except in anticipation of the revenue of the year in which the same may be borrowed, applicable to such purposes; and all moneys so borrowed must be paid out of such revenue, or out of revenues specially provided to supply any deficiency in the collection thereof; provided, however, that temporary loans, in anticipation of taxes, may be renewed, so far as such taxes may not have been collected, when the same are, in the opinion of the board, fully secured by valid liens on real estate. No city shall borrow any money for any other purpose, except under and in accordance with the following conditions and limitations, in addition to any other conditions and limitations contained in the Constitution:

1. The debt must be for some single work or object only, and must be authorized by a resolution passed by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the board of finance, and approved by the mayor, distinctly specifying such work or object, and the amount of the debt to be incurred.

2. The Legislature must, before the creation of such a debt, assent thereto by a law passed by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each house. Such law shall also distinctly specify the single work or object for which the debt is created, and the amount of the debt authorized, and shall contain provisions for a sinking fund to meet the same at maturity, and requiring at least ten per cent of the principal to be annually raised by taxation and paid into the sinking fund.

§ 12. Except as prescribed by the first section of this article, no change in the organization of, or in the distribution of powers in, a city government, or in the terms or tenure of office therein, shall be made by the Legislature, unless by an act passed upon the application of the city, made by resolution both of the board of aldermen and of the board of finance, respectively, approved by the mayor, or by an act which shall have received the sanction of two successive Legislatures.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, April 20, 1877. }

To the Senate:

I return, without approval, Senate bill No. 58, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act amending chapter 837 of the Laws of 1868, and chapter 623, Laws of 1869, in reference to the laying out, opening and continuing of Bushwick avenue, in the town of New Lots, Kings county.'"

Section 1 of this bill provides that "the commissioners now acting in the laying out, opening and continuing Bushwick avenue, in the town of New Lots, and their successors, immediately after the confirmation of the report of awards and assessments, as provided for in section 3, shall enter upon the lands taken for said avenue, and shall cause the same to be properly graded, regulated and prepared for public travel."

Section 18 of article 3 of the Constitution provides, that the Legislature shall not pass a private or local bill in the case of "laying out, opening, altering, working or discontinuing roads, highways or alleys."

The bill is a clear violation of this provision. I am, therefore, compelled, as a matter of duty, to withhold my approval.

But, aside from its constitutionality, the bill ought not to become a law. By section 2 it is provided that the supervisor shall borrow, on the faith and credit of the town, such sum or sums as may be necessary for this improvement, and issue the bonds of the town therefor without any proper authority from the town. No limit is fixed to the power thus conferred, nor is it even provided that the bonds shall not be sold for less than par. Under this act money may be borrowed to an unlimited extent, and bonds issued and sold at such rates and on such terms as a supervisor thinks advisable. These two objections are fatal to the bill. The general laws provide that boards of supervisors shall take charge of the subject-matter of this bill, and to them should be left the control of this and similar local improvements.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. Jacobs moved that said message be laid upon the table.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Woodin, from the committee on engrossed bills, reported as correctly engrossed the bill and concurrent resolution, entitled as follows:

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, {
ALBANY, April 23, 1877. }

To the Senate:

Since my message to the Senate of the date of April 5, 1877, recommending the removal from office of De Witt C. Ellis, Superintendent of the Banking Department, upon charges and proofs then presented, I have received additional charges against the same officer, which I herewith submit for your consideration.

Of these, the following are made by Mr. John Mack, of 365 Fifth avenue, New York:

1. That Mr. Ellis was informed in March, 1875, by Geo. W. Reid and W. F. Aldrich, bank examiners, that the Bond Street Savings Bank had made investments not authorized by law, and that it then had a deficiency of $20,000, in the annual income necessary to pay its dividends and expenses. The report of the gentlemen of their examinations made in March, 1875, attached to the next subsequent annual report of the department (see Assembly Documents, 1876, No. 97, pp. 269, 270), sustains this allegation. Mr. Mack adds that the bank was not put into the hands of a receiver until the following year, 1876.

2. That Mr. Ellis was informed in November, 1875, by Geo. W. Reid, examiner, that the People's Savings Bank of New York city had a large deficiency of assets, and a deficiency of $10,000 in annual income. The document previously quoted, page 316, sustains this allegation. Mr. Mack adds that no receiver was appointed until 1876.

3. A similar charge as to the Trader's Savings bank.

4. A similar charge as to the Abingdon Square Savings Bank, reported by the examiner in November, 1875, as having violated its charter by certain transactions in real estate, sustained by the document already quoted, page 264.

5. A similar charge as to the German Savings Bank of Morrisania, reported in April, 1875, as having a deficiency of $77,000 (see page 290 of document previously quoted), and allowed to go on until March, 1877, when it failed.

6. Charges of neglect of duty in reference to the Bank of Lansingburgh, the New York State Loan and Trust Company, and the Loaners' Bank.

7. A charge that in the autumn of 1873, he, John Mack, personally urged upon Mr. Ellis the importance of an examination of the Security Bank, informing said Ellis that he, Mack, had reason to know that from $60,000 to $80,000 of its capital had been lost; that Ellis refused and neglected to make an examination; that in April, 1874, the bank failed, disclosing a loss of three-fourths of its capital.

In addition to these, the following charge is made by Edward Mallon, of 434 West Twenty-eighth street, New York city, to wit:

That Mr. Ellis was informed by George W. Reid and W. F. Aldrich, bank examiners, that in a written report of an examination made by them, of the Third Avenue Savings Bank, on the 22d and 23d of March, 1875, that the bank was then insolvent, having a deficiency of assets of $219,226.81, and of annual income of $44,791; that there was also an old deficiency of $115,000, discovered in previous years, for which last-named deficiency the department had taken the personal bond of the trustees of the bank. These allegations are sustained by the report of the examiners, found in Assembly documents of 1876, No. 97, page 330.

Mr. Mallon alleges further, that an additional deficiency of $100,000 had been covered up by adding that amount to the cost of the banking house. He also alleges that the trustees are now resisting payment of the bond of $115,000, on the ground that there was no consideration given. He also alleges that the same report revealed large investments in real estate not authorized by the charter, and that many of the other securities were of doubtful value, which allegations appear to be sustained by the report above cited.

He also alleges that Mr. Ellis neglected to take any measures to close the bank, and that six months afterward, to wit, in September, 1875, it stopped payment; that during these six months great wrong was done by the trustees paying the deposits of certain favored friends, and by the bank, in that period, inducing 600 new accounts to be opened with it; and that a statement made by Mr. Ellis, in his report of the 30th of March, 1876, to the effect that in consequence of the examination made in March, 1875, he, the Superintendent, had caused the bank to be closed is untrue; that the loss to depositors is about $1,200,000, the dividend being only fifteen per cent.

As the Senate is already engaged in investigating charges similar to those heretofore presented, I have not deemed it necessary to submit those now made to Mr. Ellis, for any preliminary explanation on his part. The allegations contained in these, that Mr. Ellis was officially notified by his own examiners of the dangerous and, in fact, insolvent condition of the institutions named, are in several instances amply sustained by the documentary evidence cited. Whether he was guilty in any of those instances of culpable negligence in delaying proper action after he had been so notified, is a matter of very ready proof or disproof before you. That there may be no technical objection to investigation of and action upon these charges, I again recommend the removal of DeWitt C. Ellis from the office of Superintendent of the Banking Department, as well upon the charges transmitted herewith as upon those heretofore presented and now under consideration in the Senate.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. Vedder moved that said message and accompanying documents be referred to the committee on banks, with instructions to investigate the same under the resolution heretofore adopted by the Senate.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

The Senate again resolved itself into a committee of the whole, and proceeded to the consideration of general orders, being the bills and concurrent resolution entitled as follows :

"An act to amend chapter 874 of the Laws of 1871, entitled 'An act authorizing the surrogates in the several counties to employ stenographers.'"

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That section 6 of article 6 of the Constitution, be amended so that it shall read as follows :

"§ 6. There shall be the existing Supreme Court, with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals as now is, or may be, prescribed by law ; and it shall be composed of the justices now in office, with one additional justice, to be elected as hereinafter provided, who shall be continued during their respective terms, and of their successors. The existing judicial districts of the State, are continued until changed pursuant to this section. Five of the justices shall reside in the district in which is the city of New York, and five in the second judicial district, and four in each of the other districts. The Legislature may alter the districts, without increasing the number, once after every enumeration, under this Constitution, of the inhabitants of the State.

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That said amendment to said section 6 be referred to the Legislature, to be chosen at the next general election for Senators, and that pursuant to section 1 of article 18 of the Constitution, it be published for three months previous to the time of such election."

The Senate again resolved itself into a committee of the whole, and proceeded to the consideration of general orders, being the bills entitled as follows :

Assembly, "An act to dissolve the College of Missionaries."

"An act supplemental to chapter 140 of the Laws of 1850, entitled 'An act to authorize the formation of railroad corporations and to regulate the same,' passed April 2, 1850."

"An act supplemental to chapter 448 of the Laws of 1876, entitled 'An act relating to courts, officers of justice and civil proceedings.'"

After some time spent therein, the President resumed the chair, and Mr. Jacobs, from said committee, reported in favor of the passage of the first named bill, which report was agreed to, and the same ordered to a third reading.

Mr. Jacobs, from the same committee, reported progress on the second named bill, and asked and obtained leave to sit again.

Such receiver shall give such bonds and security as said superintendent shall require, and shall take immediate

And such receiver shall also have and possess all the rights, power and authority, and be subject to the same obligations and duties as are provided by law in relation to receivers appointed in case of voluntary dissolution of a corporation so far as the same be applicable. If any such corporation, for which a receiver has been appointed by said superintendent, shall deny its insolvency, such corporation may at any time, within ten days after being notified of the appointment of such receiver, apply to the supreme court or to the judge or justice thereof to enjoin all further proceedings by such superintendent or receiver, and such judge or justice, after notice to said superintendent and receiver to show cause why all further proceedings should not be enjoined, and after the decision of the judge or court, or the finding of the jury on a feigned issue, if one shall be awarded, that such bank is not insolvent, shall make an order revoking the appointment of such receiver, and enjoining such superintendent and receiver from all further proceedings on account of such alleged insolvency. The said receiver shall act under the directions and advice of said superintendent unless otherwise directed by an order of the court, and shall be subject to removal for cause by said superintendent and also by order of the supreme court, and in case of his removal, death or resignation, a successor shall in like manner be appointed by said superintendent.

Change section 4 to section 9 and add to it the following:

"It shall be the duty of the trustees of any such corporation, as often as once in each six months during each year, to cause to be taken an accurate balance of their depositors' ledgers, and in their semi-annual report to the Superintendent of the Banking Department, they shall state the fact that such balance has been taken, and shall state the discrepancies, if any, existing between the amount due to depositors as shown by such balances, and the amount due to depositors as shown by the general ledger."

And all provisions of law relating to filling vacancies in said offices, and for the enforcement of penalties for neglect or violation of their duties, and for the location of their respective offices for receiving the taxes, are hereby continued in force.

§ 2. Each of said officers, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall execute to the supervisor of the town of which he is receiver or collector, a bond with sufficient sureties and in such penalty, not less than $50,000, as the supervisor of the town shall direct; and the sureties shall severally justify under oath, to be indorsed upon said bond, in sums which together shall constitute at least double the amount of the penalty of the said bond, and shall be such sureties as the supervisor of the town may approve. If any person who shall become the surety of any such receiver or collector shall, by notice in writing to be served on the supervisor of the town in which such receiver or collector holds office, require the said receiver or collector to renew his official bond, such person shall be discharged from any future liability as such surety, from and after the settlement of the accounts of such receiver or collector for money received by him, which settlement shall be made by the said receiver or collector within thirty days after notice from the supervisor to that effect. Each of said receivers and collectors shall receive for his services such salary, commission or other compensation as is now provided by law to be paid receivers or collectors of taxes in the several towns hereinbefore mentioned respectively, except as hereinafter expressly fixed.

§ 3. The board of supervisor of Queens county shall annually deliver to said receivers and collectors of taxes the assessment rolls of their respective towns, with the taxes apportioned thereon, together with a warrant for the collection thereof annexed or subjoined thereto, and shall require all payments specified in such warrant to be made on or before the twentieth day of August then next ensuing.

§ 4. It shall be the duty of each of the said receivers and collectors of taxes respectively, personally to retain in his possession at his office or place for the reception of taxes, and not elsewhere, and deliver to his successor in office all books, papers, maps, warrants and assessment rolls, which shall, from time to time, be delivered to him by the supervisors of Queens county, or the supervisor of the town, or which may otherwise legally come into his possession, and to receive all taxes that may be paid at the said office or place for the reception of taxes in the manner hereinafter provided.

§ 5. Each of such receivers and collectors of taxes shall, within one week after the receiving from the board of supervisors the warrant for the collection of taxes or assessments in his town, give notice in all the newspapers published in such town, and by posting notices in at least six conspicuous places in each election district therein, stating when such taxes or assessments are payable to him at his office or place designated for the reception of taxes, and also the per centage to be added from time to time if not so paid, and specifying the date or time when he will be in attendance at his said office to receive the same, and also when he will proceed to collect the same by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the persons who may be charged with such taxes or assessments, or from goods and chattels found upon the premises taxed or assessed.

§ 6. It shall be the duty of each of the said receivers and collectors of taxes to be in attendance at his said office or place or places designated for the reception of taxes, to receive such taxes and assessments and give proper receipts therefor, during the first thirty days from the date or time of attendance specified in the above mentioned notice, on every day (Sundays and holidays excepted), from nine o'clock A. M. to four o'clock P. M., and thereafter during every week during the periods hereinafter set forth, on not less than two days, for at least six hours each day, such place, days and times to be stated in the notice aforesaid. And in those towns having receivers of taxes, it shall be the duty of such receiver, during the month of June and July in each year, and in those towns having collectors after the first thirty days from the time of receiving his warrant, to call at least once on each person taxed who shall not have paid the same, or at the place of his usual residence, if in his town, and collect the taxes charged to him on his property. And in case any person shall neglect or refuse to pay the tax imposed on his property, the receiver or collector, as the case may be, shall levy the same by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the person taxed or assessed for the same, or of any goods and chattels in his possession, wherever the same may be found within the town of which the said receiver or collector is an official, and no claim of property to be made thereto by any other person shall be available to prevent a sale. The collector or receiver shall give public notice of the time and place of sale, and of the property to be sold, at least six days previous to the sale, by advertisements to be posted up in at least six public places in the town where such sale shall be made, which sale shall be by public auction. And any surplus of the property so sold over the tax and expenses of the receiver or collector making such sale, shall be paid to the person in whose possession the property was, when the distress was made, if not claimed by any other person. If any other person claim said surplus on the ground that the property sold belonged to him, and his claim be admitted by the person for whose tax the same was sold, the surplus shall be paid to such claimant, but if his claim be contested by the person for whose tax the property was sold, then the surplus money shall be paid to the supervisor of the town until the rights of the parties shall be determined by due course of law. The receiver or collector shall serve, within two weeks after the expiration of the first thirty days, a written or printed notice by mail or otherwise, on every person whose residence is known to him, whose taxes or assessments shall then remain unpaid, specifying the amount of the tax and the extra per centage and interest to be added, and he shall be entitled to add twenty-five cents, for every such notice actually sent, to the tax of any person paying such tax to him after the sending of such notice.

§ 7. In those towns in Queens county recited in the first section of this act having receivers of taxes, no percentage shall be added to any tax or assessment paid within the first thirty days from the date or time of attendance specified in the notice to be published and posted as above directed; two per cent shall be added to all taxes and assessments paid during the second and third thirty days, and one per cent shall be added for every thirty days thereafter until such tax be paid, or until the said receiver shall make his return to the county treasurer, and from and after the time when such return shall be made, interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum shall be added to all taxes or assessments and including the per centage to be calculated from the said day of return, then unpaid; and in those towns in said county having collectors of taxes, such collectors shall be entitled to charge and receive one per cent on all taxes collected during the first thirty days, and five per cent for all taxes collected during the next sixty days, and until he makes return to county treasurer, and interest at the rate of twelve per cent per annum, from date of warrant, shall be charged on all amounts remaining unpaid at the expiration of the said sixty days, in addition to the said five per cent, and collectors shall receive the same per centage now allowed them by law for making return of unpaid taxes to the county treasurer; the per centage herein mentioned to apply to every dollar or fractional part thereof.

§ 8. The said receiver or collector of taxes shall immediately, upon the receipt of said taxes or assessments, enter in suitable books to be kept for that purpose, the sums received by him for taxes or assessments respectively, and the number or description of the lot or parcel of land, according to the assessment roll delivered to him, with the names of the persons on whose account the same shall be paid, and the amount of all taxes on personal property, with the names of the persons on whose account the same have been paid, with the amount of the per centage and interest added to any of such sums, and shall, within five days after the expiration of every thirty days from the date when he shall first attend for the receipt of taxes, furnish the county treasurer of Queens county a detailed statement of such sums received, and the amount of per centage and interest added thereto, and the names on whose account they have been paid, and the amounts paid out by him in accordance with the warrant. The said receivers and collectors shall also pay over at the same time to the county treasurer, all sums of money remaining in their hands as shown by such detailed statement, and not otherwise directed to be paid out by them, under their warrant. The said collectors shall retain for their compensation all sums received for per centage on the money collected by them as provided by this act.

§ 9. It shall be the duty of the said receivers and collectors to collect the tax and assessments on all personal property during the second and third months that said assessment rolls shall be in their hands, and for that purpose they shall levy upon and sell any personal property belonging to the person taxed, in the same manner and pursue every other means to collect said tax and assessments that collectors of taxes are now by law authorized to pursue, and to make returns to the county treasurer in the same manner as herein provided for the return of taxes and assessments upon real estate.

§ 10. In any town of Queens county where an assessment map of the lands of such town is now, or may hereafter be made, in whole or in part, and shall be placed in the office of such receiver or collector of taxes, such maps shall be open to the inspection of all the tax-payers of said town at said office, during such time as such receiver or collector shall be there for the receiving of taxes. And all provisions of law relating to making or filing assessment maps of any town in Queens county, are hereby continued in force.

§ 11. It shall be the duty of each of said receivers and collectors to enter in a suitable book all changes and transfers of real property that may come to his knowledge, and to furnish a copy thereof, on or before the first day of May, in each year, to the assessors of the town of which he is an official.

§ 12. It shall be the duty of each of such receivers and collectors of taxes to render to the county treasurer in each year, between the first and twentieth days of August, a full and final account of all taxes remaining unpaid, with the names of all persons against whom the same have been assessed, and of all property upon which such taxes or assessments remain unpaid, as ascertained by the assessment roll of the town of which he is an officer, with the per centages, interest and amount due thereon, to be computed as provided in this act, which final account shall be verified by the affidavit of the receiver or collector making the same, written thereon or annexed thereto, setting forth that the said account, and all things therein contained, are true and correct, and the several amounts returned therein for unpaid taxes have not, nor has any or either of them, or any part thereof, been paid to or received by said receiver or collector, which final account shall be retained by the said county treasurer, and shall be filed by him in his office, and the unpaid taxes therein returned, with the per centage, interest and expenses, shall be collected as hereinafter provided.

§ 13. The county treasurer shall examine the account of unpaid taxes received from said receivers or collectors, and shall reject all taxes that shall be found to be charged on lands imperfectly described, or which cannot, from any cause whatever, be legally enforced, and shall forthwith deliver a transcript of such rejected taxes to the board of supervisors of Queens county, stating therein the cause of such rejection. In case the county treasurer shall have rejected any tax on account of any imperfect or inaccurate description of the land intended to have been assessed, the supervisor of the town in which said land is situated and assessed, shall, if in his power, add to the next assessment roll of the said town an accurate description of such land, and if necessary, he may cause the survey of such land at the expense of the town; and the board of supervisors, when such description shall have been perfected, shall charge the lands and persons intended to have been assessed, with the taxes, interest and per centage in arrears, as returned by said receiver or collector, and shall add thereto the interest thereon, at seven per cent per annum, from date of return to county treasurer, and shall direct the receiver or collector of taxes of such town to collect the same; and such taxes in arrears and interest when so re-assessed, shall, for all purposes of this act, be considered as taxes of the year in which the description shall be perfected. If any part of such rejected taxes cannot be so re-assessed, such part shall be assessed by the said board of supervisors on the real and personal property of the said town. And in case there be in the office of the treasurer of Queens county a record of any lots, pieces or parcels of land heretofore sold, which may not have had a proper or sufficient description, at the time of any sale of lands for unpaid taxes, definitely to locate the said lots, pieces or parcels of lands, and which, at such sale, have been struck off to any town in Queens county, or to any person on behalf of such town, the county treasurer shall deliver to the said board of supervisors a statement thereof, and the said board of supervisors shall thereupon proceed to re-assess the taxes on such lots, pieces or parcels of land, either upon the lands assessed, if the description thereof can be perfected, or upon the town, in the manner provided in this section, as hereinbefore provided in the case of lands rejected for imperfect description. The county treasurer shall, when he makes return of such lots, pieces or parcels of land, reject all fees that may have been charged upon such lands, and shall make return of such lands for the amount of tax for which such lands were sold or struck off, with the cost of publication added and interest thereon from the day of sale, at the rate of seven per cent per annum; and thereafter the board of supervisors shall proceed as directed in this section, and cause the receiver or collector of the town in which said lands are located, to collect the amount then due on said lands, and all taxes on said lots, pieces or parcels of lands that shall remain unpaid when he shall make his annual return of unpaid taxes to the county treasurer, shall be included in said return, and shall be considered as the taxes for the year in which said description was perfected.

§ 14. Whenever the county treasurer of Queens county shall receive from the receiver or collector of taxes mentioned in this act the full and final return of unpaid taxes hereinbefore required to be made, and on the payment to him of the money payable to such county treasurer by the said receiver or collector, or of so much thereof as shall have been collected by the said receiver or collector, and on the delivery to the said county treasurer of the certificate of the supervisor of the town of which such receiver or collector is an official, certifying that said receiver or collector has paid to such supervisor the sums as directed in his warrant, and the county treasurer shall be satisfied of the correctness of such return after due examination, he shall cancel and discharge the bond of said receiver or collector, and shall deliver to him a certificate thereof, which certificate shall be filed in the office of the clerk of Queens county, and shall be a full release and discharge of said receiver or collector and his sureties.

§ 15. The county treasurer shall, at any time within twelve months after the delivery to him of the final return of the said receiver or collector, cause a list of all unpaid taxes or assessments in each town, with the per centage and interest added, and the description of the premises as contained in the assessment roll of said town, to be published once a week for eight consecutive weeks, next preceding the day fixed for the sale of said lands, together with a notice that if the said taxes, with the per centage and interest added, and the expense of publication and the county treasurer's charges be not paid to the county treasurer before the appointed day of sale, the lots, plots or parcels of land described in said notice, will be sold at public auction at a place in said town therein to be specified and at the time specified in said notice, for the shortest period of time that any person or persons may offer to take the same, in consideration of advancing the said tax with the per centage, interest and expenses that shall have accrued thereon, at the time of such sale; such publication shall be made in the two weekly newspapers published in such town having, during the year preceding, the largest average circulation, to be determined by the affidavits of the publishers thereof who will publish the same for the sum fixed by this act. In case but one weekly newspaper is published in such town, then in that paper and in the weekly paper of largest circulation published in a town adjoining, and in case no newspaper is published in such town, then in the two weekly papers of largest circulation published in a town, or towns adjoining; the circulation to be determined as aforesaid, but such advertisement shall not, in any case, be awarded to two papers owned or controlled by the same person. And the county treasurer shall cause a printed copy of said list and notice, to be posted in at least six of the most public places in said town, one of said places to be the town hall or the town clerk's office in said town, at least four weeks before the day fixed for the sale of said lands. Each newspaper in which such publication shall be made, shall receive therefor the sum of fifty cents for every lot, plot, or parcel of land separately assessed of any property described or assessed by its map number or any town assessment map, farm or other map, or the description of which occupies but one line in such publication; and for every lot, plot or parcel of land not so described or assessed, and the description of which occupies more than one line, fifty cents for the first line and ten cents for each subsequent line. If the amount mentioned in said notice, and the expense of publication and the county treasurer's charges, shall be paid to the county treasurer within the time limited by the said notice, the county treasurer shall deliver to the person making such payment a receipt therefor, expressing each item separately, and all further proceedings shall be discontinued.

§ 16. The county treasurer, at the time and place of sale mentioned in said notice, shall cause such lands and premises to be sold at public auction, for the payment of such taxes and assessments, or such part thereof as may be remaining unpaid, and the per centage and interest thereon, together with the expenses of advertisement and sale. The sale shall be for the shortest term of years for which any person will take the premises, and pay the amount of tax or assessments, with the per centage, interest and expenses. The right of redemption in all cases of sale within fifteen months from the day of sale shall exist to the owner of the premises sold, or to any other person claiming an interest therein, by the payment of the amount bid at such sale, with interest, at the rate of twelve per cent per annum, calculated from the day of sale to the time of making such redemption, and the further sum of one dollar for each and every notice served in pursuance of the eighteenth section of this act, and verified by affidavit filed in said county treasurer's office; such payment to be made to the county treasurer for the use of the purchaser or purchasers, or the legal representative or assigns of such purchaser or purchasers; and a certificate of the fact of such payment having been made, in redemption of the said premises, shall be delivered by the county treasurer to the party redeeming. Upon a sale being made, the county treasurer shall give to the purchaser or purchasers a certificate in writing, subscribed by said county treasurer, containing the name of the purchaser or purchasers, a brief description of the premises sold, the term for which the same was sold, the amount of the tax or assessment with the per centage, interest and expenses for which the sale was made, the name of the owner or owners of the premises if the same shall appear on the assessment roll, and the time when the purchaser will be entitled to a lease of the premises in case the same be not redeemed.

§ 17. There shall be kept in the office of the county treasurer, a record of all sales made for taxes or assessments, which record shall show the amount of the tax or assessment for which said premises were sold, a description of the premises sold, the date of the sale, the name and address of the person to whom sold, the term of years for which such property was sold, the time of the delivery of the lease, to whom delivered, and when the same will expire; also, if a certificate is assigned, the name and address of the person to whom it is assigned, which record shall be open for public inspection.

§ 18. In the case of all parcels of land assessed as the property of residents, the purchaser at such tax sale shall cause a notice to be served within six months after the date of the sale on the owner of any such parcel bought at such sale, as his name appears on the assessment roll, either personally or by mail, addressed to such owner at his post-office address within such town, which notice shall state the sale of such parcel, the date of sale, the time of redemption, and the amount for which sold. For which notice the purchaser shall be allowed the sum of one dollar to be paid by the party redeeming. An affidavit of the mode of such service, with a copy of the notice served, shall be filed in the office of the county treasurer within thirty days after such service, and such affidavit shall be presumptive evidence of such service. In case the premises sold shall not be redeemed within the time limited for that purpose, the county treasurer shall execute and deliver to the person or persons legally entitled thereto, a lease of such premises, subscribed by the county treasurer making the sale, or by his successor in office, which lease shall be for the term for which such premises were sold, computing the same from the expiration of fifteen months from the day of sale; which lease shall be presumptive evidence that such tax was legally imposed, and that the proceedings and sale were regular. The person or persons lawfully holding such lease may, by virtue thereof, obtain possession of the premises in the manner prescribed by law relative to persons holding over any real estate sold under execution, and shall and may lawfully hold and enjoy the premises during the time specified in the lease against the owner or owners thereof, and all persons claiming under such owner or owners; provided, in the case of a resident owner, that the notice above provided for in this section has been served as there directed. An affidavit of the mode of such service, with a copy of the notice served, shall be filed in the office of the county treasurer, within thirty days after such service, and such affidavit shall be presumptive evidence of such service. The person or persons lawfully holding such lease, may, at the expiration of the term and within thirty days thereafter, remove all buildings put on the premises during the term in the exercise of the right of the occupancy under such lease.

§ 19. All sales for taxes under and by virtue of this act, may be conducted by the county treasurer in the town where the lands to be sold are located and assessed without employing a public auctioneer, unless he should elect so to do at his own expense, and said county treasurer shall continue said sale from day to day, until the same shall be completed. On the day fixed for the sale of said lands, should no bid be made for any of the lots or parcels that may be offered for sale, the county treasurer shall strike off such lots or parcels of land to the town in which such lands are located and assessed, for the term of one thousand years. The total fees and charges to be allowed the county treasurer on all lands struck off to any town, when paid by the town, shall be one dollar for each lot, piece or parcel of land so struck off, in addition to the expenses of publication, as hereinbefore provided, and shall be paid by the town where said lands are located and assessed. The supervisor of said town is hereby authorized to assign the certificate of sale of any lots or parcels of lands so sold, to any person who offers to take the said lots or parcels and pay the amount for which said lots or parcels were struck off, and the expense of publication and county treasurer's fees, as defined by this act thereon, with interest thereon at the rate of twelve per cent per annum, and the sum of fifty cents for such assignment, or to sell the said certificates or any leases executed to such town under this act at public auction to the highest bidder, and thereupon to execute the proper assignments to convey the same to the purchaser.

§ 20. Any person entitled and desiring to redeem any part or portion of a piece of land sold by virtue of this act, may do so by particularly describing, by survey or diagram, the portion desired to be redeemed, in a manner satisfactory to the county treasurer of Queens county, whose duty it shall thereupon be to apportion the total amount due on such entire piece of land in an equitable manner between such parcel so to be redeemed, and the portion not redeemed, in proportion to their respective value; and upon such apportionment, said treasurer shall make a record and description of the portion redeemed, as well as the portion not redeemed, for which service said treasurer shall be authorized to charge and receive the sum of five dollars, to be paid by the person seeking to redeem.

§ 21. The county treasurer shall be allowed, in case the proceedings be discontinued before the sale, in accordance with the provisions of this act, the amount actually paid by him for publication in newspapers as aforesaid, and for his own fees upon the same, the sum of one dollar and fifty cents for every lot, plot or parcel so assessed; in case of sale he may charge and receive for each lot or parcel separately assessed and sold, the sum of two dollars and fifty cents, besides the sum paid for publication; in case a lease is given he may charge and receive the further sum of one dollar, to be paid by the person receiving such lease; and for making and certifying a search for unpaid taxes, sales for unpaid taxes and redemption from such sale, the said county treasurer shall be entitled to demand and receive, for the search and certificate, three dollars, which fees, as herein provided, shall be in full for all charges of said county treasurer, for services and expenses required under the provisions of this act, or of any law relating to the sales of lands for unpaid taxes in either of said towns.

§ 22. Whenever it shall be made to appear to the county treasurer, by affidavit or by the production of the receipted bill, that any tax returned as unpaid was, previously to such return, paid to the receiver or collector of the town where the lands described in such affidavit or bill are located and assessed, the county treasurer shall cancel such tax on the books of his office, and deliver a certificate thereof to the person or persons applying therefor, for which service and certificate the said county treasurer shall be entitled to receive the sum of one dollar, which shall be charged to the town in which such tax was imposed.

§ 23. In case several contiguous lots or pieces of land having distinct numbers on the assessment map of any town, or on any farm map, or other map filed in the county clerk's office of Queens county, shall be owned by the same person or persons, it shall be lawful for the persons owning such contiguous lots to deliver to the town assessors, or any one of them, on or before the first day of June in each year, a notice in writing, stating the map numbers and location of the said contiguous lots, and that the same all belong to the same person or persons, and requesting the said assessors to include all the said contiguous lots in one plot or parcel, and value and assess the same as one plot or parcel of land, and thereupon it shall be the duty of the assessors to value and assess the same as one plot or parcel, in accordance with said notice. Streets appearing on any such map, but which have never been actually opened, shall not be considered as destroying such contiguity.

§ 24. Each of said receivers and collectors of taxes respectively, may appoint some proper person as deputy receiver or collector, who shall hold his office during the pleasure of the said receiver or collector; such appointment shall be in writing, under the hand of the said receiver or collector, and shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the town for which he may be appointed, and shall continue during the official term of said receiver or collector, unless sooner revoked. Such deputy, before entering upon the discharge of his duty, shall take the oath required by the Constitution, which oath shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the town, and shall execute to the receiver or collector making the appointment, such bond as the latter may require, for the faithful performance of his duties. Such deputy shall have the same power as the receiver or collector to collect and receipt for the payment of taxes, but shall, in the exercise of his duties, be subject to the control and direction of the said receiver or collector, and his compensation shall be paid by such receiver or collector, and shall not be chargeable to the town. Any default or malfeasance in office of such deputy shall be deemed to be a breach of the bond given by the receiver or collector who appointed him.

§ 25. But this act is not intended to affect any act providing for the collection of taxes, or for the sale of lands for unpaid taxes in Long Island City.

§ 23. There shall be three bureaus in said fire department:

1. A bureau charged with the duty of preventing and extinguishing fire, and of protecting property from water used in fires, the chief officer of which shall be called the "chief of department."

2. A bureau charged with the execution of all laws relating to the storage, sale and use of combustible materials, and investigating the cause of fires, the chief officer of which shall be called the "fire marshal."

3. A bureau charged with the execution of all laws relating to buildings in the city of New York, the chief officer of which shall be called the "superintendent of buildings."

§ 24. All proceedings relating to the enforcement of the building laws in said city shall be commenced and prosecuted in the name of the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city, and it shall be the duty of the counsel to the corporation to institute and prosecute such proceedings when instructed to do so by the head of the fire department or the superintendent of buildings.

The provisions of this act, as to appointment and removal, shall be applicable to commissioners of excise.

Within ten days prior to the expiration of the terms of office of any officer, he is so herein authorized to appoint, he shall appoint a successor to such officer, who shall take office at the expiration of such term of office.

§ 28. Any personal property in the possession or under the care of any department, board or officers, as aforesaid, and not required for the purposes administered by such department, board or officer may, with the approval of the mayor, be transferred to any other department, board or officer requiring the same in the administration of the purposes of such departments, board or officers.

§ 29. § 33. This act shall take effect immediately, except as otherwise provided.

Mr. Woodin moved that said bill be laid upon the table, and that the same, as amended in the Assembly, be printed.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, {
ALBANY, May 4, 1877. }

To the Senate:

I return without approval Senate bill No. 208, entitled "An act to amend chapter 605 of the Laws of 1875, entitled 'An act in relation to the county treasurers of the counties of Monroe and Seneca.' " It is, and for a long time has been, a gross wrong that the money paid by taxpayers for State purposes is not permitted to reach the State treasury until many months after its payment. It is stopped on the way and loaned, or used for commercial purposes, by the county treasurers, or by the banks in which they deposit it. Frequent losses and defalcations occur by reason of such misuse of the money.

The law which this bill proposes to amend was an effort to remedy the evil and to secure the payment into the treasury of the taxes as soon after their collection as practicable. As originally introduced into the Legislature it applied to the whole State, but before its passage, all the counties, except Monroe and Seneca, were exempted from its operation. These two counties remain subject to its provisions, and the treasurers are required at stated intervals to pay over to the banks designated by the boards of supervisors all the moneys received by them, designating the amounts belonging to the State, which amounts are subject to immediate draft by the Comptroller and State Treasurer.

This bill exempts the banks from the liability to immediate payment, and authorizes them to keep the money until the middle of April and first of May, which will usually be a period of from two to four months from the time of its receipt. The banks give no security to the State. The bond given by the county treasurer to the State, if any is given, is fully complied with by his payment of the money to the banks in accordance with the law. The effect, therefore, of this bill, will be to place the money of the people in the banks, to be used by them without interest and without security, for the period above mentioned, and in the event of the failure of the banks the money would be lost.

The people should not be compelled to furnish capital for banking purposes, and run the risk of its loss besides. Taxes are levied for the benefit of the State, not of private corporations. Any relief the Legislature can extend in the matter of their collection is more needed by the tax-payers than the banks.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. Emerson moved that said message be laid upon the table.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, May 4, 1877. }

To the Senate :

I return without approval Senate bill No. 188, entitled "An act to amend chapter 654 of the Laws of 1869, entitled 'An act authorizing the construction of a railroad through certain streets in the city of Poughkeepsie, and through certain streets and roads in the town of Poughkeepsie, in the county of Dutchess.' "

The object of this bill is to relieve the railroad company chartered by the act sought to be amended from the obligation to run its cars during the months of December, January, February and March in each year.

Public franchises ought to be given to private corporations only for the public good, and when bestowed strict compliance with their duties to the public should be exacted from those who enjoy their profits. The months named in this bill are those in which the inclemency of the season renders the regular running of a railroad most necessary to public accommodation. If this company can be relieved from public service during the winter season, any other company is entitled to the same exemption. The bill seems to me contrary to justice and sound policy, and I cannot, therefore, approve it.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. Carpenter moved that said message be laid upon the table.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK,
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER — ALBANY, May 4, 1877. }

To the Senate:

I return without approval Senate bill not printed, entitled "An act authorizing and confirming a lease made by Benjamin Lewis and other Seneca Indians to George A. Berry, of the right to transmit crude petroleum oil through a pipe over certain lands on the Allegany reservation, and authorizing said George A. Berry to use such land for that purpose."

I understand that it has been held by the Supreme Court, both at special and general term, that no valid contract can be made with the Indians for the sale or use of their land on the reservation in question, without the assent of the Congress of the United States. Aside from this objection, it is evident that this case is invalid, for the reason that it is made by certain individual Indians, and not by or with the assent of the Seneca Nation to which the lands belong.

I have received from the President of the Seneca Nation of Indians a protest against the approval of this bill, which states the case so truly and fairly, that I present it without abridgment. It is as follows:

"INDIAN RESERVATION, April 21, 1877.

"To his Excellency Gov. ROBINSON:

"I notice that a bill has just passed the Legislature, confirming a lease purporting to have been made by Benjamin Lewis and other individual Indians to G. A. Berry, for pipe line purposes. I write to protest against the signing of this bill. As you are aware, the Seneca Nation of Indians has the legal title to the entire reservation, and through its council and chosen officers, is entitled to its control.

"If any parties interested in pipe lines desire to acquire rights on our reservation, they should apply to our council, which has not been done in the case in question. This is the first instance within my knowledge where the Legislature has assumed to disregard the powers and privileges of the constituted authorities of the nation, and attempt to confer them upon individual Indians. If it can be done in one case it can in all. The result may well be that, through bargains with improvident and ignorant Indians, the rights of our nation may be seriously complicated and impaired.

"On behalf of the nation, I respectfully but earnestly protest against such precedent as would be established if the bill in question should become a law. It will be seen that, if an individual Indian can make a lease for pipe line, he can for a railroad, distillery or for any other purpose. The possession of an individual Indian is allowed simply for the purpose of giving him a home, and not for any purpose contemplated by this bill.

"Respectfully yours.

"JOHN JACKETT,

"President of the Seneca Nation of Indians.

"T. T. JAMESON, Clerk Seneca Nation of Indians."

The justice and propriety of the statements and remarks made in this protest must be admitted. The good faith of the State is pledged for the protection of the rights of the Seneca Nation of Indians on this reservation, and it must be sacredly observed, whatever may be the inconvenience to individuals.

L. ROBINSON.

McKee, E. Case, Clapp, Rice and Galvin.

"§ 2. Section 4 of said act is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

§ 4. It shall be lawful for the trustees to call in and demand from the stockholders respectively, all sums of money by them subscribed, at such times and in such payments or installments as the trustees shall deem proper, under the penalty of forfeiting (such trustees or stockholders so decide) the shares of stock subscribed for, and any and all previous payments made thereon, if payment shall not be made by the stockholders within sixty days after a personal demand or a notice requiring such payment shall have been published for three successive weeks, once in each week, in a newspaper printed in the city of Brooklyn; provided, that after the lapse of said sixty days such subscriber so forfeiting shall in no case be liable for the unpaid assessments or balance."

SECTION 1. It shall not be lawful for any company, corporation, association, individual or individuals now transacting, or now or hereafter authorized under any existing or future laws of this State, to transact the business of fire insurance within this State, to state or represent, either by advertisement in any newspaper, magazine or periodical, or by any sign, circular, card, policy of insurance, or certificate of renewal thereof, or otherwise, any funds or assets to be in possession of any such company, corporation, association, individual or individuals, not actually possessed by such company, corporation, association, individual or individuals, and available for the payment of losses by fire, and held for the protection of holders of policies of fire insurance.

§ 2. Every advertisement or public announcement, and every sign, circular or card hereafter made or issued by any company, corporation, association, individual or individuals, or any officer, agent, manager or legal representative thereof, now or hereafter authorized by any existing or future laws of this State, to transact the business of fire insurance within this State, which shall purport to make known the financial standing of any such company, corporation, association, individual or individuals, shall exhibit the capital actually paid in in cash, and the amount of net surplus of assets over all liabilities of such company, corporation, association, individual or individuals, actually available for the payment of losses by fire and held for the protection of holders of their policies of fire insurance, including in such liabilities the fund reserved for reinsurance of outstanding risks, and shall correspond with the verified statement made by the company, corporation, association, individual or individuals, making or issuing the same to the insurance department of this State, next preceding the making or issuing of the same.

Whereas, Most of our sister States have made provision for the honorable support of their veterans, who, through misfortune or old age, have become incapacitated for labor; and,

Resolved, (if the Assembly concur); That the people of the State of New York, in Legislature assembled, heartily sympathize with the project for the removal from the Empire State of the disgrace attending the presence in the county poor-houses of so many hundreds of her brave defenders, and that it is the sense of this Legislature, if the proposed institution shall be fully completed by private subscriptions at an aggregate cost for land and buildings of not less than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000), that the State should make adequate provision for the maintenance of such institution as one of the charities of the State — if transferred to it free of incumbrance — as should provide for the proper support of the worthy disabled soldiers and sailors of the State in this or some similar institution.

Whereas, Most of our sister States have made provision for the honorable support of their veterans who, through misfortune or old age, have become incapacitated for labor ; and,

Whereas, Official returns from thirty-five (35) of the sixty (60) counties of the State show that there are at present six hundred and forty-one (641) veteran soldiers and sailors of the Union army and navy reduced to want, and supported as a public charge in the county poor-houses of the State; and,

Whereas, A farm of two hundred and forty (240) acres, in the vicinity of Bath, Steuben county, has been purchased to provide a home for these disabled soldiers and sailors, and private subscriptions are in process of collection for the purpose of erecting thereon suitable buildings for their accommodation; therefore, be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the people of the State of New York, in Legislature assembled, heartily sympathize with the project for the removal from the Empire State of the disgrace attending the presence in the county poor-houses of so many hundred of her brave defenders, and that it is the sense of this Legislature, if the proposed institution shall be fully completed by private subscriptions, at an aggregate cost for land and buildings of not less than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000), that the State should make adequate provision for the maintenance of such institution, as one of the charities of the State, if transferred to it free of incumbrance, as should provide for the proper support of the worthy disabled soldiers and sailors of the State in this or in some similar institution.

Strike out section 24 as amended by the Senate and insert the following in lieu thereof:

§ 24. It shall be the duty of the general term of the Supreme Court of the first judicial department, or the justices of said general term if said court is not in session, upon an application by said board of street openings and improvements for the purpose, which application shall be made within ten days after the passage of this act, to appoint three discreet, disinterested and competent persons, being citizens of the United States and residents in the city of New York, and not being in the employ of the city of New York, or of any of the departments thereof, nor in any service the compensation of which is paid from the city treasury, as commissioners of estimate and assessment, to perform the duties in that behalf prescribed by laws and ordinances now existing, or which may be hereafter passed, in all proceedings hereafter commenced for opening, altering, extending or widening any road, street, avenue or public place within said city, whether in conformity with any plan or map theretofore adopted, or which may be hereafter adopted, which said commissioners, before they enter upon the performance of their duties under their appointment, shall severally take and subscribe an oath or affirmation before some person authorized by law to administer oaths, faithfully to perform the trust and duties required of them as commissioners of estimate and assessment by law, which oath or affirmation shall be filed in the clerk's office of the city and county of New York. The person first named by said general term in the order appointing said commissioners shall act as chairman of the commission. The said commissioners shall each receive as compensation for all their services in all proceedings, the sum of three thousand dollars per annum, and shall be paid in the same manner as heads of departments in said city are now paid. If any one or more of said commissioners shall, at any time, be interested in any land or property affected by a particular proceeding, he or they shall not serve therein, but one or more commissioners shall be appointed by said court to serve in his or their stead as commissioner or commissioners for that particular proceeding; and whenever any of said commissioners shall, by death or otherwise, vacate his office, the said court shall appoint some other person to fill such vacancy, upon the application of said board of street opening and improvement. The compensation of said commissioners of estimate and assessment shall be fairly apportioned and charged to each proceeding, together with such other costs, charges and expenses as may be properly chargeable thereto, as hereinafter provided. And all advertising and all notices required by law to be published, relating to said proceedings, shall be published in the City Record; and the publication of such advertisements or notices therein shall be deemed and taken to be a sufficient compliance with any law or ordinance requiring the publication or posting of such matters or notices thereof. The said board of street opening and improvement may include the opening, widening or straightening of one or more streets, avenues, squares, public parks or places in a single proceeding, and may employ a clerk and other necessary assistants, and fix their compensation, not exceeding seven thousand five hundred dollars per annum in the aggregate; and the comptroller may hire an office for the use of said board at a rent not exceeding one thousand dollars per annum. The commissioners of estimate and assessment shall hold their meetings at the office of the board of street opening and improvement, and shall not contract any expense or liability whatever, but may require that any necessary clerical or surveyor's work be performed by the clerk and surveyor of the board of street opening and improvement. No expenses or liabilities shall be incurred by said commissioners of estimate and assessment, and no expenses whatever shall be allowed on any such improvement, until they have been approved by the board of street opening and improvement; and it shall be the duty of each and every such commissioner of estimate and assessment to make a just and fair estimate of damage, and also of benefit, in respect of each and every piece of property affected, and to include within such estimate of benefit all property justly to be included therein; and if any such commissioner shall knowingly and corruptly make or assent to any assessment or award, or to any estimate not just and fair in respect of the true value, benefit or damage, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. The board of estimate and apportionment shall include in the annual estimate a sum sufficient to provide for the expense by this section authorized, and all sums charged in any proceeding as hereinbefore directed, shall when recovered be paid into the treasury of said city to the credit of the general fund. And to provide for said expenses for the year 1877 the comptroller shall issue revenue bonds payable from the taxes for the year 1878, and an amount sufficient to redeem said revenue bonds shall be included by the board of estimate and apportionment in the final estimate for the said year 1878."

Strike out section 30 as amended by the Senate and insert the following in lieu thereof:

§ 30. The commissioners of the sinking fund shall hereafter consist of the mayor, comptroller, chamberlain, recorder and the president of the board of aldermen. Whenever said commissioners shall authorize the investment or payment of any moneys from the sinking funds for the redemption of the city debt and the payment of interest on the city debt, the amounts required for such purposes shall be paid on the authority of said commissioners by warrant signed by the comptroller and countersigned by the chamberlain.

Section 32, line 14, after the word "for," insert the words "provided, however, that whenever it may be necessary in the erection of any building or other structure, or in the prosecution of any particular work for the collection and distribution of pure and wholesome water in said city, to employ the services of an engineer, architect, superintendent, inspector, clerk or other skilled person in addition to the services that can reasonably be performed by the regular officers and employes of the department having charge of such work, it shall be lawful for the head of such department to employ a suitable person or persons for such purpose, and the salary or compensation of such person or persons shall be paid out of the funds from which the other expense for such work is to be paid in accordance with law."

Section 33 is amended so as to read as follows:

§ 33. No demand, claim, or indebtedness of any character or description for any purpose whatever arising after the passage of this act, and not payable from moneys raised by bond or assessment as hereinbefore provided, shall hereafter form, or be a charge or obligation of, upon or against the said city, if, at the time such alleged claim or indebtedness was incurred, there was not an amount of the annual appropriation made therefor remaining unexpended, and in excess of all liabilities theretofore incurred, and payable therefrom, sufficient to pay the same. Hereafter no judgment shall be enforced against said city upon any demand, claim, or indebtedness arising after the passage of this act, unless ordered by a judge of the court in which such action is pending after at least two day's notice to the counsel to the corporation, and upon the affirmative proof that there is in the treasury appropriated for the purpose, and in excess of the liabilities theretofore incurred, and payable therefrom, a sum sufficient to pay such judgment, or that such claim is authorized to be paid from the proceeds of the stocks or bonds of the said city (other than judgment bonds so called), and that there remains appropriated but unissued an amount of such bonds or stocks authorized by law to be issued, sufficient to provide for and pay the same. As to any claim incurred after this act, no judgment shall be entered against said city, except upon affirmative proof of the existence of a sufficient unexpended and unincumbered appropriations as hereinbefore provided, or else upon affirmative proof that a statement designating the proper appropriation, and the amount thereof applicable to such liability has been given and indorsed in the manner herein provided. It is hereby made the duty of every head of department in said city to transmit to the comptroller daily statements of the aggregate amount of liabilities payable from taxation incurred by his department upon the day of the date of such statement, and a designation of the particular appropriation against which such liabilities are to be charged. Thereupon the comptroller shall cause such liabilities to be entered in the book of the department of finance, so that the unexpended and unincumbered amount of each appropriation can be ascertained upon each day from an examination of such books. Whenever any such liability is incurred, it shall be the duty of the officer incurring the same to deliver to the person with whom the transaction is had a statement designating the appropriation from which such liability is to be met, and informing him of his right to have the certificate of the comptroller of the amount applicable to the discharge of such liability indorsed on such statement. And when such statement is presented to the comptroller it shall be his duty within twenty-four hours thereafter to indorse thereon the amount of the unexpended and unincumbered appropriation applicable to the discharge of such liability. For the purpose of providing for the payment of judgments which may be obtained against said city during the year eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, the comptroller, when authorized by the board of estimate and apportionment, may issue revenue bonds of the city not exceeding a total amount of five hundred thousand dollars, and in the annual estimate of eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, there shall be included an amount sufficient to pay for the revenue bonds issued as in this section provided.

Section 34, lines 41, 42 and 43, strike out the words "the audit of all such claims is hereby set aside without prejudice to the rights of the parties to establish any such claim as in this section provided."

Add as a new section, numbered 49, the following:

§ 49. The office of inspector of weights and measures in said city is hereby abolished, and the powers and duties now vested in said inspectors are hereby transferred to and vested in the sealers of weights and measures, not more than two of whom shall be appointed or hold office in said city at any one time, and who shall exercise the said powers and duties in addition to those now required of them by law."

Change the number of section 49 to 50.

And your committee further recommend that the Senate do recede from the amendments to the bill as proposed and adopted in the Senate, namely:

Section 3, line 13, strike out the word "presumptive" and insert the word "conclusive."

Same section and line, after the word "facts," insert the words "and the same cannot thereafter be questioned in any manner whatever."

Section 35, line 14, strike out the word "such."

Section 40, line 9, strike out the words "and the president of the board of aldermen."

Same section, last paragraph, strike out the words "This section shall not be construed so as to authorize the board of estimate and apportionment to reduce the salaries now paid to the teachers of the public schools of the said city, nor the salaries now paid to officers and members of the police and fire departments thereof respectively (except commissioners of the same), who are members of the said departments respectively, at the time of the passage of this act."

Same section, line 10, insert after the word "shall" the words "be tax-payers in said city and who shall."

Section 42, line 2, after the word "city," strike out the words "except the police department and board the expenditures of which shall be made as now provided by law."

Section 45, line 4, strike out the word "comptroller" and insert the words "board of estimate and apportionment."

And your committee recommend that the title of the bill be amended so as to read as follows:

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the Assembly, with a message informing that the Senate have agreed to the report of the committee of conference thereon, excepting as noted.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, May 8, 1877. }

To the Senate:

I return without approval Senate bill No. 61, entitled "An act to authorize the election of women to school offices."

This bill goes too far or else not far enough. It provides that women may hold any or all of the offices connected with the department of education; that is to say, a woman may be elected Superintendent of Public Instruction, women may be appointed school commissioners, members of boards of education and trustees of school districts. In some of these positions it will become their duty to make contracts, purchase materials, build and repair school-houses and to supervise and effect all the transactions of school business, involving an annual expenditure of over twelve millions dollars in this State. There can be no greater reason that women should occupy these positions than the less responsible ones of supervisors, town clerks, justices of the peace, commissioners of highways, overseers of the poor and numerous others. If women are physically and mentally fitted for one class of these stations, they are equally so for the others.

But at this period in the history of the world such enactments as the present hardly comport with the wisdom and dignity of legislation. The God of nature has appointed different fields of labor, duty and usefulness for the sexes. His decrees cannot be changed by human legislation. In the education of our children the mother stands far above all superintendents, commissioners, trustees and school teachers. Her influence in the family, in social intercourse and enterprises, outweighs all the mere machinery of benevolence and education. To lower her from the high and holy place given her by nature, is to degrade her power and to injure rather than benefit the cause of education itself. In all enlightened and Christian nations the experience and observation of ages have illustrated and defined the relative duties of the sexes in promoting the best interests of society. Few, if any, of the intelligent and right minded among women desire or would be willing to accept the change which such a law would inaugurate.

The bill is, moreover, a clear infraction of the spirit if not the letter of the Constitution. Under that instrument women have no right to vote, and it cannot be supposed that it is the intention of the Constitution that persons not entitled to the right of suffrage should be eligible to some of the most important offices in the State.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. Emerson moved that said message be laid upon the table.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK,
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER — ALBANY, May 8, 1877. }

To the Senate:

I return without approval Senate bill No. 114, entitled "An act to amend chapter 564 of the Laws of 1872, entitled 'An act to amend the charter of the village of Carthage, Jefferson county.'"

The object of this bill is to confer upon the police justice of the village of Carthage, the powers of a justice of the peace. There are already four justices of the peace in the town of Wilna, in which Carthage lies, possessing and exercising the jurisdiction sought to be conferred by this act. It is not made to appear that the present officers are unable to discharge all the duties devolving upon them, or that there is any more need of another justice for public reasons in that town than in any one of a hundred others of like size.

Experience shows that in nearly every town in the State a reduction of the number of justices is more necessary than an increase. It does not seem wise at present to increase the number or functions of officials whose support must directly or indirectly be drawn from the pockets of the people. The laws of the State have fixed the number of justices of the peace in towns, and no additions should be made to the number in special localities without evidence of public necessity therefor.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. Starbuck moved that said message be laid upon the table.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

Mr. Prince presented the following :

To the Senate and Assembly :

The committee of conference of the Senate and Assembly appointed to consider the matters of difference between the two Houses in relation to Senate bill 205, entitled "An act to amend chapter 448 of the Laws of 1876, entitled 'An act relating to courts, officers of justice and civil proceedings, and to provide for the publication of the act as amended,' " respectfully report :

That they have met and conferred together and fully and freely discussed the subject referred to them.

That while the precise matter so referred was contained in two sections of the bill above named, yet they could not be unmindful of the fact that subjects of far greater scope and importance were involved in its consideration.

The circumstances of this bill are peculiar. . It is but one of a series of bills, all constituting or relating to the portion of the revision of the statutes of the State, generally known as the Code of Civil Procedure or the Code of Remedial Justice. Thirteen chapters of this work were enacted last year, as chapter 448 of the Laws of 1876, which, by the terms of that act, were to take effect May 1, 1877.

The Senate this year has had under consideration four bills on this subject (three of which have passed that body, as follows) :

1. No. 205. Amending chapter 448 of the Laws of 1876. This includes about 275 amendments, many of them of great importance, including all the improvements which have been suggested by jurists, bar associations and individual lawyers during the past year, and the whole of which it is conceded, makes the thirteen chapters of the Code adopted a year ago far more valuable as well as popular.

This bill, as it comes from the Senate, was to take effect October 1, 1877, the intention of that body being that the Code of 1876 should be made to take effect at that date.

A number of amendments were made to this bill by the Assembly, all of which the Senate concurred in except two, one relating to certain officers in Erie county, and one which postponed the operation of the thirteen chapters of the revision passed in 1876, to May 1, 1878.

2. No. 306. An act containing nine more chapters of the revision, and forming with the act of 1876, the entire Code of Procedure.

3 and 4. Nos. 223 and 316. The repeal bills necessary to accompany the twenty-two chapters constituting the Code, and repealing all acts, sections and provisions inconsistent therewith.

Before the two Houses, one of which had desired the Code of 1876 to become operative on October 1, 1877, and the other on May 1, 1878, had had an opportunity to reconcile that difference, the 1st of May, 1877, had arrived, and so, without the action of either House, the law of 1876 went into effect, constituting but a portion of the system contemplated by the revisors, entirely without amendment, and unexpectedly and without warning to the legal profession throughout the State.

Your committee, in considering the subjects intrusted to them, had to recognize the above facts, and also that the actual going into effect of the partial Code of 1876 had made an important change from the position of affairs prior to May 1.

On the one hand, a new system having been partially introduced and legal proceedings, including the empaneling of jurors and other matters in which great precision is required, having taken place under this system, the old system having been to a great degree superseded and by implication repealed by the adoption of the new, any postponement of the operation of the act of 1876 had become far more difficult than before, and its retention was urged by many who had heretofore opposed its early going into effect.

On the other hand, it was conceded that the sudden and unexpected operation of the act of 1876 had greatly embarrassed the legal profession, especially as it was in incomplete and unamended form, and that it was exceedingly desirable that the whole revised system embracing the entire Code of twenty-two chapters should go into effect simultaneously, and that the accompanying repealing acts should become operative at the same time.

Under these circumstances, knowing the great and general interest felt in the subject throughout the State, and remembering the lateness of the present period in the session, your committee felt that neither their duties nor responsibilities could be limited to the two sections technically referred to them, but that the Legislature and the people had a right to expect that they would consider and report, if possible, some comprehensive plan of agreement between the Senate and Assembly relative to the whole subject of the Code of Procedure.

After much consideration therefore, they beg to submit the following recommendations in connection therewith :

1. That as to Senate bill No. 205, the Assembly do recede from its two proposed amendments and that the Senate and Assembly do concur in an amendment to section 4, striking out the word "immediately" and inserting "September 1, 1877." This will put into effect the amendments to the act of 1876 on September 1, 1877.

2. That a bill be passed suspending the action and effect of the chapter 448 and 449 of the Laws of 1876 (constituting the first thirteen chapters of the Code) until September 1, 1877. Such bill to protect the rights of all parties who have acted under such Code from May 1, 1877, to the day of passage thereof. (The date, September 1, is selected because many circuit courts are held in September in the rural counties of the State, and the juries for the October circuits in cities are selected in September.)

3. That the nine remaining chapters of the Code and the accompanying repealing act, being Senate bills Nos. 306, 223 and 316 be passed to take effect September 1, 1877.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the Assembly, with a message informing that the Senate have concurred in the passage of the same.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, {
ALBANY, May 15, 1877. }

To the Senate:

I return without approval Senate bill No. 101, entitled "An act to amend chapter 277 of the Laws of 1870, entitled 'An act to amend an act for the benefit of married women in insuring the lives of their husbands,' passed April 14, 1858."

It is perhaps doubtful whether authority to assign such policies as are mentioned in this bill would be in accordance with sound policy and good morals.

Upon that question there are differences of opinion among intelligent men who have made the subject of life insurance a profound study. But in this State the question has been settled so far as existing policies are concerned. In the case of Eadie vs. Slimmon, 26 N. Y. Reports, page 9, the Court of Appeals decided that the children of a married woman who holds such policy have a vested right in it which cannot be transferred by the husband and wife, or either of them. The Legislature cannot change that rule, except as to policies hereafter issued.

The bill, however, makes no discrimination, but applies to all policies heretofore or hereafter given. Recognizing the vested rights of the children, it provides for their consent to the transfer. Children over twenty-one years of age can give such consent without the aid of any new law. But in most cases which arise, the children are minors, and the act makes no provision for the mode in which their consent is to be given.

L. ROBINSON.

Upon the return of said order to show cause, the court shall hear the parties appearing in such proceeding and shall appoint three discreet persons as commissioners of appraisal to estimate and determine such loss and damage to the petitioner, and to all other persons claiming to be entitled thereto. Such commissioners shall thereupon proceed to estimate and determine such loss and damage, and for that purpose shall hold public sessions at which proof may be offered by any persons claiming such compensation, and by the counsel to the corporation, who shall appear in said proceedings in behalf of the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of said city. The said commissioners shall, within the three months succeeding their appointment, present to said court, at special term, the report of their proceedings, in which they shall set forth the amount of compensation for any such loss or damage awarded by them to the respective claimants; eight days' notice of the presentation of said report shall be given to all parties who shall have appeared before said commissioners or their attorneys, and to the counsel to the corporation. Upon the presentation of said report, the court shall hear the several parties appearing in support or in opposition thereto, and shall either confirm said report or send the same back to such commissioners for correction. If said report shall be confirmed the same shall thereupon be in all things final and conclusive in respect to any damage and compensation which might be awarded pursuant to the provisions of this act as well against the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of said city as against any and all person and persons whomsoever, except for the purpose of an appeal, as herein provided. If said report shall not be confirmed, but shall be sent back to said commissioners, the said commissioners shall thereupon revise and correct the same, and shall again make a report to said court, and such procedure shall be repeated and continued until a report shall be presented which shall be confirmed by the court. Whenever any such report shall be confirmed, any sum or amount thereby awarded for loss or damage as aforesaid, and the amount of costs and expenses of such proceedings not to exceed the sum of three thousand dollars, to be taxed by the court, shall be and become a debt of and a charge against the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New York, and shall be paid by the comptroller of said city to the several persons entitled thereto, under the provisions of the order of confirmation. The comptroller and board of estimate and apportionment are hereby authorized and directed to issue bonds of said city for the purpose of providing funds with which to pay such awards and said costs and expenses in the same manner and form as bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of taxes, and the amount required to pay said bonds shall be raised by tax in the annual taxation in the city and county of New York, in the succeeding years. An appeal may be taken to the general term of the Supreme Court from any decision of the court at special term in the proceedings above provided for.

2. Add to section 3 the words "This act shall take effect immediately."

3. Add to the title the words "and to provide for the payment of compensation for loss and damage to certain owners of land affected by said act."

Mr. Gerard moved to amend so that the committee be instructed to amend the said bill as follows:

1. At the end of section 1 add the words "except as hereinafter specified."

2. Strike out the whole of section 2 and substitute therefor the following:

§ 2. The Supreme Court, at any special term thereof, to be held within the first judicial district within three months next after the passage of this act, upon the application of any owner of any real estate situated within the boundaries of the plot of land laid out for a military parade ground, on the map heretofore filed pursuant to the provisions of the act hereby repealed, shall make an order requiring the counsel to the corporation of the city of New York, and all persons claiming to be entitled, as the owners of any real estate situated within such boundaries, to any compensation for loss or damage arising from or by reason of the laying out of said parade ground, or by reason of the repeal of said act, to show cause at a special term of said court to be held at a time specified in said order, why commissioners of appraisal should not be appointed to appraise and estimate such alleged damages; and a notice containing a recital of the provisions of such order shall be served on the counsel to the corporation, and shall be published twice in each week for three weeks consecutively, in three daily newspapers published in said city. Upon the return of said order to show cause, the said court shall hear the parties appearing in such proceedings, and if in the opinion of said court such claims are valid and lawful, but not otherwise, shall appoint three discreet persons as commissioners of appraisal to estimate and determine such alleged loss and damage to the petitioner and to all other persons claiming and entitled thereto. Such commissioners shall thereupon proceed to estimate and determine such loss and damage, if any, and for that purpose shall hold public sessions, at which proof may be offered by any persons claiming such compensation, and by the counsel to the corporation, who shall appeal in said proceedings in behalf of the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of said city. The said commissioners shall within the three months succeeding their appointment or within such further time as is allowed by the court, present to said court at special term, the report of their proceedings in which they shall set forth the amount of compensation if any, for any such loss or damage awarded by them to the respective claimants; eight days' notice of the presentation of said report shall be given to all parties who shall have appeared before said commissioners, or their attorneys, and to the counsel to the corporation. Upon the presentation of said report, the court shall hear the several parties appearing in support or in opposition thereto, and may either confirm said report or send the same back to such commissioners for correction. The said court shall also at such time determine whether or not any, and if any, which of the claims presented to the said commissioners are legal and valid claims against the city of New York, in accordance with the law existing at the time of the passage of this act; and any and all claims which are not then determined by the said court to be so legal and valid, shall thenceforth be excluded from the operation of this act, except for purposes of appeal from said determination. If said report shall be confirmed the same shall thereupon be, in all things, final and conclusive in respect to any damage and compensation which might be claimed and awarded pursuant to the provisions of this act, as well against the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of said city as against any and all person and persons whomsoever. If said report shall not be confirmed, but shall be sent back to said commissioners, the said commissioners shall thereupon revise and correct the same in accordance with the instructions of the court, and shall again make a report to said court, and such procedure shall be repeated and continued until a report shall be presented which shall be confirmed by the court. Upon the final confirmation of the report, any sum or amount thereby awarded for loss or damage as aforesaid, and the amount of the costs and expenses of such proceedings of the parties to whom damages shall be awarded, shall be and become a debt and a charge against the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New York, and shall be paid by the comptroller of said city to the several persons entitled thereto, under the provisions of the order of confirmation. The comptroller and the board of estimate and apportionment are hereby authorized and directed to issue bonds of said city for the purpose of providing funds with which to pay such awards in the same manner and form as bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of taxes, and the amount required to pay said bonds shall be raised by tax in the annual taxation in the city and county of New York in the succeeding year. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to legalize, confirm or recognize, as valid, any claim or claims hereinbefore mentioned, but the legality or validity of any and all such claims shall be determined by the said court, in accordance with the law existing at the time of the passage of this act. An appeal may be taken to the general term of the Supreme Court and no further, from any decision of the court at special term, and on such appeal the general term may examine and determine all questions raised at any time either before the commissioners or the special term.

Pending which,

Mr. Sprague moved that said bill be laid upon the table, and that the proposed amendments be printed.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Jacobs presented the following:

Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That a respectful message be sent to his Excellency, the Governor, requesting the return for amendment "An act to amend chapter 667 of the Laws of 1870, entitled 'An act to incorporate the Brooklyn Library Building Fund Association, of the Eastern District.'"

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said resolution, and it was decided in the affirmative.

By unanimous consent, Mr. Woodin, from the committee on the affairs of cities, to which was referred the Assembly bill entitled "An act for the relief of William McDonald for materials supplied for the repairs of certain roads in the city of New York," reported in favor of the passage of the same, and said bill was committed to the committee of the whole.

By unanimous consent, Mr. McCarthy, from the committee on literature, to which was referred the Assembly bill entitled "An act to authorize the board of education of union school district No. 1, of the town of Ellicott, Chautauqua county, to employ a superintendent of schools," reported in favor of the passage of the same, with amendments, and said bill was committed to the committee of the whole.

Mr. Robertson presented the following:

The committee of conference, to which was referred the matter of difference between the Senate and Assembly on the bill entitled "An act to amend chapter 767 of the Laws of 1872, entitled 'An act to establish the compensation of county judges and surrogates pursuant to the 15th section of the amended 6th article of the Constitution,'" report that they met and duly considered such matters of difference, and have agreed to recommend as follows:

1st. That the Senate recede from its amendment fixing the salary of the county judge of Monroe county at three thousand dollars, and from its amendment fixing the salary of the county judge of Livingston county at two thousand dollars.

2d. That the salaries of the county judge and surrogate of Columbia county be fixed at two thousand dollars each; the salaries of the county judge and surrogate of Rensselaer county be fixed at thirty-five hundred dollars each; the salary of the county judge and surrogate of Jefferson county to be fixed at fifteen hundred dollars each; the salary of the surrogate of Monroe county be fixed at thirty-five hundred dollars.

3d. That the Assembly concur in all the other amendments proposed to the bill by the Senate.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the Assembly, with a message informing that the Senate have agreed to the report of the committee of conference thereon.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, {
ALBANY, May 17, 1877. }

To the Senate:

I return, without approval, Senate bill No. 196, entitled "An act to amend chapter 667 of the Laws of 1870, entitled 'An act to incorporate a Brooklyn Library Building Fund Association of the Eastern District.' ”

The second section of this bill provides that where subscribers shall have forfeited the stock for which they have subscribed, in accordance with the provisions of this act, they shall, in no case, be liable for the unpaid assessments or balance on such stock.

It cannot be denied that this is a direct violation of section ten of article one of the United States Constitution, which provides that no State shall pass an act impairing the obligation of contracts.

A subscription for stock has always been regarded in law as a contract, and the party subscribing has always been held liable to fulfill the obligation he assumed in the subscription. This being so, the present act is clearly in derogation of the provision of the Constitution above mentioned, and is beyond the power of the Legislature.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. Jacobs moved that said message be laid upon the table.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, May 17, 1877. }

To the Senate :

I return, without approval, Senate bill No. 286, entitled “An act to annul or repeal the incorporation of the Clyde and Rose Plank-road Company.”

I am informed that the supervisors of the county of Wayne have already extended the charter of the plank-road mentioned in this bill, and that the effect of this act, if it be made a law, is simply to reverse the decision of the board of supervisors in the same matter. The policy of the law is against the interference of the Legislature in any local matters which are properly the subject of action of the board of supervisors, and it is especially improper that the Legislature should interfere with such matters where the local boards of supervisors have already made a decision in the premises. For these reasons I am unable to approve of this bill.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. Woodin moved that said message be laid upon the table.

I return, without approval, Senate bill No. 315, entitled “An act to authorize the trustees of Skaneateles, in the county of Onondaga, to sell certain real estate, and to raise money by tax for building an engine-house, and for other village purposes.”

This bill is objectionable as special legislation to accomplish an object provided for by general laws. The power to convey the real estate mentioned is already in the village charter, and the other acts sought to be authorized may be done under the sanction of the board of supervisors of Onondaga county, in accordance with the provision of chapter 482 of the Laws of 1875.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. McCarthy moved that said message be laid upon the table.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

The Assembly returned, pursuant to resolution, the bill entitled "An act supplemental to chapter 140 of the Laws of 1850, entitled 'An act to authorize the formation of railroad corporations, and to regulate the same.'"

On motion of Mr. Bixby, and by unanimous consent, the rules were suspended, and the vote by which said bill was passed was reconsidered.

Mr. Bixby moved that said bill be recommitted to the committee on railroads.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

The hour of half-past twelve o'clock having arrived, the Senate went into executive session; and after some time spent therein the doors were opened and the Senate resumed legislative business.

The bill entitled "An act to organize the Senate districts and for the apportionment of the members of Assembly of this State," having been announced for a third reading,

Mr. Vedder moved that said bill be recommitted to the special committee on apportionment, with instructions to strike out the enacting clause.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the negative:

Mr. Bixby moved that said bill be recommitted to said committee, with instructions to amend as follows:

The fifth Senate district shall consist of Richmond county and the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh wards of the city of New York.

The sixth Senate district shall consist of the tenth, eleventh, thirteenth and fourteenth wards of the city of New York.

The eleventh Senate district shall consist of so much of the city of New York as lies north of Sixtieth street.

Whereupon the Senate adjourned.

FRIDAY, MAY 18, 1877.

The Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

Prayer by the Chaplain.

On motion of Mr. Woodin, the reading of the journal of yesterday was dispensed with.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following :

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, {
ALBANY, May 17, 1877. }

To the Senate :

I return, without approval, Senate bill No. 231, entitled "An act supplemental to chapter 335 of the Laws of 1873, entitled 'An act to reorganize the local government of the city of New York.'"

The spirit of our institutions is at war with every effort of the minority to defeat the will of the majority in any locality through legislative means. When we deny self-government to any section of the people we belie the faith and teachings of our fathers. Equal representation is prerequisite to the right of taxation. Without it legislative levies on localities are simply oppressive. This conceded doctrine is nowhere more scrupulously maintained than in our Constitution, which provides that the Legislature shall, on the completion of every census, award to each part of the State the representation to which its population entitles it. For nearly two years this mandate of our highest law has been defied and disobeyed. A Legislature morally, if not legally, irregular, assumes to revolutionize the local law in a city of a million while denying to that city the representation which is its right. Upon the final passage of the present bill in the Assembly, 78,000 people in Putnam, Wayne, Schuyler and Cortland counties, by their representatives, cast four votes for it, while the 96,000 people of the twentieth New York district were allowed to cast but one against it. It is neither justice nor common sense that the representatives of 31,000 people in two rural counties, without interest in this act, should nullify the votes of 170,000 inhabitants of two New York districts against it, whose personal rights are committed to its care.

The first objection to its enactment is that while it professes to provide for all the great interests and wants of the people of the city of New York, it is passed when the city is not fully and fairly represented in the Legislature, as the Constitution requires that it should be. By the omission of the Legislature to make such an apportionment of the Senators and Members of Assembly as is required by the Constitution, the city of New York is deprived of the presence and votes of at least seven additional representatives to which she is entitled in the two houses of the Legislature, and this legislation is imposed upon it in the absence of such representation.

In the next place, of the twenty-one Members of Assembly and five Senators, making twenty six in all, from the city, nineteen opposed and voted against the bill. Of the forty-seven Senators and Members of Assembly from the city, Long Island counties, Westchester, Richmond and Rockland, immediately surrounding the city and acquainted with its affairs, only fourteen voted for this bill, whilst all the residue (thirty-three) voted against it. The seventeen Members of Assembly who voted against the bill represented 826,454 of the 1,045,223 inhabitants of the city, as shown by the last census. It is perfectly clear, therefore, that this bill, whether good or bad, is forced upon the people of the city against their will, by the representatives of the interior, western and northern parts of the State, who know least of its affairs.

If local self-government is more than an empty name, such legislation should not be. Were there no other argument against the bill than this, a sense of duty to the principles of popular representation and the Constitution I am sworn to follow, would forbid my approval of this or any similar measure forced on an unwilling people whose proper voice is silent in the legislative halls. I cannot admit the right of the Legislature to regulate the municipal affairs of New York, while refusing it its fair apportionment of members in either house.

Twenty years ago the experiment was undertaken of withdrawing from the city of New York the powers of local government which it held under its charter, and supplying their place with acts of the State Legislature. The history of this legislation is, with few exceptions, one long record of confusion, robbery and wrong. Over 2,300 laws relating to the city, of which nearly 600 make or modify governmental powers, have been precipitated upon the statute books within that time. Laws heaped on laws, original, repealing, amendatory and re-enacting, make a mingled heap from which lawyers shrink confounded, and judges turn at fault. Our highest court has held one branch of New York city law utterly beyond interpretation or construction.

Nor is this all. Within the shadow of this mighty stack of statutes great combinations have been formed for public plunder and private wrong. Sheltered by ambiguous law, the conspirators have safely fattened on spoils wrenched from the plundered poor.

In 1857, the population of the city was 700,000, and its debt $18,740,188; in December, 1876, its population was 1,045,000, while the debt was $121,178,450. The population within nineteen years has increased fifty per cent, and the debt six hundred per cent. Within the same period taxes have been drawn from the people of that city to the amount of hundreds of millions of dollars, and the many disgraceful passages in its municipal government prior to 1872 are too well known to require repetition. In the last mentioned year, the outraged people of the city rose and demanded reform, and did what they could to effect it within the limited powers which the Legislature had deigned to leave them.

The bill now in question has been claimed as a measure of reform. I understand that as it was originally prepared it was entitled to be so regarded; but those who drew it, since its manipulation by the Legislature, are scarcely able to recognize its original features, and disclaim responsibility for it in its present shape. After a very careful examination of its provisions, and listening attentively to all the discussions of its merits and demerits, by its friends and opponents, who have appeared before me, it seems to me a return to the old and bad practice of partial legislation, not to attain reform in municipal government, but to effect political and personal ends, and a fresh distribution of patronage and power for the benefit of individuals.

Section 3 of the bill provides for the election of a mayor on the first Tuesday in April in every second year, who shall enter on the duties of his office on the first of May succeeding his election. Section 4 provides that whenever the president of the board of aldermen becomes acting mayor, in case of a vacancy in the mayor's office, he shall continue to act as mayor until the first day of May succeeding the next election at which a mayor can be chosen. It is apparent, therefore, that if a vacancy should occur between the first Tuesday in April in any election year and the following first of May, the mayor elect and the president of the board of aldermen would both be mayor for the next two years. The bill gives each of them a clear title to the office.

Section 7 takes away from the board of aldermen the power of confirmation of heads of departments and the chamberlain.

These officers in the city of New York are each charged with the performance of most important duties, with great powers and responsibilities. To give to the mayor sole and absolute power to appoint and remove them is contrary to the whole theory of our government, and might be very dangerous to all public interests, if the office of mayor should chance to fall into bad hands.

Section 9 abolishes the present commission of public parks, and declares that hereafter the head of the department of public parks in said city shall be an officer called the commissioner of parks, who shall hold office four years and receive a salary of $5,000.

The officers of the present department of public parks have generally discharged their duties to the entire satisfaction of the public. They serve without pay, and there can be no apparent object in legislating them out of office, unless it be to place undue power in the hands of some one man.

Section ten provides that the department of public works shall have charge and control of the construction, maintenance and management of all the public squares, parks and places, and their adjoining sidewalks; while section eleven declares that all the powers now possessed by the department of parks not continued in that department by this bill, shall be turned over to the department of public works. The sixth subdivision of the thirteenth section further declares that the department of public works shall have control of the construction, erection, maintenance and care of all buildings now belonging to or hereafter to be erected for the city, except those of the police, fire, charity and educational departments. By comparing these two sections it appears that the act, either intentionally or by accident, transfers to the department of public works absolute control of all city buildings in the parks. This provision will certainly result in conflict of authority between these two departments. It seems impossible that such radical changes in so important a department should be countenanced. It is very essential to the efficiency of the park department that it should have exclusive and ample authority, not only about the grounds, but over the buildings situated within the grounds of which they take charge. I understand that in Central park alone there are buildings used for park purposes, for housing animals and curiosities, for restaurants and similar purposes, the control of which is an absolute necessity to the proper government and regulation of the park. The department of public works has no other jurisdiction or control over the parks or any part of them, and the regulation of these park buildings is entirely foreign to the purposes of its organization. There are, besides these, subject to the sweeping transfer of the bill, certain buildings erected by the city and intended as an art gallery and a museum in Central park and in Manhattan square. The statute providing for the erection of these buildings vests in the trustees of collections designed to be placed therein, the care and control of the buildings. This bill places these buildings also under the control of the commissioner of public works, and the effect of the transfer will probably be to deprive the city of the benefit of the collections intended to be placed there.

Again, the twelfth section provides that the board of street opening and improvements shall, in addition to their present powers, have exclusive power to acquire title to any of the streets, roads, avenues and public places in said city.

This section, if enacted, will at once become the basis of countless litigations. Its strict language authorizes the board to acquire from the city the title to existing streets only; it gives no power to acquire title to land required for streets, nor any grant of the powers necessary to the exercise of such authority. As I understand existing statutes, the present powers of this board enable them to acquire land for the purposes mentioned south of Fifty-ninth street, but they have no such power above Fifty-ninth street, and this bill gives them none, for it must be remembered that a statute conferring any such power is in derogation of private right, and would receive a strict construction from any court. The attempt, under this crude and general section, to acquire necessary lands for street purposes would, undoubtedly result in complicated litigations, with a strong probability that the city would be ultimately unsuccessful.

Another very serious defect appears upon comparison of the tenth section with the first subdivision of the fourteenth section. The former provides that the department of public parks shall have charge of "the sidewalks immediately adjoining any of said public parks, squares and places." This clearly restricts the jurisdiction of that department to the sidewalk immediately bordering on any given park or square. The latter provision declares that the department of public works shall have charge of "the streets, roads, avenues and places of the city, not including any of such works within any park or place, or in or on the sidewalks of any street, road or avenue immediately adjoining any park or place." This excludes from the control of the public works department both sidewalks of every street bordering on a public park or place. The tenth section having given the department of parks control of only the sidewalk adjacent to the public square, it is clear that one sidewalk on every street contiguous to any public square is utterly beyond the jurisdiction of anybody.

One of the gravest objections to the bill is its attempt to transfer the control of the department of docks to a bureau in the department of public works. There is no greater or more important interest connected with the commerce of the city with all parts of the world, than its immense line of docks, wharves and slips extending already a distance of about fifteen miles around the city, and destined to extend much further. The proper management of this immense line is of the utmost importance to the commercial interests of the city; it lies at the very entrance of the great commercial operations of the metropolis. There is no department requiring a more honest and able administration. I am informed that there is no complaint of the faithful and efficient manner in which the affairs of that department are conducted by the present commission, and yet the bill proposes to abolish the commission, and to transfer all its powers and duties to a subordinate officer to be appointed by the commissioner of public works, and to be called an "engineer of docks." The impropriety of such a change must be apparent to every one. In all the discussion which has taken place before me, no one has attempted to defend this portion of the bill. It is moreover alleged to be in violation of the Constitution. Section 2 of article 10 of the Constitution provides that all city officers whose election or appointment is not provided for by the Constitution shall be elected by the electors of the city, or appointed by such authorities thereof as the Legislature shall designate for that purpose. This bill delegates extensive governmental powers affecting private property, not to any city officers elected by the people or appointed by any designated city authority, but by a bureau, whose chief officer is called the engineer of docks. No specific duties and no defined powers are devolved either on the bureau or its head, although by implication the whole governmental power now existing on the subject is sought to be given to an inferior officer of a department of the city government. If he has this power he is a city officer, and constitutionally should be elected or appointed as above; if he has not this power, the control of this vast interest is nowhere and is not committed to anybody.

Another expensive change proposed by this bill is, that in the event of its becoming a law the department of public works, which is compelled to do its work upon contract furnished on sealed bids, would be unable to receive or use the services of prisoners and paupers in the erection of buildings necessary for the purposes of the department of charities and correction. Such buildings, during the last few years, have been erected at a merely nominal cost to the city, by utilizing such labor.

This bill, if enacted, would compel the treasury to pay for outside labor upon such erection, while the classes named would be supported from the same treasury in idleness.

Section twenty provides that the head of the department of public charities and correction in said city shall, hereafter be two officers, called the commissioners of public charities and correction. The commissioner who was president of said department on the 1st day of March, 1877, and the other having the shortest term to serve, shall be the commissioners. The third commissioner now existing is legislated out of office.

Section twenty-one of the bill provides that the fire department of the city shall hereafter have for its head a commissioner to be known as fire commissioner of the city of New York, that the commissioner who was president of the said department on March first last shall be the head of the department until the expiration of his present term of office, or until a vacancy occurs as now provided by law.

Section twenty-five enacts that the head of the police department shall be composed hereafter of two persons, and declares that the commissioners who were president and treasurer of said board on March first last shall continue to be such commissioners, while the office of the other commissioners shall cease after the passage of this act.

Of these three provisions it is hardly necessary to say that they are all in conflict with section 2 of article 10 of the Constitution. The officers of these three departments can constitutionally only be appointed by the electors of the city, or some city authorities designated by the Legislature for that purpose. They were elected as members of boards in which they exercised far less power than those delegated to them by this bill. The effect of these three sections is nothing more or less than a legislative election of the officers named to new positions created by this act. The same question has been substantially heard and settled by the Court of Appeals in several important cases, notably in The People against Albertson (55th New York, 56); Warner against The People (2d Denio), 272; The People against Draper (15th New York, 540), and numerous others.

In any event, if this bill should become a law, these changes will become fruitful sources of litigation. Besides the constitutional question, the provision as to the fire department has two glaring defects.

First. It legislates out of office two of the present commissioners, and legislates into office as sole autocrat of the department, the present president of the commission, already under serious charges of official malfeasance, giving him absolute control of the department.

Second. It gives to the fire department the incongruous duty of supervising buildings, now devolving upon the commissioner of buildings, when their duty, above all others, needs to be confined to the special object for which they are organized, to wit: the extinguishment of fires.

Section twenty-nine of this bill declares that the counsel for the corporation shall, in virtue of his office, be public administrator of the city of New York. This section is plainly unconstitutional. The public administrator has been a city officer of New York since 1815, and in all that long period very few changes in his powers and duties have been made. The office is within the meaning of the constitutional provision above cited, and to make the corporation counsel public administrator is simply to legislate an individual into an office.

It is needless to go further into the details of this bill. Almost every section of it is defective, abounding with inconsistencies and crude or unconstitutional provisions. Claimed to be in the interest of economy, it is very evident that its imperfections are likely to cause much more loss than gain in that direction.

I abstain from any discussion of the subject of a spring election. There are wide differences of opinion between good men upon that question. It must be borne in mind that the experiment was tried for many years, but it was abandoned under the general belief that its advantages were not sufficient to justify the unavoidable expense, excitement and labor attending it. More recently a December election was tried for a short time and then abandoned for the same reasons.

The great need of the city is a charter framed upon sound and comprehensive principles for the protection of the rights and interests of the people, without regard to office holders, office seekers or schemes of personal profit. When such a charter shall be adopted, shall restore to the people of the city the right of self-government without legislative interference in its local affairs, shall sweep away the huge mass of partial and corrupt legislation under which the city has been buried, shall provide for the funding of the immense debt at a moderate rate of interest, and forbid the creation of any more, we may expect a brighter and better day for the city. Until then all such crude and imperfect acts as the one herewith returned will only add to the confusion and uncertainty which now prevails.

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the Assembly, with a message informing that the Senate have agreed to the report of the committee of conference thereon.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, May 18, 1877. }

To the e^l Senat:

I return, without approval, Senate bill No. 293, entitled "An act regulating the payment of school moneys apportioned to the several counties of the State."

Chapter 567 of the Laws of 1875, provides as follows: "The moneys so annually apportioned by the superintendent shall be payable on the first day of April next, after the apportionment to the treasurers of the several counties, and the chamberlain of the city of New York, and the said treasurers and chamberlain shall apply for and receive the same as soon as payable."

Chapter 760 of the Laws of 1873, provides as follows: "And every county shall pay its quota of State taxes into the State treasury, the one-half on or before the fifteenth of April, and the other half on or before the first day of May, in each and every year hereafter."

The total apportionment of the several counties for 1877 from the school tax and school fund is $3,043,125, and this sum is payable on April first, and is derived from taxes none of which are received before April fifteenth. I need hardly remark that this is impossible.

There seems no good reason to make the support of the schools a first lien upon the revenues, and it is not improbable that taxes may be received so slowly at times that the withholding of the entire school tax as provided by this bill, would leave the treasury bankrupt.

Out of sixty counties but five raise more by tax for the school fund than is apportioned to them. One of these, New York, raises $1,503,983.85, and is apportioned but $553,926.75. It contributes nearly $1,000,000 to the support of schools in the interior of the State. This money should be in the treasury before permission is given to draw against it. I am firmly convinced that existing laws furnish as perfect a remedy as can be devised with safety in the matter, and I believe the enactment of this bill would be a dangerous innovation upon the long settled practice of the State.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. St. John moved that said message be laid upon the table.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, May 18, 1877. }

To the Senate:

I return, without approval, Senate bill No. 53, entitled "An act to amend the Revised Statutes in relation to the assessment and collection of taxes."

The object of this bill is simply to add to the section amended the words "and bonds and mortgages, notes or other securities, wherever executed, payable or situated, owned by a resident of this State." I suppose it to be true that every dollar of property subjected to assessment and taxation by the amendment proposed, is already liable to taxation under the law as it now stands. If it be necessary to recite one class of securities for personal property as especially liable to taxation, every other class of investments should be likewise particularized. The inference drawn from the special mention of bonds and mortgages in the amendment is that the present law does not authorize the State to levy taxes upon the property which that class of security represents. This is an erroneous view, and the amendment would simply be a sort of barnacle on the statute.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. Emerson moved that said message be laid upon the table.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. McCarthy, from the committee on literature, to which was referred the Assembly bill entitled "An act to amend chapter 555 of the Laws of 1864, entitled 'An act to revise and consolidate the general acts relating to public instruction,'" reported in favor of the passage of the same, and said bill was committed to the committee of the whole.

On motion of Mr. St. John, and by unanimous consent, the rules were suspended, and the Assembly bill entitled "An act to authorize the Orange county asylum for the chronic insane, to receive patients or inmates from adjoining counties," was ordered to a third reading.

On motion of Mr. Moore, and by unanimous consent, the rules were suspended, and the Assembly bill entitled "An act to amend section 3, article 2, title 6, chapter 6, part 1 of the Revised Statutes, in relation to the election of President and Vice-President," was ordered considered in the first committee of the whole.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, {
ALBANY, May 18, 1877. }

To the Senate:

In accordance with a joint resolution of the Senate and Assembly, I return herewith, for amendment, the Senate bill No. 205, entitled "An act to amend chapter 448 of the Laws of 1876, entitled 'An act relating to courts, officers of justice and civil proceedings,' and to provide for the publication of the act as amended." Mr. Woodin presented the following :

To the Legislature :

Your committee of conference to which were referred the matter of difference between the two houses on Assembly bill No. 254, entitled "An act to secure better public administration in the local government of the city of New York," beg leave respectfully to report that they met and have agreed to recommend that the Assembly do concur in the following amendments to the bill as proposed by the Senate (reference in all cases being had to the engrossed bill), namely :

Section 3, line 13, strike out the word "presumptive," and insert the word "conclusive." Same section and line, after the word "facts," insert the words "and the same cannot thereafter be questioned in any manner whatever."

And whenever, by any provision of law, it is or may be required or directed that a contract shall be founded on sealed bids or proposals, and whenever (unless with reference to expenses to be borne from the yearly taxes, it is otherwise expressly provided by law) any contract is to be entered into for an amount exceeding one thousand dollars, such contract and the expense thereof shall become and be a charge against the city of New York, or against the appropriate boards or fund therein, as the case may be, provided the officer entering into the same shall have first observed the provisions of this section, and not otherwise."

Section 34, lines 41, 42 and 43, strike out the words "the audit of all such claims is hereby set aside without prejudice to the rights of the parties to establish any such claim as in this section provided."

And your committee further recommend that the Senate do recede from the amendments to the bill as proposed and adopted in the Senate, namely :

Same section, strike out lines 6, 7 and 8, and to and including the word "act," in line 9.

And your committee further recommend that the following sections referred to them be amended respectively, so as to read as follows :

§ 32. No head of department, chief of bureau, officer, clerk or regular employe in any department of said city shall, after the thirty-first day of December, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, be paid his salary, or any part or portion thereof, from the proceeds of bonds or stocks of said city. And after said date no payment shall be made from the proceeds of said bonds or stocks for the rent of offices or supplies for offices of any department, or of any officer or officers of said city. The board of estimate and apportionment shall provide for all necessary expenses for the purpose aforesaid, in the annual estimate, in the same manner as other expenses of the city government are now provided for; provided, however, that whenever it may be necessary in the erection of any building or other structure, or in the prosecution of any particular work for the collection and distribution of pure and wholesome water in said city, to employ the services of an engineer, architect, superintendent, inspector, clerk, or other skilled person, in addition to the services that can reasonably be performed by the regular officers and employes of the department having charge of such work, it shall be lawful for the head of such department to employ a suitable person or persons for such purpose. Nothing in this section shall be held to apply to revenue bonds, or the proceeds thereof, authorized to be issued in anticipation of the taxes of said city.

§ 34. No action shall be maintained against the said mayor, aldermen and commonalty, unless the claim or account on which the action is brought has been presented in detail, in writing, to the comptroller, nor until after the expiration of thirty days from the date of such presentation; every such alleged claim or account so presented for settlement must set forth, with reasonable particularity, the grounds and items of claim, and the comptroller may, by subpoena, signed by him, require any person presenting for settlement any such claim or account to appear and be sworn before him touching the same, and when so sworn, to answer orally to any facts relative to the justness of such claim or account. In the case of claims for salaries and wages, the transmission to the department of finance of the pay-roll, stating the name of the officer or employe, his residence, official designation, term of service, the rate of salary or wages, and the amount due, verified by the official signature of the proper officer or officers whose duty it is to transmit such pay-roll, shall be a sufficient presentation of all such claims to the comptroller, under the requirements of this section. In case any claimant shall refuse to submit to such examination as hereinbefore provided, or shall refuse or willfully omit to answer any proper question, no action shall be maintained on such claim until such refusal or omission shall have ceased. No audit of any bill, account, claim or demand for which said city is liable, made by the board of supervisors of the county of New York, or by any auditing board or auditing officer prior to the thirtieth day of April, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, shall be evidence as to the correctness of said bill or account or as to the liability of said city therefor. It shall be the duty of any person presenting any such claim or demand to the comptroller for settlement, or who has commenced or may hereafter commence an action for the payment of any such claim or demand to show the validity and justness of the same, and the amount due and payable by the city thereon, independently of such audit, which shall not be evidence against the said city in such action. Hereafter any audit of any claim against said city, made by the board of aldermen must be approved of by the comptroller and only to the extent so approved shall the comptroller be required to pay the same. "Nothing in this section contained shall be construed to revive or render legal any demand or claim which was, prior to the passage of this act, barred by any statute."

In any action or special proceeding, any public record, report, book of account, estimate or document made in pursuance of any provision of law by or to any public officer, department or board may be read in behalf of said city, or department, board or officer, as presumptive evidence of the facts therein stated, and a copy thereof purporting or proved to have been made or published by authority of any such officer, department or board, may be read in evidence, with the same force and effect as if the said copy was original.

§ 40. There shall not be raised by tax upon the estates, real and personal, subject to taxation in the city of New York, in and for the year eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, or any subsequent year, an amount exceeding in the aggregate a sum equal to two and one-half per cent upon the valuation of such estates fixed by the commissioners of taxes and assessments for said city for the year eighteen hundred and seventy-seven. The board of estimate and apportionment of said city shall hereafter consist of the mayor of the city of New York, the comptroller of said city, the president of the department of taxes and assessments, and the president of the board of aldermen, and of four discreet, reputable citizens, who shall hold no other office under the city or State government, who shall be known as commissioners of apportionment; which said four commissioners shall be appointed by the mayor of the city of New York, within ten days after the passage of this act, and shall hold their offices for the terms of two, three, four and five years, respectively, from the date of their appointment, and until others are appointed in their stead. They shall receive no compensation for their services. In case of a vacancy in the office of either of said commissioners, the same shall be filled within ten days from the occurrence of said vacancy by the said mayor for the remainder of the unexpired term. In addition to the powers now possessed by said board, it shall, for the purposes of this act, have power, on making up each annual estimate or revising any annual estimate, when authorized to do so by law, to reduce the number (except heads of departments), and to regulate the salaries of all the officers, employes or other persons paid from the treasury of said city, whose salaries are provided for by tax, but shall not increase any salary beyond its amount in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-six, and also to regulate, fix and determine the sums to be applied and paid during any one year, for any purpose, as a charge on said city, whether the same is fixed by special laws or otherwise, excepting the proportion of the State taxes to be paid by said city, and the amount required to be provided by law to pay or to be applied on account of any bonds or stocks of said city payable from taxation not otherwise provided for, or the interest on the bonded debt of the city, or the salary of any person included in the judiciary, or the salary or compensation of any officer, superintendent, principal, teacher, servant or other person employed in the public instruction for the city and county of New York, heretofore or hereafter earned, which salary or compensation shall be fixed, regulated and adjusted by the board of education for the city and county of New York, from year to year, by a four-sevenths vote of all the members constituting said board of education, and when so fixed, regulated and adjusted, shall be certified under the direction of that board to the said board of estimate and apportionment, whose duty it shall be to include the same in its estimate for the annual expenses of the local government of the city and county of New York. In regulating said salaries, as herein provided, it shall be lawful for said board of estimate and apportionment to fix the salaries of the officers and employes of any department of said city by grading the same into different classes, and determine the number of said officers and employes to be paid salaries at rates so fixed in each of said classes by said board.

§ 48. The board of estimate and apportionment of said city is hereby required at any time before the first day of July next, by the concurrent vote of all the members of said board, to reconsider, revise and redetermine the final estimate of the appropriation for the various purposes of the government of said city and a charge upon said city for the year eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, and the estimate so considered, revised and redetermined and approved by the concurrent vote of the members of said board, shall thereby become appropriated as the amount of money required to defray all the expenses necessary for conducting the public business in said city a charge upon the city, and also for paying the interest upon the city debt and the principal of such debt falling due, and providing for charitable and other objects, and said amounts shall be established and be the amount to be raised for such purposes, by tax, within the city and county of New York, for the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, and the amount thus established, after deducting the amount of the general fund, shall be certified to the board of aldermen by the comptroller, and said board is hereby empowered and directed to cause the amount so certified to be raised and collected in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, by tax upon the estate, real and personal, within said city and county subject to taxation. The said board of aldermen shall add to the amount so certified such sums not exceeding three per centum thereon, as said comptroller shall certify to be necessary to provide for deficiencies in the actual product of the amount of taxes imposed and levied therefor.

§ 49. The office of inspector of weights and measures in said city is hereby abolished, and the powers and duties now vested in said inspectors are hereby transferred to and vested in the sealers of weights and measures, not more than two of whom shall be appointed or hold office in said city at any one time, and who shall exercise the said powers and duties in addition to those now required of them by law.

§ 50. This act shall take effect immediately, except as herein otherwise provided.

And as to all other matters referred to your committee, we recommend a concurrence in the bill as reported by the former conference committee on said bill, and for the avoidance of error and mistakes, your committee herewith submit a complete copy of said bill, as amended, and recommend the Senate and Assembly do concur.

Mr. Cole, from the same committee, reported in favor of the passage of the last named bill, which report was agreed to, and the same ordered to a third reading.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, {
ALBANY, May 21, 1877.

To the Senate:

I return without approval Senate bill No. 29, entitled "An act in relation to proceedings in the Surrogate's Court of the county of Erie, and to the powers and jurisdiction of the surrogate thereof."

This bill confers upon the surrogate of Erie county the equitable jurisdiction over certain trustees now residing in the Supreme Court. A similar act applying to the entire State was returned to the Assembly without approval some time since. The reason then given for the disapproval of that bill apply with equal force to the present one. It has not been shown that Erie county is in greater need of such an enactment than other portions of the State.

Aside from these reasons, the present condition of the law of legal proceedings in this State is such as to render it unwise, in my judgment, to enact special local laws upon subjects certain to be treated generally within a very short period.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. Sprague moved that said message be laid upon the table.

The President put the question whether the Senate would agree to said motion, and it was decided in the affirmative.

A message was received from the Governor in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, {
ALBANY, May 21, 1877.

To the Senate:

I return without approval Senate bill No. 120, entitled "An act to repeal chapter 74 of the Laws of 1866, entitled 'An act to create a Metropolitan Sanitary District and Board of Health therein for the preservation of life and health, and to prevent the spread of disease, so far as relates to Queens county, and to provide for the appointment of boards of health in the several towns of Newton, Flushing and Jamaica, in said county, and defining their powers and duties.'"

The locality mentioned in this bill and subject to its provisions, has been for many years a part of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, and subject to the control of its health authorities. This act seeks to take the district mentioned out of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, by repealing the provisions of the Metropolitan Health act, as far as it applies to Queens county.

It does not appear that any particular hardship to this locality has been wrought by the operations of the act repealed, while the proximity of this part of the metropolitan district to the city of New York renders it very possible that it may, at some time, be important to the sanitary welfare of the inhabitants of the city, that its health authorities should have control over part, if not all, the territory now sought to be taken from their jurisdiction.
